Crowe Wins In First Primary To Become Monroe City Judge

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Acting Monroe City Judge W. L. Crowe Jr. swept to a first primary victory Saturday over three opponents, earning for himself the office he has held the past six months during the physical incapacity of Judge W. M. Harper.

Complete but unofficial returns from the Ouachita Courthouse early today gave Crowe a combined vote in Wards 3 and 10 of 7,058 against the 3,490 of his closest rival, Hewitt B. Johnson.

The final results placed local attorney George Fink in third position with 2,092 votes, followed by Billye L. Adams with 466 votes.

The 13,106 votes cast Saturday between 6 a.m. and 8 p.m on one of the fullest ballots in years required Crowe to amass 6,554 votes for outright victory in the first primary. He surpassed the requirement by almost 500 votes.

WILLIAM L. (BILL) CROWE

Crowe, of 209 Lakeside Dr., Monroe, and a 1953 graduate of the Louisiana State University Law School, took an early lead as returns began arriving shortly after the polls closed at 8 p.m. and held it throughout the evening.

Johnson ran the former assistant Ouachita-Morehouse district attorney his strongest race in Ward 3 where he trailed Crowe by approximately 1,400 votes, but in Ward 10 Crowe moved steadily away.

A late check after 11 p.m. showed Ward 3 complete, with returns for the four candidates looking this way: Adams, 175, Crowe, 2,754, Fink, 791, and Johnson, 1649.

The unreported and largely Negro precincts, 12 and 13 in Ward 10, voting at Marbles' Recreation Center and Lincoln Elementary School, contained sufficient votes to pose a runoff between Crowe and Johnson. The issue was in doubt until nearly 12:30 a.m. today, when precinct 13, Ward 10, the last of the 23 boxes in Wards 3 and 10 reported.

A great deal of attention had been focused on the judges race in recent weeks, with Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard calling it a "sounding" board for the municipal elections coming in 1968.

He said officials of a former administration, including a former mayor, were involved in the campaign. Howard made the statements at a City Council meeting last week though he nor the Council endorsed a candidate.

Contacted at his home early today, Crowe made this brief statement: "I am grateful to God and to the many friends I have. It will take me a long time to thank them all."

Morrison, Rep. Willis In Runoffs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two veteran Louisiana Democratic congressmen were forced into runoffs Saturday night as the votes piled in from the state's party primary elections.

Rep. Edwin E. Willis, chairman of the powerful House Committee Un-American Activities, failed to get a majority in the 3rd District by about 4,000 votes.

He'll battle longtime political foe Dudley J. LeBlanc, the flamboyant Cajun salesman who made a fortune as the purveyor of the tonic Hadacol, in the Sept 24 Democratic second primary.

FIGHT FOR LIFE

And 12-term Democratic Rep. Jimmy H. Morrison, battling for his political life against a staunch conservative who campaigned against the Johnson administration, missed by 2,380 votes of winning renomination in the populous 6th District.

Morrison said the supporters of his chief opponent, soft-spoken, bespectacled John R. Rarick, an ex-judge, were Ku Klux Klan members.

Now Morrison and Rarick face another five weeks of furious campaigning.

Meanwhile, 75-year-old Sen. Allen J. Ellender, swept triumphantly to a sixth term in what has been called the "world's most exclusive club." With most of the returns counted in the only statewide race on the ballot, Ellender had a 3-1 lead over his two younger opponents.

It was the first election held in Louisiana under the 1965 federal voting rights act and Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. John Doar—the Justice Department's chief civil rights troubleshooter — headed a crew of 150 federal agents observing voting in six of the state's 64 parishes.

Freshman Rep. Speedy O. Long seemed assured of victory over Larry Parker of Alexandria in the race for the 8th District Democratic nomination. With one-third of the precincts in, Long led Parker, 14,128-6,217.

Odis Russell Wins Election As Ouachita Tax Assessor

By BILL HARDIN
News Star City Editor

Odis Russell, seeking election on the basis of experience, handily won the race for Ouachita Parish Assessor Saturday. He defeated his two opponents by a vote of more than two to one. Russell defeated Mrs. Mary Burt Coverdale, present assessor, and V. A. 'Bill' Randall, also seeking election for the first time. Mrs. Coverdale, appointed in January to succeed her late husband, veteran Bert Coverdale, sought election to the remaining term on the basis of continuing the policies of the current administration.

Russell's final but unofficial vote was 14,059. He led in every one of the 50 precincts of Ouachita parish.

Mrs. Coverdale received 5,491, and Randall 2,002.

ODIS RUSSELL

FIRST VENTURE

Saturday's election was the first political venture for all of the three candidates, although they had been closely associated with politics in the past. Mrs. Coverdale was married to the late assessor, one of the political leaders in Ouachita parish and an unofficial spokesman for the Louisiana Tax Assessors Association.

Randall, a native of Catahoula parish, had worked in several assessor's offices, including his native parish. An oil-gas lease man, Randall asked election on the basis of his past business experience.

Mrs. Coverdale is co-owner of the Quality Printing Company of West Monroe. She has been in business for a number of years with her brothers and mother.

EXPERIENCE

Russell, deputy in the assessor's office for 16 years, and chief deputy since last year, sought the post on the basis of his experience in the operations of the office.

Following unofficial tabulation of the balloting, Russell said he was "sincerely and humbly thankful to the public for the confidence placed in me and in the staff at the office. It is my sincere hope that I can live up to this confidence of the people of the parish, and will be open to all. I shall continue the policies of the offices which my late boss, Bert Coverdale, put into effect," he said.

Russell asked the cooperation of all for the betterment of the parish.

High Of 91 Reached Here

Monroe's reading of 94 Saturday afternoon was the highest temperature recommended in the Mid-south area. FAA at Selman Field in Monroe noted the high at 2 p.m. and the low of 70 at 5 a.m.

No measurable rainfall had been reported in the Monroe area late Saturday night. Little Rock, Ark., reported 6.91 inches of rain in a 24-hour period ending at 6 p.m. Saturday bringing the two-day total to 9.26 inches.

The forecast for today calls for much of the same weather with no important temperature change through Monday. The high expected for today is 86 to 92 with the low expected to fall to 72 to 78.

U.S. Sends More Troops To Viet Nam

VUNG TAU, South Viet Nam (AP) — More than 3,000 troops of the new 196th U.S. Light Infantry Brigade arrived in Viet Nam on Saturday in a further buildup of American forces.

The new arrivals raised to 291,000 the total of American troops now in Viet Nam. U.S. officials have announced a prospective buildup of 400,000 by the end of the year.

The new brigade, from Ft. Devens, Mass., came ashore at the coastal town of Vung Tau from troopships.

Trained in counterguerrilla and counterinsurgency fighting, the new brigade will be based at Tay Ninh, a province northnorthwest of Saigon on the Cambodian border.

Its strategic location there is aimed at holding back North Vietnamese infiltration from across the Cambodian border.

The unit, first light infantry brigade in U.S. military history, was activated at Ft. Devens on Sept. 15, 1965. About 50 per cent of the troops were mexperienced when they began training.

As a separate unit the brigade will be attached to the 25th (Tropic Lightning) Infantry Division, making the division the largest U.S. combat force in Viet Nam.

As the troops walked off their ship, they were greeted by an Army band and pretty Vietnamese girls. The girls garlanded the troops with leis and pinned roses on some.

Two Youths With Guns Are Hunted

Local law enforcement agencies and Louisiana Training Institute personel were combing hundreds of wooded acres in the early hours today for two juvenile escapees from LTI.

It was feared they could be armed with a 30-30 rifle and an ammunition box.

LTI authorities said the two escaped the Institute by "slipping away from the dining hall" earlier in the day.

Late Saturday, the residence of A. E. Davis, RL 3, Box 124 West Monroe, near Fillpot Road was reported entered and a rifle, ammunition, blankets and clothing taken, sheriff's officials said.

A local resident told authorities he saw two young men near the wooded area with what may have been a rifle.

Sheriff's deputies, including their Canine Unit, and LTI officials were searching an area along the Fillpot Road which runs along the Ouachita River early today.

Dr. Urban, 26, was on the faculty at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kan., prior to last year. He is a member of the Medieval Academy of America and the American Association of University Professors. The new faculty member earned the B. A. degree in 1961, the M. Kennedy, Kahn Take Runoff Spots For City School Board

By BOB CARROLL
World Staff Writer

Robert Kennedy polled 4780 votes with all 20 precincts reporting, but David Kahn totaled 2142 to force single Monroe City School Board seat, unofficial returns late Saturday night showed.

Joe Kilcoyne ran a close third with 1653 votes, while the others lagged behind. Austin Miller polled 1243, George Burroughs, 906; and Peter J. Dowd, 626.

The six Democratic candidates were vying for the seat held by Shelby Hill, who was appointed by Gov. John J. McKeithen to replace former J. H. Scogin Jr., who moved to Winnsboro last year.

The race is for the unexpired term which runs until 1968.

While precincts 9 and 10 in ward 3 and precinct 11 of ward 10 were counted in the races for city judge and city marshal, they were not for city school board as the three precincts lie outside the city limits.

Kennedy, 41, of 2007 Sherwood Dr., Monroe, is a life-long resident of Louisiana. He is a former school eacher and former state legislator. He is now engaged in the insurance business.

Kennedy is a member of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce.

He is the father of three children, now in the Monroe City School system.

In his campaign statement, Kennedy said, "I believe that the key to the social, economic and political problems of today is the sound education of our youth, who must accept civic responsibility tomorrow."

Kahn, 36, of 308 Arkansas St., Monroe, is a local insurance agent. Himself product of the city school system, he now has two children attending Monroe schools.

"For a number of years, I have had a tremendous interest in the field of education," Kahn said during his campaign. He added that if elected, "My attitude would be that school board members should handle business matters only, leaving to paid professional educators all matters pertaining to the running of the schools."

Kilcoyne, 44, 905 South Third St., Monroe, is married to the former Mary Thrush and has three children in the city school system.

"I have no political obligation to anyone in the City of Monroe, or elsewhere, and my only interest in this office is in providing the best program for all students in the city," Kilcoyne said during his campaign.

He has been employed as a salesman for F. Strauss and Son, Inc., for the past 14 years.

Red Gunners Get High Toll Of Raiders

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist gunners Saturday shot down a Navy F8 Crusader over North Viet Nam to raise a seven-day toll of U.S. planes lost over the Communist territory to 14 — the costliest week so far.

U.S. military spokesmen said today the 14th loss came during an attack on oil barges near Haiphong when the Navy plane was hit and the pilot bailed out. He was rescued later.

HEAVY LOSSES

Losses over North Viet Nam last week included the record one-day loss last Sunday of seven planes, the loss Monday of three more for a two-day record loss, the loss Thursday of one plane, Friday's loss of two and the Crusader Saturday.

In the raid on North Viet Nam Saturday, Navy pilots reported that in the action where the Crusader went down, 25 miles east of the vital port city, one oil barge was blown up, two more set afire and a fourth apparently suffered no damage.

Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs and F4C Phantoms also reported destroying 16 trucks and damaging five more in strikes in the southern panhandle and in the Red River Valley of North Viet Nam.

JOHN S. GARRETT

Incumbent Builds Up Strong Bid

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — John S. Hunt, backed by Gov. John McKeithen, ran well ahead of the field Saturday night but was forced into a runoff primary for the 3rd District Public Service Commission race with state Rep. John Garrett.

The results spoke well for McKeithen's two-term amendment proposal with Hunt piling up a 36,000 lead over his nearest opponent.

Garrett, who acted as McKeithen's floor leader during part of the regular legislative session, ran about 6,000 votes ahead of John McKinley for the second spot.

With 740 of 812 precincts reporting, Hunt had 66,281 votes; Garrett, 30,798; McKinley, 24,339; Wellborn Jack, 20,205; Perry (Buster) Coleman, 12,276, and Parey Branton, 7,629.

The 3rd District race is regarded as a springboard to the Louisiana governorship.

McKeithen, who leaped from a seat on the PSC into the governor's chair, is hoping that a big majority for his candidate —John S. Hunt III—will mean that his two-term amendment is in good shape.

The two - term amendment, passed by the legislature and put on the November ballot, would enable Louisiana governors to serve two consecutive four-year terms.

Hunt, of Monroe, faced formidable opposition in state Rep. John Garrett, Claiborne Parish; John B. McKinley, Monroe, former chairman of the State Sovereignty Commission; state Rep. Parey Branton, Webster Parish; Wellborn Jack of Shreveport, former Caddo Parish state representative; and Perry (Buster) Coleman, Pollock.

Huey P. Long, Jimmie Davis and McKeithen have used the Public Service Commission post to spring to the governorship. McKeithen resigned his commissioner's job to take the oath as governor three years ago.

The main issue has been opposition to McKeithen, who has said the two candidates most critical of him—Brandon and Coleman—were running in last place.

The governor had a poll conducted in the race earlier this year, and it reportedly showed Hunt ahead. But there was a votes at the time.

Garrett, who often acted as an administration floor leader during the recent regular legislative session, might have received McKeithen backing if Hunt had not decided to run.

Davis was watching the race closely for a tipoff to his possible chances for another term as governor. He was reported to favor Garrett, although there has been no public word from either man.

McKinley, McKeithen's former law partner, is running as an independent. The governor named him chairman of the Sovereignty Commission, and he is making his first political race.

Jack, a veteran Shreveport politician, is seeking to come back after losing to Rep. J. Bennett Johnston in a 1964 House race that required a recount. It was his first defeat after 24 years continuous service in the House.

2 Persons Killed In Auto Wreck

The smashup of an auto into a railroad trestle killed two Negro girls and seriously injured another late Saturday.

Dead were Barbara Ann Latham, 16, and Sharon Latham, 15, both of Chatham. Rushed by Kilpatrick's ambulance to Glenwood Hospital was Fay Doris Howard, Chatham. She was in undetermined condition early today.

State police, investigating the scene of twisted metal early today said apparently the auto — driven by the Howard girl — was headed south on La. Hwy. 546, near Chenerie, when it struck the trestle, on the right side of the road.

Troopers said Barbara Latham died on impact and Sharon shortly thereafter.

The make of auto was almost unidentifiable, troopers said, the destruction of the auto being so complete.

Northwest Vacation

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara traded the burdens of the Viet Nam war for a back pack Saturday at a vacation in the Pacific Northwest.

McNamara, also feeling the burdens of the airline strike, arrived at Portland International Airport after a horrendous night of trying to get commercial airline passage from San Francisco.

Three Win Seats In Ouachita Parish School Board Balloting

By TRAVIS MAYO
Staff Writer

Three persons won seats on the Ouachita Parish School Board and runoff elections are slated for both seats from Ward 5, and the single seat in Ward 3 as the results of Saturdays Democratic primary.

Winning Saturday were Dwight E. Owens, incumbent from Ward 9, and two new members from Ward 10, H. W. Tolson and William G. (Bill) Kelly Jr.

J. A. Rutledge was unopposed in Ward 8.

Scheduled for the run off elections Sept. 24 are:

B. A. Tarver, present president of the school board, who faces Leon T. Shamblin, Negro, seeking the post for the first time.

Roy C. Brooks, and J. D. Purvis, both seeking the six-year term from Ward 5.

Joe B. Zuber and Jerry L. Ford, seeking the unexpired term of the late Roy Cash. The term still has two years.

The winners in both the special and regular election runoff on Sept. 24 will face Republican opposition in the general election November 8.

In the ward 10 election, Tolson led the race with 4,534 votes, against 3,664 for Kelly and 3,031 for Carl H. Thompson. The three were seeking the two posts on the board vacated by James H. Trousdale Jr., and George Rorex, both of whom declined to seek re-election.

The race was the first for Kelly, Monroe attorney, but the second attempt by Tolson for the position. Two years ago he sought election in a special term, when a fourth seat was given to ward 10. Tolson reached the second Democratic primary, but was defeated by a Republican, Mrs. George M. Snellings Jr.

Thompson, too, had sought the post in earlier elections.

Owens won the three-man race with 127 votes against 96 for Hickman L. Bamburg and 12 for M. H. Head.

In Ward 3, Tarver led the three-man field with 1,924 votes. Placing second and facing Tarver in the runoff is Shamblin, with 1,761 votes. Orville Renfraw received 1,509.

In the regular election for the Ward 5 board post, the runoff is between Brooks, who received 2,491 and Purvis, with 1,314. Morris C. Griggs received 1,258 and Mrs. Fred Riser Sr., 1,150. Mrs. Riser, the incumbent, had been appointed to fill the unexpired term of her late husband. She was seeking election for the first time.

In the special election, for the two-year time of the unexpired term, Zuber led with 2,134 votes, against 1,815 for Ford, who is in the runoff, and 1,763 for Chester Holloway.

Passman drew 17,227 votes in Ouachita while LaDart picked up 4,171. LaDart carried four precincts, winning in precinct 6, Ward 3, and precincts 8, 12 and 13, Ward 10, according to complete but unofficial returns.

Ellender carried every parish in the 5th District, including Guice's home parish of Concordia, where the vote 2,936 for the 75-year-old senior senator to 1,910 for his younger opponent.

In the PSC race, Hunt carried every parish in the 5th District but two, with McKinley winning in Caldwell and Franklin. The closest vote for the top three men was in East Carroll Parish where only 107 votes separated the three candidates.

In Ouachita Parish, returns from 50 of 50 precincts gave Hunt victory in 42, while McKinley carried the other eight. Two of the precincts McKinley carried by only one vote.

JOHN S. HUNT

Incumbent Builds Up Strong Bid

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — John S. Hunt, backed by Gov. John McKeithen, ran well ahead of the field Saturday night but was forced into a runoff primary for the 3rd District Public Service Commission race with state Rep. John Garrett.

The results spoke well for McKeithen's two-term amendment proposal with Hunt piling up a 36,000 lead over his nearest opponent.

Garrett, who acted as McKeithen's floor leader during part of the regular legislative session, ran about 6,000 votes ahead of John McKinley for the second spot.

With 740 of 812 precincts reporting, Hunt had 66,281 votes; Garrett, 30,798; McKinley, 24,339; Wellborn Jack, 20,205; Perry (Buster) Coleman, 12,276, and Parey Branton, 7,629.

The 3rd District race is regarded as a springboard to the Louisiana governorship.

McKeithen, who leaped from a seat on the PSC into the governor's chair, is hoping that a big majority for his candidate —John S. Hunt III—will mean that his two-term amendment is in good shape.

The two - term amendment, passed by the legislature and put on the November ballot, would enable Louisiana governors to serve two consecutive four-year terms.

Hunt, of Monroe, faced formidable opposition in state Rep. John Garrett, Claiborne Parish; John B. McKinley, Monroe, former chairman of the State Sovereignty Commission; state Rep. Parey Branton, Webster Parish; Wellborn Jack of Shreveport, former Caddo Parish state representative; and Perry (Buster) Coleman, Pollock.

Huey P. Long, Jimmie Davis and McKeithen have used the Public Service Commission post to spring to the governorship. McKeithen resigned his commissioner's job to take the oath as governor three years ago.

The main issue has been opposition to McKeithen, who has said the two candidates most critical of him—Brandon and Coleman—were running in last place.

The governor had a poll conducted in the race earlier this year, and it reportedly showed Hunt ahead. But there was a votes at the time.

Garrett, who often acted as an administration floor leader during the recent regular legislative session, might have received McKeithen backing if Hunt had not decided to run.

Davis was watching the race closely for a tipoff to his possible chances for another term as governor. He was reported to favor Garrett, although there has been no public word from either man.

McKinley, McKeithen's former law partner, is running as an independent. The governor named him chairman of the Sovereignty Commission, and he is making his first political race.

Jack, a veteran Shreveport politician, is seeking to come back after losing to Rep. J. Bennett Johnston in a 1964 House race that required a recount. It was his first defeat after 24 years continuous service in the House.

2 Persons Killed In Auto Wreck

The smashup of an auto into a railroad trestle killed two Negro girls and seriously injured another late Saturday.

Dead were Barbara Ann Latham, 16, and Sharon Latham, 15, both of Chatham. Rushed by Kilpatrick's ambulance to Glenwood Hospital was Fay Doris Howard, Chatham. She was in undetermined condition early today.

State police, investigating the scene of twisted metal early today said apparently the auto — driven by the Howard girl — was headed south on La. Hwy. 546, near Chenerie, when it struck the trestle, on the right side of the road.

Troopers said Barbara Latham died on impact and Sharon shortly thereafter.

The make of auto was almost unidentifiable, troopers said, the destruction of the auto being so complete.

Northwest Vacation

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara traded the burdens of the Viet Nam war for a back pack Saturday at a vacation in the Pacific Northwest.

McNamara, also feeling the burdens of the airline strike, arrived at Portland International Airport after a horrendous night of trying to get commercial airline passage from San Francisco.

Odis Russell Wins Election As Ouachita Tax Assessor

News Star City Editor

Odis Russell, seeking election on the basis of experience, handily won the race for Ouachita Parish Assessor Saturday. He defeated his two opponents by a vote of more than two to one. Russell defeated Mrs. Mary Burt Coverdale, present assessor, and V. A. 'Bill' Randall, also seeking election for the first time. Mrs. Coverdale, appointed in January to succeed her late husband, veteran Bert Coverdale, sought election to the remaining term on the basis of continuing the policies of the current administration.

Russell's final but unofficial vote was 14,059. He led in every one of the 50 precincts of Ouachita parish.

Mrs. Coverdale received 5,491, and Randall 2,002.

FIRST VENTURE

Saturday's election was the first political venture for all of the three candidates, although they had been closely associated with politics in the past. Mrs. Coverdale was married to the late assessor, one of the political leaders in Ouachita parish and an unofficial spokesman for the Louisiana Tax Assessors Association.

Randall, a native of Catahoula parish, had worked in several assessor's offices, including his native parish. An oil-gas lease man, Randall asked election on the basis of his past business experience.

Mrs. Coverdale is co-owner of the Quality Printing Company of West Monroe. She has been in business for a number of years with her brothers and mother.

EXPERIENCE

Russell, deputy in the assessor's office for 16 years, and chief deputy since last year, sought the post on the basis of his experience in the operations of the office.

Following unofficial tabulation of the balloting, Russell said he was "sincerely and humbly thankful to the public for the confidence placed in me and in the staff at the office. It is my sincere hope that I can live up to this confidence.

ODIS RUSSELL

"The assessor's office, as in the past, will remain the office of the people of the parish, and will be open to all. I shall continue the policies of the offices which my late boss, Bert Coverdale, put into effect," he said.

Russell asked the cooperation of all for the betterment of the parish.

U.S. Sends More Troops To Viet Nam

VUNG TAU, South Viet Nam (AP) — More than 3,000 troops of the new 196th U.S. Light Infantry Brigade arrived in Viet Nam on Saturday in a further buildup of American forces.

The new arrivals raised to 291,000 the total of American troops now in Viet Nam. U.S. officials have announced a prospective buildup of 400,000 by the end of the year.

The new brigade, from Ft. Devens, Mass., came ashore at the coastal town of Vung Tau from troopships.

Trained in counterguerrilla and counterinsurgency fighting, the new brigade will be based at Tay Ninh, a province northnorthwest of Saigon on the Cambodian border.

Its strategic location there is aimed at holding back North Vietnamese infiltration from across the Cambodian border.

The unit, first light infantry brigade in U.S. military history, was activated at Ft. Devens on Sept. 15, 1965. About 50 per cent of the troops were inexperienced when they began training.

As a separate unit, the brigade will be attached to the 25th (Tropic Lightning) Infantry Division, making the division the largest U.S. combat force in Viet Nam.

As the troops walked off landing craft, they were greeted by an Army band and pretty Vietnamese girls. The girls garlanded the troops with leis and pinned roses on some.

No measurable rainfall had been reported in the Monroe area late Saturday night. Little Rock, Ark., reported 6.91 inches of rain in a 24-hour period ending at 6 p.m. Saturday bringing the two-day total to 9.26 inches.

The forecast for today calls for much of the same weather with no important temperature change through Monday. The high expected for today is 86 to 92 with the low expected to fall to 72 to 78.

Two Youths With Guns Are Hunted

Local law enforcement agencies and Louisiana Training Institute personel were combing hundreds of wooded acres in the early hours today for two juvenile escapees from LTI.

It was feared they could be armed with a 30-30 rifle and an ammunition box.

LTI authorities said the two escaped the Institute by "slipping away from the dining hall" earlier in the day.

Late Saturday, the residence of A. E. Davis, Rt. 3, Box 124 West Monroe, near Fillpot Road was reported entered and a rifle, ammunition, blankets and clothing taken, sheriff's officials said.

A local resident told authorities he saw two young men near the wooded area with what may have been a rifle.

Sheriff's deputies, including their Canine Unit, and LTI officials were searching an area along the Fillpot Road which runs along the Ouachita River, early today.

Dr. William Lawrence Urban, a native of Monroe, who earned the B. A., M. A., and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Texas, will join the Monmouth College faculty this fall as assistant professor of history.

Dr. Urban, 26, was on the faculty at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kan., prior to last year. He is a member of the Medieval Academy of America and the American Association of University Professors. The new faculty member earned the B. A. degree in 1961, the M. A. in 1963, and the Ph.D. earlier this month.

Red Gunners Get High Toll Of Raiders

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist gunners Saturday shot down a Navy F8 Crusader over North Viet Nam to raise a seven-day toll of U.S. planes lost over the Communist territory to 14 — the costliest week so far.

U.S. military spokesmen said today the 14th loss came during an attack on oil barges near Haiphong when the Navy plane was hit and the pilot bailed out. He was rescued later.

HEAVY LOSSES

Losses over North Viet Nam last week included the record one-day loss last Sunday of seven planes, the loss Monday of three more for a two-day record loss, the loss Thursday of one plane, Friday's loss of two and the Crusader Saturday.

In the raid on North Viet Nam Saturday, Navy pilots reported that in the action where the Crusader went down, 25 miles east of the vital port city, one oil barge was blown up, two more set afire and a fourth apparently suffered no damage.

Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs and F4C Phantoms also reported destroying 16 trucks and damaging five more in strikes in the southern panhandle and in the Red River Valley of North Viet Nam.

Kennedy, Kahn Take Runoff Spots For City School Board

By BOB CARROLL
World Staff Writer

Robert Kennedy polled 4780 votes with all 20 precincts reporting, but David Kahn totaled 2142 to force single Monroe City School Board seat, unofficial returns late Saturday night showed.

Joe Kilcoyne ran a close third with 1653 votes, while the others lagged behind. Austin Miller polled 1243, George Burroughs, 906; and Peter J. Dowd, 626.

The six Democratic candidates were vying for the seat held by Shelby Hill, who was appointed by Gov. John J. McKeithen to replace former J. H. Scogin Jr., who moved to Winnsboro last year.

The race is for the unexpired term which runs until 1968.

While precincts 9 and 10 in ward 3 and precinct 11 of ward 10 were counted in the races for city judge and city marshal, they were not for city school board as the three precincts lie outside the city limits.

Kennedy, 41, of 2007 Sherwood Dr., Monroe, is a life-long resident of Louisiana. He is a former school eacher and former state legislator. He is now engaged in the insurance business.

Kennedy is a member of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce.

He is the father of three children, now in the Monroe City School system.

In his campaign statement, Kennedy said, "I believe that the key to the social, economic and political problems of today is the sound education of our youth, who must accept civic responsibility tomorrow."

Kahn, 36, of 308 Arkansas St., Monroe, is a local insurance agent. Himself product of the city school system, he now has two children attending Monroe schools.

"For a number of years, I have had a tremendous interest in the field of education," Kahn said during his campaign. He added that if elected, "My attitude would be that school board members should handle business matters only, leaving to paid professional educators all matters pertaining to the running of the schools."

Kilcoyne, 44, 905 South Third St., Monroe, is married to the former Mary Thrush and has three children in the city school system.

"I have no political obligation to anyone in the City of Monroe, or elsewhere, and my only interest in this office is in providing the best program for all students in the city," Kilcoyne said during his campaign.

He has been employed as a salesman for F. Strauss and Son, Inc., for the past 14 years.

Three Win Seats In Ouachita Parish School Board Balloting

By TRAVIS MAYO
Staff Writer

Three persons won seats on the Ouachita Parish School Board and runoff elections are slated for both seats from Ward 5, and the single seat in Ward 3 as the results of Saturdays Democratic primary.

Winning Saturday were Dwight E. Owens, incumbent from Ward 9, and two new members from Ward 10, H. W. Tolson and William G. (Bill) Kelly Jr.

J. A. Rutledge was unopposed in Ward 8.

Scheduled for the run off elections Sept. 24 are:

B. A. Tarver, present president of the school board, who faces Leon T. Shamblin, Negro, seeking the post for the first time.

Roy C. Brooks, and J. D. Purvis, both seeking the six-year term from Ward 5.

Joe B. Zuber and Jerry L. Ford, seeking the unexpired term of the late Roy Cash. The term still has two years.

The winners in both the special and regular election runoff on Sept. 24 will face Republican opposition in the general election, November 8.

In the ward 10 election, Tolson led the race with 4,534 votes, against 3,664 for Kelly and 3,031 for Carl H. Thompson. The three were seeking the two posts on the board vacated by James H. Trousdale Jr., and George Rorex, both of whom declined to seek re-election.

The race was the first for Kelly, Monroe attorney, but the second attempt by Tolson for the position. Two years ago he sought election in a special term, when a fourth seat was given to ward 10. Tolson reached the second Democratic primary, but was defeated by a Republican, Mrs. George M. Snellings Jr.

Thompson, too, had sought the post in earlier elections.

Owens won the three-man race with 127 votes against 96 for Hickman L. Bamburg and 12 for M. H. Head.

In Ward 3, Tarver led the three-man field with 1,924 votes. Placing second and facing Tarver in the runoff is Shamblin, with 1,761 votes. Orville Renfrow received 1,509.

In the regular election for the Ward 5 board post, the runoff is between Brooks, who received 2,491 and Purvis, with 1,314. Morris C. Griggs received 1,258 and Mrs. Fred Riser Sr., 1,150. Mrs. Riser, the incumbent, had been appointed to fill the unexpired term of her late husband. She was seeking election for the first time.

In the special election, for the two-year time of the unexpired term, Zuber led with 2,134 votes, against 1,815 for Ford, who is in the runoff, and 1,763 for Chester Holloway.

Sicily Rustlers Kill Shepherd, Teen-Age Son

CAGLIARI, Sardinia (AP) — Death-dealing cattle rustlers struck again in the central hills of this outlaw-plagued island Friday night, shooting a shepherd and his son.

The bandits fired a bullet into the shepherd's head, then chased down his teen-age son, smoked him out of a cabin, and killed him also, police said. The two apparently had seen the rustlers stealing cows.

The shepherd, Antonio Caboni, 43, was found dead near the town of Allai. The body of his son Salvatore, 15, was found outside a nearby cabin where he had tried to take refuge from the rifle-toting outlaws.

The Gallup Poll -

GOP Registers Congress Gains

By GEORGE GALLUP

Three months from now, voters of the nation will have an opportunity to pass judgment on the entire membership of the House of Representatives. A total of 435 seats are involved in this the country's only national election. In the Senate only 35 of the 100 seats will be contested.

The events of the next three months will have an important influence on the outcome, and for that reason the Gallup Poll will make periodic measurements up to election day.

Largest Number

In President Johnson's 1964 landslide, 295 Democrats and 140 Republicans were elected — the largest number of Democrats elected to the House since 1936. In gaining this 2-to-1 victory, the Democrats polled 58 per cent of all votes cast for House members to 42 per cent for the GOP.

The latest survey findings show that the Democratic vote percentage has dropped 4 percentage points since the 1964 election. When a sample of voters is drawn from the entire nation and those who comprise the same or cross-section are asked how they would vote if the election were being held today, their votes divide in this manner:

For Democratic candidates	54%
For Republican candidates	46%

(The undecided vote was allocated to the Democrats and Republicans equally.)

The GOP vote today is slightly lower than that recorded in the 1962 election, when the Democrats won 259 seats, the Republicans, 176:

1962 HOUSE RACES
(Election Results)

For Democratic candidates	52.7%
For Republican candidates	47.3%

While it is not possible to convert percentages directly into seats, it can be seen that if the present situation were to remain constant until election day, the Republicans would gain back a number of seats lost in the Johnson sweep of 1964. In short, they could be expected to gain about 25 to 35 seats.

Battlefield Is Outside South

The real Congressional battlefield lies in the 37 states outside the South. It is in this area of the nation where many seats shift in election years.

While there is increasing political ferment in the South, nearly 100 of the 119 sats are safely Democratic — Many of them not even contested.

The Democrats therefore start every race for House seats with this heavy advantage. In fact, the Republican party must win nearly -two thirds of the 316 seats outside the South to take control of the House. This feat has been accomplished once since 1930 in a non-Presidential year, the election of 1946. Only once in a Presidential year during this 36-year span of time have the Republicans taken control of the House. This was the election of 1952 when Dwight Eisenhower won the Presidency.

GOP Standing Outside South

In the section of the nation outside the South, the Republicans have shown improvement in their popular vote percentages. The vote here is as follows:

NON-SOUTH
CONGRESSIONAL VOTE

	Dem.	Rep.
1964 election	56%	44%
Standing now	51%	49%

The 1946 election was the first time in a third of a century that the Republicans won control of the House. The Democratic vote vote was 43.1 per cent; the Republican vote was 56.9 per cent outside the South.

Although it is customary for political pundits to speak of "normal" off-year losses for the party in power, this is not necessarily the case. In fact, in the off-year election of 1934, the Democrats gained seats. In 1938, the Republicans gained 80 seats; in 1962, with a Democrat in the White House, the GOP picked up only 2 seats. It is therefore misleading to refer to a "normal" gain for the party out of power.

What the off-year elections do seem to reflect is the discontents of the voters. If the nation is enjoying peace and prosperity, the losses for the party in power are small.

Popularity Down

The President's over-all popularity is of course one index of sentiment in a Congressional race and reflects a vote of confidence in the Administration and his party.

President Johnson's popularity is down from 1964, when many Congressmen rode into office on his coattails. It is to be expected that any further loss in the President's popularity will adversely affect Democratic candidates for Congress.

The rating given the President for his handling of Viet Nam has been consistently lower than his over-all rating. The latest figures show 49 per cent approving of his handling of the Viet Nam situation, and 35 per cent disapproving, compared with 56 per cent approving of his handling of his overall job, and 30 per cent disapproving.

Signs Of Growth Evident At Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Extensive evidence of a college growing newer will be plainly visible at Louisiana Tech when academic operations are resumed to open the fall semester the week of Sept. 11.

Three new buildings will be ready for use for the first time, two additional classroom structures will be well under way and preliminary work will be in progress on the sites of several other campus projects.

Awaiting the arrival of the fall term crowd will be an attractively columned new cafeteria, a new eight-story dormitory for men students and a new eight-story dormitory for women students.

The additional dining facility, named Wilson Cafeteria in memory of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Wilson, former Tech staff members, is located just west of the football stadium. Approximately 2,000 persons can be served at one feeding period in this building. Seats will be available for about 1,000 simulatenously in four serving areas.

The new residence hall for men, known as Caruthers Dormitory in honor of J. D. Caruthers, Sr., deceased Shreveport business man and Tech alumnus, is situated near a new northern entrance to the grounds. The building will house 600 men students.

Finishing touches are being put upon the Kidd Dormitory for women students, named for Mrs. Stella B. Kidd, former Tech music professor. This hall, built on the south side of the campus, will provide rooms for 400 women students.

The two new dormitories and the cafeteria were erected through revenue-producing bond programs financed by private interests.

Currently taking shape on the Tech horizon is an engineering laboratory and classroom building being constructed across Arizona Avenue just southeast of Bogard Hall. This stucture will cost approximately $806,000, including $546,000 provided by the Louisiana Bond and Building Commission and by $260,000 in federal funds.

Most of the steel frame work has been hoisted for the spacious Madison classroom building, named for the late George T. Madison of Bastrop, former member of the State Board of Education. This building will include educational television facilities and offices and rooms for numerous faculty members of the departments of English and foreign languages, social sciences and mathematics. To make this hall possible, $1,750,000 was provided by the Capital Construction and Improvement Commission as part of a bond program initiated by Gov. John J. McKeithen and the Louisiana legislature.

Considerable preliminary work is being done on the site of Neilson Dormitory, an 11-story residence hall for men students, being erected just west of Caruthers Hall. This structure, to be Tech's tallest, has been named for Patrick D. Neilson, decreased, former head of the physics department and one-time dean of men and professor of engineering. It wil laccommodate 762 students and will be built at a cost of $2,438,000 financed by revenue bonds.

Present projects also include an extension of the Student Center and the construction of 42 apartments for married students at a combined cost of $1,250,000 also to be paid for through revenue bonds.

In progress are repairs and improvements on numerous older Tech buildings which are being reworked at a cost of $536,789 allocated by the Louisiana Bond and Building Commission.

Drainage work and other site preparations for a new football stadium are being accomplished on a location at the northwest edge of the campus. A faculty committee is collaborating with architects in working out details of the new athletic facility, which is expected to be completed by the fall of 1967.

Currently under way also is a campaign for private funds being conducted by Dr. F. Jay Taylor, Tech president, to provide a swimming pool at a cost of $100,000. More than half of this sum already has been donated for the pool, which will be constructed between Memorial Gymnasium and the new cafeteria.

Another project of student interest in the coming school year will be the installation of a Centrex System by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., which will provide phones in all dormitory rooms as well as additional offices on the campus.

Legion Meeting Slated Monday

Committees and appointed officers will be named for the L. B. Faulk Post No. 13 of the American Legion Monday at 7:30 p.m., Marion E. Dupont, post commander, said. The meeting will be hel din th Legion home on Forsythe Avenue.

Also slated for the meeting is a discussion on the recent bill passed by the House concerning preference for veterans working in the Foreign Service. The meeting will begin the membership drive, the commander said.

Watts Riot Anniversary Festive

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first anniversary of the Watts riots was marked Saturday by a summer festival as gay as a Mardi Gras.

Here, where bloody disorder a year ago claimed 34 lives and injured 1,032 persons, the scene was that of a carnival — complete with floats, jazz bands, and even a "Watts A Go Go" discotheque.

Replacing the "Burn, baby, burn" of last August's destruction and looting was a new slogan, "Learn, baby, learn."

Festival tents were erected on the strip of rubble known last year as "Charcoal Alley," a six-block stretch at the vortex of the riots.

Nearly 2,000 persons, both Negro and white, were on hand for the opening of the festival Friday. They viewed an exhibition of Afro-American and West Indian paintings and sculpture and architectural models of new buildings planned for the community.

The place to make the scene Friday night was the Watts Happening Coffee House, where an adaptation of Jean Genet's play "The Blacks" was performed. The adaptation was entitled "Licorice."

At the coffee shop a dance program, the "Ballet of Watts," was given Saturday, followed by a jazz program named "Music After Hours."

A spokesman for the Jordan High School Alumni Association, sponsors of the three-day event, stated the festival's purpose: "To enhance community pride, extend community development, to provide wholesome entertainment and demonstrate the capacity of Watts to function in its own right."

The events of the next three months will have an important influence on the outcome, and for that reason the Gallup Poll will make periodic measurements up to election day.

Largest Number

In President Johnson's 1964 landslide, 295 Democrats and 140 Republicans were elected — the largest number of Democrats elected to the House since 1936. In gaining this 2-to-1 victory, the Democrats polled 58 per cent of all votes cast for House members to 42 per cent for the GOP.

The latest survey findings show that the Democratic vote percentage has dropped 4 percentage points since the 1964 election. When a sample of voters is drawn from the entire nation and those who comprise the same or cross-section are asked how they would vote if the election were being held today, their votes divide in this manner:

For Democratic candidates	54%
For Republican candidates	46%

(The undecided vote was allocated to the Democrats and Republicans equally.)

The GOP vote today is slightly lower than that recorded in the 1962 election, when the Democrats won 259 seats, the Republicans, 176:

1962 HOUSE RACES
(Election Results)

For Democratic candidates	52.7%
For Republican candidates	47.3%

While it is not possible to convert percentages directly into seats, it can be seen that if the present situation were to remain constant until election day, the Republicans would gain back a number of seats lost in the Johnson sweep of 1964. In short, they could be expected to gain about 25 to 35 seats.

Battlefield Is Outside South

The real Congressional battlefield lies in the 37 states outside the South. It is in this area of the nation where many seats shift in election years.

While there is increasing political ferment in the South, nearly 100 of the 119 sats are safely Democratic — Many of them not even contested.

The Democrats therefore start every race for House seats with this heavy advantage. In fact, the Republican party must win nearly -two thirds of the 316 seats outside the South to take control of the House. This feat has been accomplished once since 1930 in a non-Presidential year, the election of 1946. Only once in a Presidential year during this 36-year span of time have the Republicans taken control of the House. This was the election of 1952 when Dwight Eisenhower won the Presidency.

GOP Standing Outside South

In the section of the nation outside the South, the Republicans have shown improvement in their popular vote percentages. The vote here is as follows:

NON-SOUTH
CONGRESSIONAL VOTE

	Dem.	Rep.
1964 election	56%	44%
Standing now	51%	49%

The 1946 election was the first time in a third of a century that the Republicans won control of the House. The Democratic vote vote was 43.1 per cent; the Republican vote was 56.9 per cent outside the South.

Although it is customary for political pundits to speak of "normal" off-year losses for the party in power, this is not necessarily the case. In fact, in the off-year election of 1934, the Democrats gained seats. In 1938, the Republicans gained 80 seats; in 1962, with a Democrat in the White House, the GOP picked up only 2 seats. It is therefore misleading to refer to a "normal" gain for the party out of power.

What the off-year elections do seem to reflect is the discontents of the voters. If the nation is enjoying peace and prosperity, the losses for the party in power are small.

Popularity Down

The President's over-all popularity is of course one index of sentiment in a Congressional race and reflects a vote of confidence in the Administration and his party.

President Johnson's popularity is down from 1964, when many Congressmen rode into office on his coattails. It is to be expected that any further loss in the President's popularity will adversely affect Democratic candidates for Congress.

The rating given the President for his handling of Viet Nam has been consistently lower than his over-all rating. The latest figures show 49 per cent approving of his handling of the Viet Nam situation, and 35 per cent disapproving, compared with 56 per cent approving of his handling of his overall job, and 30 per cent disapproving.

Watts Riot Anniversary Festive

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The first anniversary of the Watts riots was marked Saturday by a summer festival as gay as a Mardi Gras.

Here, where bloody disorder a year ago claimed 34 lives and injured 1,032 persons, the scene was that of a carnival — complete with floats, jazz bands, and even a "Watts A Go Go" discotheque.

Replacing the "Burn, baby, burn" of last August's destruction and looting was a new slogan, "Learn, baby, learn."

Festival tents were erected on the strip of rubble known last year as "Charcoal Alley," a six-block stretch at the vortex of the riots.

Nearly 2,000 persons, both Negro and white, were on hand for the opening of the festival Friday. They viewed an exhibition of Afro-American and West Indian paintings and sculpture and architectural models of new buildings planned for the community.

The place to make the scene Friday night was the Watts Happening Coffee House, where an adaptation of Jean Genet's play "The Blacks" was performed. The adaptation was entitled "Licorice."

At the coffee shop a dance program, the "Ballet of Watts," was given Saturday, followed by a jazz program named "Music After Hours."

A spokesman for the Jordan High School Alumni Association, sponsors of the three-day event, stated the festival's purpose: "To enhance community pride, extend community development, to provide wholesome entertainment and demonstrate the capacity of Watts to function in its own right."

Signs Of Growth Evident At Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Extensive evidence of a college growing newer will be plainly visible at Louisiana Tech when academic operations are resumed to open the fall semester the week of Sept. 11.

Three new buildings will be ready for use for the first time, two additional classroom structures will be well under way and preliminary work will be in progress on the sites of several other campus projects.

Awaiting the arrival of the fall term crowd will be an attractively columned new cafeteria, a new eight-story dormitory for men students and a new eight-story dormitory for women students.

The additional dining facility, named Wilson Cafeteria in memory of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Wilson, former Tech staff members, is located just west of the football stadium. Appproximately 2,000 persons can be served at one feeding period in this building. Seats will be available for about 1,000 simulatenously in four serving areas.

The new residence hall for men, known as Caruthers Dormitory in honor of J. D. Caruthers, Sr., deceased Shreveport business man and Tech alumnus, is situated near a new northern entrance to the grounds. The building will house 600 men students.

Finishing touches are being put upon the Kidd Dormitory for women students, named for Mrs. Stella B. Kidd, former Tech music professor. This hall, built on the south side of the campus, will provide rooms for 400 women students.

The two new dormitories and the cafeteria were erected through revenue-producing bond programs financed by private interests.

Currently taking shape on the Tech horizon is an engineering laboratory and classroom building being constructed across Arizona Avenue just southeast of Bogard Hall. This stucture will cost approximately $806,000, including $546,000 provided by the Louisiana Bond and Building Commission and by $260,000 in federal funds.

Most of the steel frame work has been hoisted for the spacious Madison classroom building, named for the late George T. Madison of Bastrop, former member of the State Board of Education. This building will include educational television facilities and offices and rooms for numerous faculty members of the departments of English and foreign languages, social sciences and mathematics. To make this hall possible, $1,750,000 was provided by the Capital Construction and Improvement Commission as part of a bond program initiated by Gov. John J. McKeithen and the Louisiana legislature.

Considerable preliminary work is being done on the site of Neilson Dormitory, an 11-story residence hall for men students, being erected just west of Caruthers Hall. This structure, to be Tech's tallest, has been named for Patrick D. Neilson, decreased, former head of the physics department and one-time dean of men and professor of engineering. It wil laccommodate 762 students and will be built at a cost of $2,438,000 financed by revenue bonds.

Present projects also include an extension of the Student Center and the construction of 42 apartments for married students at a combined cost of $1,250,000 also to be paid for through revenue bonds.

In progress are repairs and improvements on numerous older Tech buildings which are being reworked at a cost of $536,789 allocated by the Louisiana Bond and Building Commission.

Drainage work and other site preparations for a new football stadium are being accomplished on a location at the northwest edge of the campus. A faculty committee is collaborating with architects in working out details of the new athletic facility, which is expected to be completed by the fall of 1967.

Currently under way also is a campaign for private funds being conducted by Dr. F. Jay Taylor, Tech president, to provide a swimming pool at a cost of $100,000. More than half of this sum already has been donated for the pool, which will be constructed between Memorial Gymnasium and the new cafeteria.

Another project of student interest in the coming school year will be the installation of a Centrex System by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., which will provide phones in all dormitory rooms as well as additional offices on the campus.

Legion Meeting Slated Monday

Committees and appointed officers will be named for the L. B. Faulk Post No. 13 of the American Legion Monday at 7:30 p.m., Marion E. Dupont, post commander, said. The meeting will be hel din th Legion home on Forsythe Avenue.

Also slated for the meeting is a discussion on the recent bill passed by the House concerning preference for veterans working in the Foreign Service. The meeting will begin the membership drive, the commander said.

Killing Of JFK Still Is A Mystery To Many People

NEW YORK (AP)—To many persons, the assassination of President John F. Kennedy still remains an absorbing mystery, an incredibly complex—and potentially lucrative—detective story in which the last chapter is yet to be written.

The ghost walks despite the fact that the commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren investigated the case for 10 months, examined mountains of subjective and objective evidence, then issued a report containing these principal conclusions:

1. Lee Harvey Oswald fired the rifle that killed Kennedy and wounded Texas Gov. John B. Connally, shooting from a window position behind the car in which they were riding.

2. Oswald acted alone from motives unknown; no foreign or domestic conspiracy brought about the assassination.

3. Oswald was not acquainted with Jack Ruby, the Dallas nightclub operator who shot him to death two days later outside the Dallas Police and Courts Building.

The Warren Commission issued its report Sept. 24, 1964, officially closing the case.

Since then, however, doubts have been expressed by lawyers, writers and at least one historian. Books challenging the commission's over-all conclusions, and questioning the subsidiary findings on which they were based, regularly come off the presses. The latest, "Rush to Judgment," by attorney Mark Lane, is to be isseud Aug. 15.

Lane says he became involved in the case in response to a request from Marguerite Oswald who said to him in December, 1963, "Will you be my son's lawyer before the Warren Commission?"

Lane writes that he interviewed numerous persons who, in his judgment, had important information about the assassination but were not called to testify before the commission.

Why? He states the core of his contention in the words, "I believe that the report of the President's commission is less a report than a brief for the prosecution. Oswald was the accused; the evidence against him was magnified,while that in his favor was depreciated, misrepresented or ignored."

Elsewhere, Lane contends that the Warren report was designed mainly to be a kind of tranquilizer for the nation, to assure millions of Americans that no conspiracy accounted for Kennedy's assassination.

He wrote, "Such an effort could be successful only if the commission found that the lone assassin had been apprehended. A finding indicating that unknown assassins were still at large would have offered little assurance."

Similarly, in the book's foreword, the British historian, Prof. Hugh Trevor-Roper, wrote, "The writers of the report have selected such evidence as may seem to sustain their conclusion. They have chosen to ignore a great deal of evidence which does not support but even traverses that conclusion."

Of the many points raised in Lane's book, these are some of the major ones:

—Direction of the shots that struck Kennedy and Connally:

The Warren Commission concluded that Oswald fired at the President's car from the sixth floor of the Texas Book Depository Building. The car was moving away from the window.

Lane points a finger at a grassy knoll toward which the car was approaching. He writes, "Witnesses heard shots come from the knoll. Witnesses saw smoke on the knoll. One witness even smelled gunpowder behind the fence."

This would suggest that Kennedy was caught in a cross-fire, with bullets striking him from behind and in front. The Warren report said, "In contrast to the testimony of the witnesses who heard and observed shots fired from the depository, the commission's investigation had disclosed no credible evidence that any shots were fired from anywhere else."

—Oswald as a marksman:

The commission reported that Oswald qualified as a "sharpshooter" in the Marine Corps in 1956, and quoted a Marine sergeant who reviewed Oswald's scores, "I would say in the Marine Corps, he is a good shot, slightly above average."

Lane quoted one of Oswald's fellow Marines, Nelson Delgado, as saying, "It was a pretty good joke, because he got a lot of 'Maggie's drawers,' you know, a lot of misses, but he didn't give a darn."

—Accuracy of the Mannlicher-Carcano rifle:

Lane quotes from a magazine article dated October, 1964, which calls this rifle "crudely made, poorly designed, dangerous and inaccurate, unhandy, unreliable on repeat shots, has safety design fault."

The Warren report said, "The various tests showed that the Mannlicher-Carcano was an accurate rifle and that the use of a four-power scope was a substantial aid to rapid, accurate firing."

—The number of shots fired and the speed of firing:

In a pre-publication statement, Lane wrote, "In the face of irrefutable testimony showing that at least four shots were fired, the commission held that just three had been fired. Clearly, if Oswald was the lone assassin and if he employed the rifle the commission claimed he had, it would have been impossible for him to have fired more than three shots in less than six seconds."

Referring to tests of the rifle, set up to simulate conditions which the commission said Oswald would have encountered, the Warren report said, "All three of the firers in these tests were able to fire the rounds within the time period which would have been available to the assassin under those conditions."

—The question of fingerprints on the rifle:

Lane wrote, "Asked specifically about the existence of a palm print on the weapon (Sebastian) Latona (an FBI expert) replied that when he conducted his examination of the weapon at the FBI laboratory he found no trace of one."

The Warren report said, "The Dallas police developed by powder some faint ridge formations on the metal magazine. The faint ridge formations were insufficient for purposes of effecting an identification, but the latent palm print was identified as the right palm of Lee Harvey Oswald."

And so on, through the maze of testimony given by expert and by lay witnesses, through the multiplicity of details surrounding the assassination, Lane raises questions.

Was the bullet wound in Kennedy's throat an exit—or an entrance wound? If it was an entrance wound, it could not have come from the window of the building where the commission said Oswald stationed himself. If it was an exit wound, caused by a bullet fired from behind the President, would it not have been a wider, stellate gash?

Did the same bullet strike Kennedy and Connally, as the commission concluded, or were they hit by separate shots?

Referring to Connally's shirt, Lane wrote, "Although it was torn in several places and was therefore useful only as evidence, before it could be examined by the commission or the FBI, it was 'cleaned and pressed' as were the governor's jacket and trousers. Who cleaned the shirt and thereby mutilated the evidence?"

He disputes the evidence on which Oswald's movements were reconstructed from the time of the shooting to the moment when, the commission reported, Oswald killed the Dallas policeman, J.D. Tippitt.

Lane wrote, "Only by carefully selecting the least competent and most fanciful and rejecting very material testimony, including that of a deputy sheriff, was it possible for the commission to assert that it had succeeded in reconstructing every move that Oswald made."

Mexican Strike

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A strike of Mexican airport control tower workers was averted early Saturday when an agreement was reached during negotiations. The strike, called for noon Saturday, would have paralyzed all airports in the country and would have been a blow to Mexico's tourist trade.

THE CRUTCH isn't needed as Marine Lance Cpl. Perron Shinneman, who lost a leg to a Viet Cong mine, is greeted in a rain at his home airport at Sioux Falls, S.D., by his wife, Shirley. He's on 30-day convalescent leave from Bethesda naval hospital in Maryland. (AP Wirephoto)

Fire Watchers

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Police Chief George Warren of Sale, a town about 130 miles east of here, has lost patience with the hundreds of local drivers who race the town's fire engine to a blaze. He warned that the drivers would be booked for hindering firemen, speeding and parking in driveways.

Road Studies Underway In 6 Cities

BATON ROUGE (Special) — As a requirement of the Federal Highway Act of 1962, the Louisiana Department of Highways currently has comprehensive traffic studies under way in six major cities of the state, Director A. L. Stewart announced.

The Act required that beginning July 1, 1963, continuous, co-operative, comprehensive planning studies be placed in effect in cities which have a population of over 50,000. These studies are required to be in effect before any federal funds can be spent on a project. In Louisiana, this includes New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Shreveport, Monroe, Lake Charles and Lafayette.

Stewart said this plan insures that any highway planning in an urban area will take into recognition all local major street plans to avoid duplication of effect. This would prevent such occurences as construction a major highway within a few blocks of a planned major street. Highway plans and major street plans are co-ordinated so that each department knows what the other is planning in advance to avoid duplicating effort.

Under the studies, all data which is required for development of an overall major transportation plan in an urban area will be studied and the results will be used to determine what the plan should encompass. Trends of future land use in the urban area and other socio-economic factors which might govern a need for a new or improved highway will be taken into consideration, the Highway Director pointed out.

From this plan, recommendations will be made to project future traffic programs which are best suited for the urban area. Once adopted, this plan will serve all of the estimated future traffic needs.

The plan must also develop a priority list of improvements for a construction program in the urban area, and all cost estimates of the construction improvements must be included. The ultimate aim of this portion of the study is full implimentation and construction of the recommended highways and streets.

Stewart said the heads of the various political subdivisions in the urban area under study along with Highway Department officials form a policy committee to determine the best manner in which the study plans can be put into effect. These officials make the policy decisions for the study and make recommendations such as priority of the programs in the study and see that as a result of their combined effort the program is carried out in a manner to eliminate many problems between improvements started by the Highway Department, and major traffic plans carried out by the traffic planning commissions of the urban areas.

The technical staffs of the two departments form committees to study the program from the planning, location, design, and construction standpoints and make the necessary recommendations for these problems.

The Federal Highway Act also required that once completed the studies must be updated at frequent intervals to reflect any major changes that would occur, such as changes in the projected use of lands which had been included in the original study. The overall impact of the changes would be evaluated along with the proposed state and city plans and revisions and changes would be made simultaneously.

As of this time, the study in New Orleans has been completed and the studies in the five other major cities should be completed at the end of this year, Stewart said.

Judge Gives Georgia KKK Ten Years

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A Ku Klux Klansman who was convicted last month on federal charges of conspiring to violate the rights of Negroes, has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for assault with intent to murder his wife.

Joseph Howard Sims, 43, of Athens, had pleaded guilty to charges last month. His wife, Betty, mother of eight, was shot last May while working as an aide in an Athens hospital.

Officers said witnesses named Sims as the assailant and searched for him for two days before he surrendered.

Superior Court Judge James Barrow gave Sims the maximum sentence Saturday on the assault charges.

Sims also was sentenced to 10 years by U.S. Dist. Judge William A. Bootle in July after he was tried on federal conspiracy charges in the death of Lemuel Penn, a Washington, D.C. Negro educator.

IN THE second Democratic primary for the seat on the Monroe City School Board will be David Kahn, making his bid for public office. Kahn, a local insurance man and current president of the Northeast Louisiana State College Alumni Association, seeks the seat vacated by J. H. Scogin and held by gubernatorial appointment by Shelby Hill.

HOMER (Special) — The Claiborne Parish School Board budget is to be presented for adoption at a board meeting late this month or in early September, F. C. Haley, superintendent of parish schools, has announced.

Other business on the agenda includes establishment of school lunch prices and the filling of several vacancies in some parish schools before faculties will be completed.

Two Persons Injured In Area Wreck

FOREST (Special) — Two persons were injured in a one-car mishap about 7:30 a.m. Saturday on La. Hwy. 17 one and a half miles south of here.

According to State Trooper Virgil Johns, Dave Crockett, 59-year-old Epps Negro, apparently lost control of his car and hit a tree. He was en route to Eudora, Ark.

He was taken to St. Francis Hospital in Monroe with facial cuts, Johns said.

Also injured was Roosevelt Williams, 10, Negro, of Collinston. He was taken to Conway Hospital in Monroe with a fractured right leg, the officer said. Three other passengers in the car were uninjured.

Shreveport Negro Held As Suspect

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — No charges have been placed against a 23-year-old Shreveport Negro in connection with the rape of a 19-year-old white girl, according to police.

George D'Artois, commissioner of public safety here, said the rape occurred Friday during a heavy rainstorm in the girl's car in a downtown parking lot.

The girl was admitted to a hospital here, where authorities said she was not seriously injured but she was sexually molested.

Judge Gives Georgia KKK Ten Years

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A Ku Klux Klansman who was convicted last month on federal charges of conspiring to violate the rights of Negroes, has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for assault with intent to murder his wife.

Joseph Howard Sims, 43, of Athens, had pleaded guilty to charges last month. His wife, Betty, mother of eight, was shot last May while working as an aide in an Athens hospital.

Officers said witnesses named Sims as the assailant and searched for him for two days before he surrendered.

Superior Court Judge James Barrow gave Sims the maximum sentence Saturday on the assault charges.

Sims also was sentenced to 10 years by U.S. Dist. Judge William A. Bootle in July after he was tried on federal conspiracy charges in the death of Lemuel Penn, a Washington, D.C. Negro educator.

A RUNOFF on Sept. 24 will pit Robert S. Kennedy, above, in a run for a single seat on the Monroe City School Board. Kennedy, a former school teacher and former state legislator, now in the local insurance business, was the vote leader throughout the tally Saturday evening.

IN THE second Democratic primary for the seat on the Monroe City School Board will be David Kahn, making his bid for public office. Kahn, a local insurance man and current president of the Northeast Louisiana State College Alumni Association, seeks the seat vacated by J. H. Scogin and held by gubernatorial appointment by Shelby Hill.

He is a veteran of the U. S. Coast Guard.

Budget Presentation

HOMER (Special) — The Claiborne Parish School Board budget is to be presented for adoption at a board meeting late this month or in early September, F. C. Haley, superintendent of parish schools, has announced.

Other business on the agenda includes establishment of school lunch prices and the filling of several vacancies in some parish schools before faculties will be completed.

Two Persons Injured In Area Wreck

FOREST (Special) — Two persons were injured in a one-car mishap about 7:30 a.m. Saturday on La. Hwy. 17 one and a half miles south of here.

According to State Trooper Virgil Johns, Dave Crockett, 59-year-old Epps Negro, apparently lost control of his car and hit a tree. He was en route to Eudora, Ark.

He was taken to St. Francis Hospital in Monroe with facial cuts, Johns said.

Also injured was Roosevelt Williams, 10, Negro, of Collinston. He was taken to Conway Hospital in Monroe with a fractured right leg, the officer said. Three other passengers in the car were uninjured.

Shreveport Negro Held As Suspect

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — No charges have been placed against a 23-year-old Shreveport Negro in connection with the rape of a 19-year-old white girl, according to police.

George D'Artois, commissioner of public safety here, said the rape occurred Friday during a heavy rainstorm in the girl's car in a downtown parking lot.

The girl was admitted to a hospital here, where authorities said she was not seriously injured but she was sexually molested.

Teen Idols Appeal To 'Youth Power'

By TRAVIS MAYO
World Staff Writer

Teen-agers have found a soul in Beatleville after all. Beatle John Lennon, concered over the outcome of a 14-city tour, has retracted his controversial statement. The implication, however, lingers on.

Concern over the lagging appeal of Christianity has engrossed the world's great minds for many decades before this, yet their profound statements have gone virtually ignored.

Yet along came a teen-age idol who stirred more furor with an off-mark remark than any elaborately prepared statement would if accompanied by all the forboding music, limelight and wild rhetoric.

One's firest reaction is to puzzle at the cockeyed topsy-turvy world that lets such ironic things happen. But second thoughts show that this is just how it should be. Until profound statements passed down second-hand from the intellectuals have captured the imagination of the kid-on-the-corner, no wide social reaction will ever be possible.

No one realizes this fact more suggestible since their basic values and attitudes are less deeply rooted.

Lennon's quote aroused such wide interest because it was reprinted in an American teen magazine. He retracted it Thursday night and claimed his statements had lent themselves to interpretations he did not intend.

Interest had been originally aroused because adults wondered if the Beatles, who had so greatly influenced teen fashions, could through the same mob pathology change teen-age moral values.

A Feb. 9 Associated Press nationwide survey has given adults sober thoughts about the "youth power" of the nation's 24 million teen-agers who spend a collective $15 billion a year — $300 million of it on records.

In the last few years, the garment industry has been forced to re-gear production lines and sales efforts to the demands of the youth market. The granny dress craze last summer forced the industry to shift fashion lines throughout the nation.

Robert Altschuler of Columbia Records recently said the Beatles reshaped the record industry. "They upset all of the selling habits in the country. The industry was enormously shaken."

Teen-agers demanding "protest" movies revolutionized the motion picture industry. "Teenagers have replaced farmers as the economic backbone of the nation," the California Consumer Council recently reported.

If teen-age idols have that much economic power, the people wondered, what about their influence upon morals? Will the Beatnik complex become standard, they wondered — "The world has made me the way I am; society is to blame."

Adults wondered at the irony that permitted faithful dog-like devotion to be lavished on "heroes" with superficial and transient standards who offered their followers no great theme, no overall coherence, no great moral vision to justify such devotion.

Since Lennon has retracted his statement, all he can be held accountable for is want of discretion. Perhaps his sort of frivolity will be a reminder to other teen-age idols who hold a sacred office whether they like it or not.

Lennon, the 25-year-old "'intellectual" Beatle, has still to be reckoned with as an author. (He has written a book of fiction and poetry titled "About the Awful.")

His authorship entitles him to the same evaluation by the nation's critics as is given any author. It also makes him subject to the rules obeyed by public figures who are looked upon as leaders.

Traditionally, we think of a leader as a figure of great energy, great ambitions and great moral commitment who has the power to reshape his world.

But how can leaders who have no inner direction themselves hardly be expected to reshape the lives of other, except meaninglessly and quite by chance.

Christianity may be doing a frantic dance on the edge of the abyss but it still has enormous power which no one can affront with impunity. It will not be erased by any amount of meanly self-serving statements.

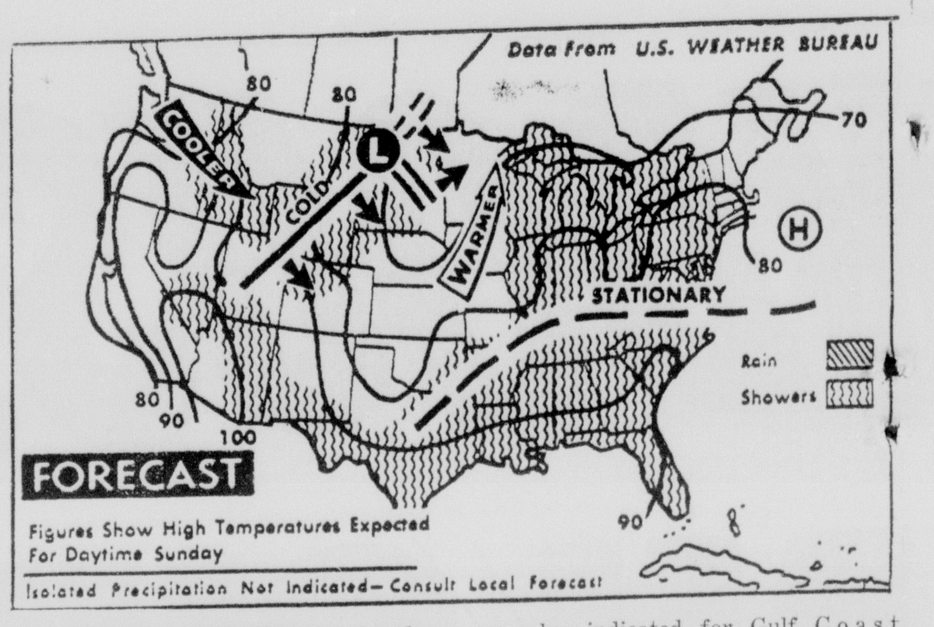
All anyone can honestly demand of John Lennon the author is that he takes seriously his obligation as philophic leader of the younger generation. He is welcome to add his personal commitment to the pile of pamphlets on emancipation, but it will have to be his heart that is revealed and not his empty head.

The substitution of new standards can sometimes be refreshing and productive, but just as often superficial and vicious.

Much that is good is hastily thrown out with the bad. The baby is thrown out with the bath water.

We live under a system in which a man need have only one quality to be a power in the world — publicity. Naturally this galls the many serious-minded writers who are understandibly depressed to find a teen-age idol so widely hailed while their far nobler writings are dashed against the stone of public apathy. It is an injustice akin to the 18th century aristocracy of birth which gave by mere accident a weak stupid man the power over a strong, intelligent one.

Serious writers are waiting to see how these free-thinking emancipators of the teen-ager will fare when the day of financial reckoning comes. It will be interesting to see how such upstart philosophers hold up when they are forced to place human values above material ones.



SCATTERED SHOWERS and thundershowers are forecast today for the eastern third of the nation, with the exception of the northeast. Showers are also indicated for Gulf Coast region, portions of northern plains and plateaus and portions of southern plains and plateaus. (AP Wirephoto)

LOUISIANA — Partly cloudy through Monday with scattered thundershowers mostly in the daytime and no important temperature changes. High today 86 to 94. Low tonight 72 to 78.

LOUISIANA DELTA — Drying conditions generally good in the daytime becoming poor at night and in showers. Dewpoints mostly in the low 70's. Probability of rain 60 per cent in the daytime and 20 per cent at night. Rainfall amounts one-quarter to three-quarters inch locally. Winds from the south at 8 to 16 mph except locally gusty in heavier showers.

ARKANSAS — Showers and scattered thundershowers today becoming widely scattered thundershowers tonight and Monday. Mostly cloudy and not much change in temperature through Monday. High today 78 to 86. Low tonight 70 to 74. Probability of rain 60 per cent today decreasing to 40 per cent tonight.

MISSISSIPPI — Showers and scattered thundershowers today with widely scattered thundershowers tonight and Monday. Mostly cloudy and not much change in temperatures through Monday. Highs today in the 80's. Lows tonight in the 70's.

MIDSOUTH HIGHLIGHTS — By late Saturday evening, Little Rock, Ark., had received 6.91 inches of rain in a 23 hour period bringing the two-day total to 9.26 inches. Rainfall amounts of one-quarter to three quarters inch fell over much of the Midsouth from southwestern Arkansas through northwestern Arkansas into the Mississippi bootheel and west Tennessee. Temperatures over the area were generally in the upper 60's and low 70's Saturday morning and ranged from 80 at Fort Smith, Ark., to 93 at Greenwood, Miss., to 94 at Monroe in the afternoon. A saturated air mass over the Midsouth area shows little promise of any change in this pattern during today with the air mass likely to produce scattered showers and thundershowers over the entire area.

Businesses Struck By Burglars

Burglars struck two Monroe establishments with a one-two punch before dawn Saturday.

Monroe police said the party made off with what owners placed at over $1000, from an office safe.

Investigators believed burglars hit Central Oil and Supply, 2300 Booth St., through a back window found open after breaking a front gate lock.

Owners said "at least $1000 was taken," with figures as high as $1800 mentioned.

Nearby, Motor Supply Warehouse, 2200 Booth St., was entered by the party through a hole made by ripping up sheet metal wall sections, and tearing through insulation.

Investigators said that apparently five desks were ransacked, and a total of about $22 reported missing.

A brief shooting scrape led Monroe police on an investigation ending with three arrests. No one was reported seriously hurt. All were Negroes.

Charged with discharging firearms and aggravated battery was David Brown, 40, 206 N. 18th St. Frank J. Sledge, 24, 1920 Adams St., was booked for discharging firearms and aggravated assault. Police charged Elijah Clark, 18, with carrying a concealed weapon.

Investigators said that according to statements taken, Brown shot at Sledge with a 22 caliber pistol. Sledge ran to Clark's residence and returned firing a .303 Enfield rifle. When arrests were made, Clark was in possession of the Enfield and a 25-Beretta pistol.

Theft of a diamond engagement ring was reported to police by Sherry Dial, 1605, Apt. C, Cole St.

She told investiagors that while she was working in St. Francis Hospital surgery ward, a yellow Florentine gold ring with a ⅜ carat diamond and two chipped diamonds was stolen.

The ring, which she said had white-gold, smooth beveled edges, was said valued at approximately $300. A thin wedding band was also missing, she said.

Investigators were probing the case late Saturday.

Monroe officers arrested three juveniles for shoplifting, they said. They were placed in the detention home, police said.

Driving while intoxicated charges were placed against Meredith Reese, 51, Rt. 1, Box 117, West Monroe.

West Monroe police, meanwhile placed like charges against Huey L. Woll, 35, of 215 S. 1st St., Everette, E. Rogers, 54, of Farmerville and Lois E. Howard, 26, of 618 Tulip, West Monroe.

MISS CAROL C. Laise will be nominated as ambassador to Nepal, President Johnson announced Saturday. Miss Laise is a career foreign service officer. She is the fifth woman to be given ambassadorial rank by Johnson. (AP Wirephoto)

Reitzell, Holcomb Win Marshal Posts

An incumbent and the son of an incumbent claimed first Democratic primary victories Saturday in races for the marshalships of Monroe and West Monroe. Winners were Richard E. Reitzell and Pete O. Holcomb, respectively.

Complete but unofficial returns late Saturday from Ward 5's 15 precincts gave Holcomb, the incumbent West Monroe marshal, 3,866 votes to 2,137 for his lone opponent, Charles W. Towers.

With the victory, Holcomb earned a third successive term in office.

Meanwhile, Reitzell, the son of the incumbent Monroe marshal, was overcoming the possibility of a runoff with his closest opponent, W. C. (Jack) Oglesbee. Complete but unofficial returns, tallied near 12:30 a.m. today, gave Reitzall a total of 6,819 votes in the 23 precincts of Wards 3 and 10.

Oglesbee tallied 4,872 votes and the third candidate in the race, G. D. (Don Glasscock, received 1,023 votes.

Out of the total of 12,624 ballots cast during the day of voting, Reitzell required 6,313 for outright victory. His final pull, 6,819, surpassed the figure by almost 500.

Reitzell claimed victory in both of the voting wards, but was hardest pressed in Ward 3 where his 2,467 votes compared with 2,090 for Oglesbee.

Holcomb, 54, of Rt. 2, Box 464, West Monroe, pegged his campaign on "continued fairness and service."

Active in youth and church work, he is on the board of directors of the West Monroe Boys Club and belongs to the Welcome Home Church. Professionally, Holcomb is president and a former vice president of the Louisiana City Marshalls' and Constables' Association.

Reitzell, a lifelong Monroyan, of 800 Erin St., is 34 and making his first bid for public office. He based his campaign on experience and knowledge of the office, through association with his father. Reitzell has been deputized for the past four years.

The late returns left the issue of a runoff in doubt until the last in the Monroe marshal's race. No report had come from Ward 10, precinct 13, by 12:15 a.m., as Reitzell sat atop a vote total of 6,472 to Oglesbee's 4,585. It was sufficient for outright victory among the ballots cast at the time.

The missing precinct was voted at Lincoln Elementary School, while the other late reporter, precinct 12, was voted at Marbles' Recreation Center.

When precinct 13 finally arrived near 12:30 a.m., it sustained Reitzell's lead, giving him 347 votes to Oglesbee's 197.

Holcomb's victory combined leads in all but three of the Ward 5 precincts. Towers won in the precinct boxes at 1, 2 and 6.

Rodeo Parade

WINNSBORO (Special) — The sixth annual Deep South Rodeo is scheduled Thursday through Saturday at the Winnsboro Rodeo Arena.

The rodeo will be produced by Dewitt and Lewis of Alexandria and is approved by the international and Louisiana Rodeo Associations.

Winnsboro Mayor W. E. Marioneaux has proclaimed the week of August 14 through August 20 as "Deep South Rodeo Week" in Winnsboro.

Rodeo activities will get underway with a parade through downtown Winnsboro starting at 4 p.m. Thursday.

SENATOR Allen J. Ellender was an easy winner in his race for Democratic nomination. He overwhelmed his two opponents throughout the state.

Bandits' Bane Does It Again With Pistol

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Claude Willsey, who has killed two robbers in his liquor store since 1952, wounded another Saturday.

Willsey, 60, told police: A young man forced him, at gunpoint, to hand over $70.

Mrs. Willsey, in a back room, grabbed a shotgun and fired.

Frightened, the gunman fled.

Willsey got a pistol, ran to the door and fired one shot.

A few minutes later Eddie Davis, Jr., 23, wounded in the left arm, was captured and taken under police guard to Highland Hospital.

He was booked on suspicion of armed robbery.

Red Defector Quits Haven In Damascus

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Red Chinese official who sought asylum at the American Embassy in Damascus last month now has "left the embassy of his own volition," the State Department announced Saturday.

The terse U.S. statement left mystery about the affair, including the possibility, not denied here, that the Peking defector had left Syria for haven in a more pro-Western land.

Officially, State Department press officer Ben Thirkield was limited to this two-sentence announcement:

"On July 26 a Chinese who identified himself as Miao Chentai of the Chinese Communist trade mission in Damascus appeared at our embassy seeking refuge.

"Mr. Miao has subsequently left the embassy of his own volition," the spokesman said.

The State Department spokesman declined to answer virtually all other questions from newsmen about the case, including how the defector had left the U.S. Embassy and where he had gone.

On several past occasions, defectors turning themselves over to American authorities for refuge have been kept under wraps for considerable periods, sometimes surfacing later in the countries where they wanted to go.

The Damascus incident had set off behind-the-scenes diplomatic activity under a coal of official silence since Miao's appearance at the American Embassy was first announced.

The Chinese ambassador was reported to have made lengthy representations at the Syrian Foreign Ministry for a return of the defector. The United States, in keeping with its long-standing practice of granting asylum, was reported unwilling to turn over Miao.

Reitzell, Holcomb Win Marshal Posts

An incumbent and the son of an incumbent claimed first Democratic primary victories Saturday in races for the marshalships of Monroe and West Monroe. Winners were Richard E. Reitzell and Pete O. Holcomb, respectively.

Complete but unofficial returns late Saturday from Ward 5's 15 precincts gave Holcomb, the incumbent West Monroe marshal, 3,866 votes to 2,137 for his lone opponent, Charles W. Towers.

With the victory, Holcomb earned a third successive term in office.

Meanwhile, Reitzell, the son of the incumbent Monroe marshal, was overcoming the possibility of a runoff with his closest opponent, W. C. (Jack) Oglesbee. Complete but unofficial returns, tallied near 12:30 a.m. today, gave Reitzall a total of 6,819 votes in the 23 precincts of Wards 3 and 10.

Oglesbee tallied 4,872 votes and the third candidate in the race, G. D. (Don Glasscock, received 1,023 votes.

Out of the total of 12,624 ballots cast during the day of voting, Reitzell required 6,313 for outright victory. His final pull, 6,819, surpassed the figure by almost 500.

Reitzell claimed victory in both of the voting wards, but was hardest pressed in Ward 3 where his 2,467 votes compared with 2,090 for Oglesbee.

Holcomb, 54, of Rt. 2, Box 464, West Monroe, pegged his campaign on "continued fairness and service."

Active in youth and church work, he is on the board of directors of the West Monroe Boys Club and belongs to the Welcome Home Church. Professionally, Holcomb is president and a former vice president of the Louisiana City Marshalls' and Constables' Association.

Reitzell, a lifelong Monroyan, of 800 Erin St., is 34 and making his first bid for public office. He based his campaign on experience and knowledge of the office, through association with his father. Reitzell has been deputized for the past four years.

The late returns left the issue of a runoff in doubt until the last in the Monroe marshal's race. No report had come from Ward 10, precinct 13, by 12:15 a.m., as Reitzell sat atop a vote total of 6,472 to Oglesbee's 4,585. It was sufficient for outright victory among the ballots cast at the time.

The missing precinct was voted at Lincoln Elementary School, while the other late reporter, precinct 12, was voted at Marbles' Recreation Center.

When precinct 13 finally arrived near 12:30 a.m., it sustained Reitzell's lead, giving him 347 votes to Oglesbee's 197.

Holcomb's victory combined leads in all but three of the Ward 5 precincts. Towers won in the precinct boxes at 1, 2 and 6.

SENATOR Allen J. Ellender was an easy winner in his race for Democratic nomination. He overwhelmed his two opponents throughout the state.

Rodeo Parade

WINNSBORO (Special) — The sixth annual Deep South Rodeo is scheduled Thursday through Saturday at the Winnsboro Rodeo Arena.

The rodeo will be produced by Dewitt and Lewis of Alexandria and is approved by the international and Louisiana Rodeo Associations.

Winnsboro Mayor W. E. Marioneaux has proclaimed the week of August 14 through August 20 as "Deep South Rodeo Week" in Winnsboro.

Rodeo activities will get underway with a parade through downtown Winnsboro starting at 4 p.m. Thursday.

Bandits' Bane Does It Again With Pistol

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Claude Willsey, who has killed two robbers in his liquor store since 1952, wounded another Saturday.

Willsey, 60, told police: A young man forced him, at gunpoint, to hand over $70.

Mrs. Willsey, in a back room, grabbed a shotgun and fired.

Frightened, the gunman fled.

Willsey got a pistol, ran to the door and fired one shot.

A few minutes later Eddie Davis, Jr., 23, wounded in the left arm, was captured and taken under police guard to Highland Hospital.

He was booked on suspicion of armed robbery.

Red Defector Quits Haven In Damascus

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Red Chinese official who sought asylum at the American Embassy in Damascus last month now has "left the embassy of his own volition," the State Department announced Saturday.

The terse U.S. statement left mystery about the affair, including the possibility, not denied here, that the Peking defector had left Syria for haven in a more pro-Western land.

Officially, State Department press officer Ben Thirkield was limited to this two-sentence announcement:

"On July 26 a Chinese who identified himself as Miao Chen-tai of the Chinese Communist trade mission in Damascus appeared at our embassy seeking refuge.

"Mr. Miao has subsequently left the embassy of his own volition," the spokesman said.

The State Department spokesman declined to answer virtually all other questions from newsmen about the case, including how the defector had left the U.S. Embassy and where he had gone.

On several past occasions, defectors turning themselves over to American authorities for refuge have been kept under wraps for considerable periods, sometimes surfacing later in the countries where they wanted to go.

The Damascus incident had set off behind-the-scenes diplomatic activity under a coal of official silence since Miao's appearance at the American Embassy was first announced.

The Chinese ambassador was reported to have made lengthy representations at the Syrian Foreign Ministry for a return of the defector. The United States, in keeping with its long-standing practice of granting asylum, was reported unwilling to turn over Miao.

Negro Candidates Make Strong Showing In Elections In Area

By DIANE TAYLOR
World Staff Writer

Over half the registred voters of East Carroll Parish were Negroes for Saturday's Democratic Primary, and a Negro, Joseph Atlas, collected 1,046 to gain a seat on that parish's school board.

Atlas's victory was certain but the Morning World could not confirm a probable runoff between a second Negro, Eric Armstrong and Lloyd Clement. Armstrong netted 989 votes, while Clement totaled 786 in the parish-wide voting.

Atlas and Armstrong, together, won more votes in their parish than all other four white persons in the school board race combined. Defeated were J. P. Brown Jr., 583; Mrs. Zaida O'Sullivan, 201; and Graham Schneider, 525.

Concordia Parish Negro Henry Montgomery, candidate for the school board, apparently led the election returns for his Ward Seven seat. Complete, but unofficial returns, gave him 849 votes while his nearest opponent, W. M. (Bill) Latham, incumbent, pulled 656 votes. Latham will join the runoff to attempt to regain the school board seat.

In the school board race for Ward Four of Madison Parish, Harrison Brown, Negro, pulled 1,680 votes while his opponent, Dorothy Provine, only gained 1,524. In another ward in the same parish, Frank Wilson, Negro, is to be in a runoff with Doris Carpenter for a school board seat. Wilson was given 106 votes, as compared with Mrs. Carpenter's 60.

Seventh Judicial District's District Attorney race in Concordia and Catahoula will involve a runoff between W. C. Falkenheiner, who gained 3,954 in both parishes, and Roy S. Halcomb, who won 2,936 votes in the two-parish district. Falkenheiner is of Vidalia and Halcomb, assistant district attorney, is of Ferriday.

LaSalle and Caldwell Parishes voted Lewis Sleeph as Democratic candidate for District Attorney for the 28th Judicial District. He will face a Republican opponent in the general election in November. He pulled 4,308 votes from the district, while his nearest foe, Cameron Minard, totaled 3,087.

Jackson and Claiborne Parishes, making up the Second Judicial District, voted W. Jackson Emmons as the Democratic nominee for District Attorney. He gained 4,560 votes and his opponent, Hal Henderson, netted 4,123.

Hunt Takes PSC Win In District

for election to the PSC post, being named there by Gov. John McKeithen when he resigned to take the governor's oath two years ago.

McKinley is a former law partner of the governor, and severed the partnership to run for the commission seat. Garrett, Claiborne Parish representative in the Louisiana House, has often been linked with former Gov. Jimmie Davis during the commission race, although he has served as a floor leader for Gov. McKeithen.

LaDart never approached Passman as voting returns came in from the 14 parishes, and crossed the one thousand vote mark only in Ouachita Parish.

For Branton, his sound defeat in Northeast Louisiana came as a hard blow. He had campaigned hard against the McKeithen administration and its candidate — Hunt — and a strong vote here would have been interpreted as a setback.

Passman Saturday night thanked voters in the Fifth Congressional District for "returning me to Congress for another term." He termed it an "expression of confidence for which I am profoundly grateful. I wish to take this occasion to reiterate my pledge that I will continue in the future, as I have done in the past, to represent all of the people of our district, fairly and impartially, to the fullest extent of my ability. I will continue to work unceasingly," Passman said, "to make our district, state and nation a creditable representative, and to reflect credit to our district.

"In pursuing this effort," he added, "I will continue to oppose, with every means at my command, excessive and deficit government spending, which destroys the purchasing power of the dollar and undermines the foundations of our economy. I will work without letup for a return to federal fiscal solvency, for the preservation of constitutional government, the protection of states' rights, the limitation of central government authority, and to halt the extremely dangerous trend toward socialism."

In his victory statement, Passman had a challenge and a warning. "We must not permit this great country of ours go to socialistic. We can win the victory, however, only if our citizens as a whole take an intelligent, active and earnest interest in government and express themselves clearly with their ballots at the polls. The continued failure of so many of our citizens to vote, as was the case in our district today, could have disastrous results," he said.

The Bienville Forrest discovery opened the first Smackover lime oil production for the state and was discovered in 1963.

Complete, but unofficial returns, gave him 849 votes while his nearest opponent, W. M. (Bill) Latham, incumbent, pulled 656 votes. Latham will join the runoff to attempt to regain the school board seat.

In the school board race for Ward Four of Madison Parish, Harrison Brown, Negro, pulled 1,680 votes while his opponent, Dorothy Provine, only gained 1,524. In another ward in the same parish, Frank Wilson, Negro, is to be in a runoff with Doris Carpenter for a school board seat. Wilson was given 106 votes, as compared with Mrs. Carpenter's 60.

Seventh Judicial District's District Attorney race in Concordia and Catahoula will involve a runoff between W. C. Falkenheiner, who gained 3,954 in both parishes, and Roy S. Halcomb, who won 2,936 votes in the two-parish district. Falkenheimer is of Vidalia and Halcomb, assistant district attorney, is of Ferriday.

LaSalle and Caldwell Parishes voted Lewis Sleeph as Democratic candidate for District Attorney for the 28th Judicial District. He will face a Republican opponent in the general election in November. He pulled 4,598 votes from the district, while his nearest foe, Cameron Minard, totaled 3,987.

Jackson and Claiborne Parishes, making up the Second Judicial District, voted W. Jackson Emmons as the Democratic nominee for District Attorney. He gained 4,560 votes and his opponent, Hal Henderson, netted 4,123.

Hunt Takes PSC Win In District

for election to the PSC post, being named there by Gov. John McKeithen when he resigned to take the governor's oath two years ago.

McKinley is a former law partner of the governor, and severed the partnership to run for the commission seat. Garrett, Claiborne Parish representative in the Louisiana House, has often been linked with former Gov. Jimmie Davis during the commission race, although he has served as a floor leader for Gov. McKeithen.

LaDart never approached Passman as voting returns came in from the 14 parishes, and crossed the one thousand vote mark only in Ouachita Parish.

For Branton, his sound defeat in Northeast Louisiana came as a hard blow. He had campaigned hard against the McKeithen administration and its candidate — Hunt — and a strong vote here would have been interpreted as a setback.

Passman Saturday night thanked voters in the Fifth Congressional District for "returning me to Congress for another term." He termed it an "expression of confidence for which I am profoundly grateful. I wish to take this occasion to reiterate my pledge that I will continue in the future, as I have done in the past, to represent all of the people of our district, fairly and impartially, to the fullest extent of my ability. I will continue to work unceasingly," Passman said, "to make our district, state and nation a creditable representative, and to reflect credit to our district.

"In pursuing this effort," he added, "I will continue to oppose, with every means at my command, excessive and deficit government spending, which destroys the purchasing power of the dollar and undermines the foundations of our economy. I will work without letup for a return to federal fiscal solvency, for the preservation of constitutional government, the protection of states' rights, the limitation of central government authority, and to halt the extremely dangerous trend toward socialism."

In his victory statement, Passman had a challenge and a warning. "We must not permit this great country of ours go to socialistic. We can win the victory, however, only if our citizens as a whole take an intelligent, active and earnest interest in government and express themselves clearly with their ballots at the polls. The continued failure of so many of our citizens to vote, as was the case in our district today, could have disastrous results," he said.

The Bienville Forrest discovery opened the first Smackover lime oil production for the state and was discovered in 1963.

You'll Find The Answer At Grand Teton Top In Wyoming

EDITOR'S NOTE — Climbing the Grand Teton, a granite spire 13,766 feet high, a writer asks himself, "What am I doing up here?" And that's a perfectly natural question, says Glen Exum, who pioneered the route up the Wyoming peak. But the answer is at the top, and don't get careless coming down.

By BILL STALL

MOOSE, Wyo. (AP) — This Wall Street leads almost nowhere — with 2,000 feet of nothing but thin mountain air between you and the rocks below.

It is an up-sloping ledge along the flank of 13,766-foot Grand Teton peak. Wall Street narrows to a tiny shelf of rock at the corner of the Exum Ridge, one of the steep, jagged shoulders of the mountain.

A lug or two of climbing boot, nervous fingertips on cold, hard granite, and utter faith in 7-16ths-inch nylon rope held us — me and three other novice climbers — to the mountain.

You look down to grope for the inch of protruding rock and the dizzy void below seems infinite. But you are too busy probing with a worried foot for that elusive black rock to fully appreciate the view.

A Long Step

Then, a long swinging step brought us out onto the serrated Exum Ridge of Grand Teton, the master of the spectacular Teton range, a center of mountaineering in the United States.

We four and our two guides were strangers 72 hours before. This day we were a team. Each potentially held the other's life in his hands through the umbilical cord of the climbing rope.

We were inching up the Exum Ridge just 35 years to the day, July 15, that Glen Exum pioneered the now-popular route up the Grand Teton, a Gothic spire of granite rising 7,000 feet above the valley of the Grand Teton National Park known as Jackson Hole.

Even tougher climbing lay ahead. In some spots, with no holds, we had to rely entirely on the friction of our hands and boots on the steep rock. But success in rounding the Wall Street corner, with its frightful exposure, revived our confidence.

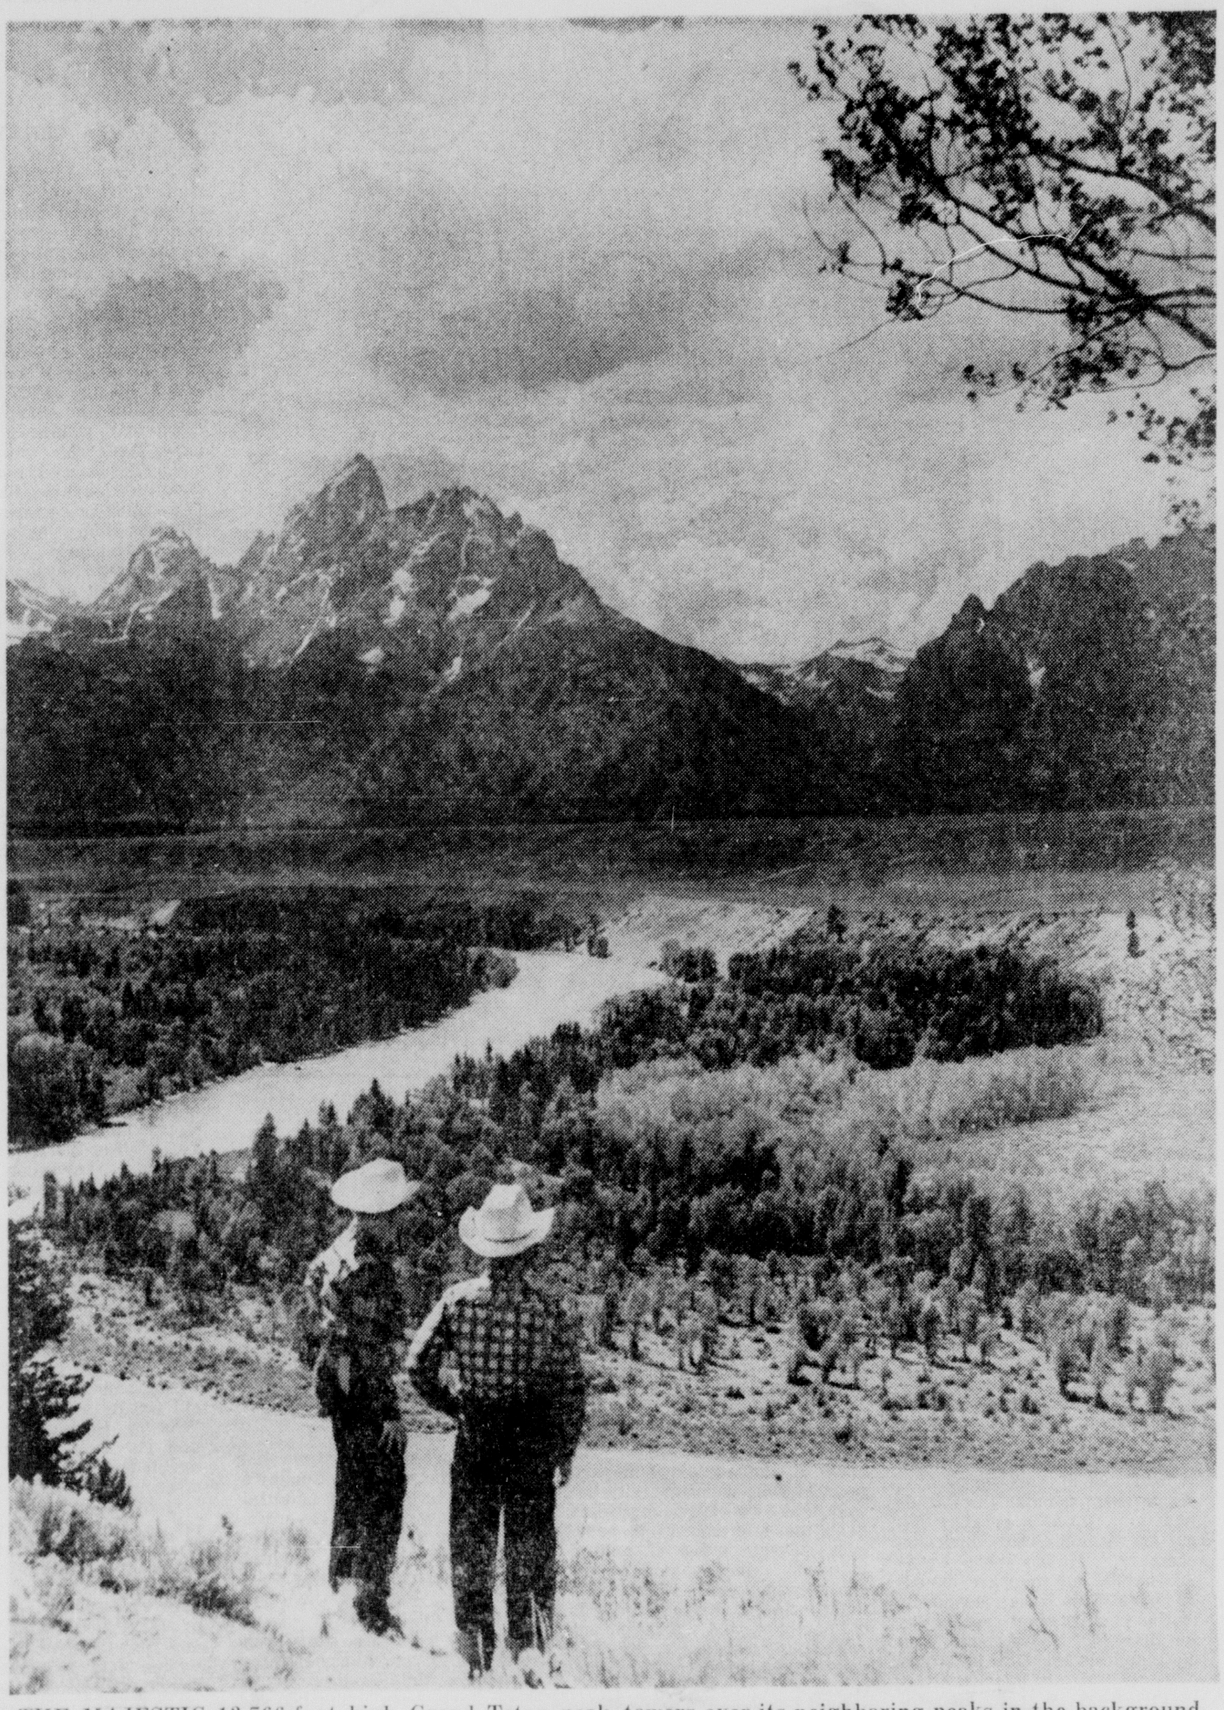
The party included guides Dean Moore, 27, of Jackson, Wyo. a ski patrolman in wintertime, and Dave Dornan, 29, of Moose, a world ranging climber now studying for a doctorate in philosophy at the University of California; Lt. Col. Amos C. Matthews, 38, just back from a 10½-month tour as commander of an engineering battalion in Viet Nam; Richard Reininger, 40, Bloomfield, Mich., an air freight company executive in Detroit; David Clifton, 28, a Warren, Pa., civil servant; Walter Uhlman, 38, a pathologist from Bryan Mawr, Pa., and myself, 29, of Reno.

How did we get there?

First Day's Task

The first day's task is a seven-mile hike up a switch - back trail leading through boulder - strewn Garnett Canyon and under the face of 12,798-foot Middle Teton Peak. The trail, skirting Middle Teton Glacier, brings you to the Lower Saddle, the 11,500-foot pass between the Middle and Grand Tetons.

We huffed and puffed into base camp hut on the lower Saddle at 5:30 p.m. and gratefully slipped out of a 25-pound packs stuffed with food, warm clothing, cameras and a confusion of other gear.



THE MAJESTIC 13,766-foot high Grand Teton peak towers over its neighboring peaks in the background. The area is considered one of the finest for climbing in the world because of the solid granite and fair weather. Glen Exum, America's veteran mountain guide, considers the Grant Teton a tougher climb than the famed Swiss Matterhorn, given equal weather conditions. That's the Snake River, at a point near Jackson, Wyo., in the foreground. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

The jagged rock ridges and sheer walls of the Grand Teton soared to the right. Below, to the east, the setting sun cast ragged shadows of the Teton range for miles across Jackson Hole and onto the foothills of the Gros Vetre Mountains. To the west, dusk filtered into the geometric cultivated farming valleys of Idaho. The last rays of the sun bathed the Grand Teton in a warm golden glow.

Above was a world of rock and ice and snow, where the only permanent living thing was a skiff of lichen making random patterns on the rock.

At 8 p.m. we were in sleeping bags and soon asleep.

The windup alarm clock shattered our sleep at 3:15 a.m. By 4 a.m. with the gray just nudging the black from the sky, we were on the upward trail — six figures bundled against the freezing wind, trudging along like ghosts.

After Wall Street, the climbing was easier, even though the hazards remain as real and everpresent. A stretch called the "Friction Pitch," is listed by Leigh Ortenburger's climbing guide book as perhaps the most difficult portion of the ridge. There is virtually no crack or knob on the rock to gain a hand or foothold.

Top Of World

An hour later, after several more difficult pitches, we broke onto the sunbathed Summit Ridge. About 8:30 a.m., there was nowhere else to go. We were on the top of our world.

The panting eased and fatigue seeped out of our arms and legs as we scanned the landscape flowing from the base of the mountain 7,000 feet below. Peaks could be seen 60 miles or more away on the cloudless horizon. The sky above, unsoiled by haze or smog, was the richest of blues. Then the descent — with great care.

Accidents, injury and death haunt the route down more than the ascent because of a tendency to be careless after reaching the summit goal.

A key to the descent of the Grand Teton is a 120-foot rappel from high on the peak. The climbers lower themselves down a cliff by weaving a double strand of rope over their shoulders. The friction created permits an easy, but spectacular, controlled drop — the last 60 feet of it suspended in air over an over-hanging portion of the cliff.

We were back to the hut about noon. After lunch came the long trudge down the mountain base to the valley and a certificate verifying the ascent.

Of 2½ million park visitors last year, rangers approved 1,329 climbers for ascents of the major Teton peaks. Climbers ranged in age from two 5-year-old boys to a 68-year-old man. Two persons were killed on the peaks in 1965; fifteen in the past decade.

Solo climbing is prohibited. The Park Service maintains a crack rescue team in case a party gets into trouble.

Exum, who has climbed the Matterhorn, compares the famed Swiss peak with the Grand Teton, but considers the Grand a tougher climb, given equal weather conditions.

Friti of Fyzell, veteran climber and geologist, expressed the majesty of the Grand Tetons this way:

Life Of Wiley Post, His Aerial Works Recalled

By LARRY PHIPPS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — The short, stocky pilot with the patch-covered eye grinned at his lanky companion and revved up the engine of his second-hand Lockheed Orion for another take-off into the Alaskan fog. Only 15 miles to go to Point Barrow.

Th Eskimo, who had just given the men directions to Point Barrow, said trouble began almost as soon as the pontoon plane lifted from the waters of Refuge Bay. The engine faltered and then quit.

The red-winged monoplane, only 50 feet into the air, wheeled to the right and plunged into the icy waters off the bleak shoreline.

The Eskimo and his wife were the only witnesses that day — Aug. 15, 1935 — to the accident which killed famed humorist Will Rogers and Wiley Post, globe-circling pioneer of the air.

Both men have achieved their own immortality. In the 31 years since Post died, air travel has moved into space and men in capsules span the earth in hours.

It took Post and his navigator, Harold Gatty, 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes in 1931 for their record-smashing flight around the world in the Winnie Mae.

Two years later, Post made man's first globe-girdling solo flight. It took 7 days, 18 hours and 49 minutes — again in the Winnie Mae. The plane now rests in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

But the contributions of the Oklahoma boy, who left school at the age of 14, weren't limited to endurance records.

Some of the technical achievements Post marked up have made little-publicized contributions to modern flight.

For example, his interest in high altitude flight led Post — working with B. F. Goodrich Co. engineers — to design a workable pressurized flight suit.

The first suit ruptured and was discarded after initial tests. The second suit stuck to Post's 5-foot-5 frame and had to be cut away. But the third suit worked, and it bore a startling resemblence to the suits worn by America's astronauts today.

The suit, entered through a large neck opening to which a helmet was affixed, was heated by tubes wound around the airplane engine. A portable tank supplied oxygen.

Perhaps one of the more practical discoveries made by the pioneer aviator was during another 1934 flight.

Over Chicago, Post ran into mechanical trouble at 40,000 feet and failed in his effort to crack the 47,000-foot altitude record held by an Italian pilot.

But he did find that between 25,000 and 40,000 feet he had been able to shoot the speed of the Winnie Mae from a normal 170 miles per hour to more than 300 mph. Post had found the then only-suspected jet stream.

"I'm convinced that airplanes can travel at terrific speeds at more than 30,000 feet by getting into those fast air currents," Post said later. "Shortly, we will be able to fly the mail across the country in less than seven hours."

Post's solo flight around the world also helped prove the reliability of the variable pitch propeller, in common use today. The pitch prop, distrusted by many flyers in those days, enabled pilots to take off in short distances and make efficient speed in thin air.

Other techniques were made a permanent part of flight practices as a result of tests made by Post on his solo voyage.

He managed the difficult endurance run by heavy reliance on an automatic pilot, newly-developed by Elmer and Lawrence Sperry. He maintained his direction and location by use of an automatic radio direction finder.

Woman's Worry, Like Her Work, Seems Never Done

Women always worry, and midsummer 1966 finds them with a full bag. If it's not the bomb, the draft or Viet Nam it's morals, money, race or religion. But underneath it all, a survey finds, there's a strong current of optimism, faith in the basic goodness of people.

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

Woman's worry, like her work, is never done.

In midsummer, 1966, the mood of the American woman is confident — even optimistic — yet she feels anxious about many things:

A coed in Jackson, Miss. —

"It worries me just to know that any minute a bomb could be dropped and wipe out everything and everyone."

A working wife in Honolulu —

"Financially, we seem to be trapped. I think I'd like to walk away from it all and start over."

A mother of four in Wichita Kan. — "Being a Negro, my chief problem is that Negroes are not accepted in jobs. They don't have equal rights."

A New Haven, Conn., woman whose son faces the draft — "I think any mother of a teen-age boy would feel panic at this time."

Never Before

Never before, perhaps, have women had so much they could worry about all at once. A nationwide Associated Press survey found them troubled about war, racial tension, taxes, credit spending, the cost of living, educating their children, the welfare state, crime in the streets, finding enough time to do all required of them, coping with what a majority felt was a declining morality.

Fashion annoyed some.

Snapped a Millbrae, Calif., housewife: "The manner of dress of women, some on the society page, makes you wonder why they bother to put anything on at all."

Yet with all their anxieties, most women expressed confidence in their future and that of their children.

"Why not?" asked Mrs. Mickey Barricklow, wife of a Juneau, Alaska, bartender. "This old world offers more and more each year in the way of educational opportunities, higher standards of living and better working conditions for all."

Other grounds for optimism:

"There are a lot of capable people running the world." — a young registered nurse in Bismarck, N.D.

"Because I feel I'm in control of raising my children." — Mrs. Thomas Marshall of Reno, Nev.

Towering above all their worries, the survey showed, was a deep concern about world peace and the war in Viet Nam.

Mothers with sons of draft age, wives of men in military reserves, women worried about the spread of hostilities, all seemed in agreement with Janet Miller of State College, Pa., who wanted "all the American boys back home where they belong."

Sharply Divided

They were sharply divided, though, over just what to do about the Vietnamese war.

A 24-year-old Cleveland secretary, urged a "real hard line approach" — heavy bombing of North Viet Nam and the trial of captured North Vietnamese as war criminals.

Jane M. Alexander of Dillsburg, Pa., a practicing attorney and a member of the State House of Representatives, said she was concerned about Americans dying in Viet Nam but believed we must "continue the policy of restricting communism from expanding in Asia."

"I don't think we should be in there," said Nora Halls, Highland Park, Mich., widow with three married children. "It's hard to see how we're helping in Viet Nam when we have to use tear gas to drive women and children from a tunnel. We should get out. We're not going to solve anything by staying."

If there was division over Viet Nam, there was unanimity at home — over money. Most people agreed they didn't have enough, or as Mrs. Dwayne Brua of Reno, Nev., put it: "The money you earn isn't keeping up with what you have to buy."

"I hope, if I live long enough, said a youngish Atlanta divorcee with four daughters and a mother to support, "to be out of debt someday, but many of my friends' husbands say they just intend to live on credit till they die, which is what is encouraged nowadays."

Few Thought Fuel

For a thoughtful — and well heeled — few, affluence itself was a problem:

Mrs. Joseph A. McLean, wife of an Alaskan insurance broker, felt lucky that "we had it so good," but was concerned that her children "are growing up taking so much for granted. "We are so glad to be able to give them things, we forget that they need to work to grow up as responsible adults."

About civil rights movement, comment varied.

A young Jackson, Miss., high school teacher said: "I seem to be constantly aware of the impression 'outsiders' have of Mississippi. I definitely plan to do my part towards improving the racial situation."

Maureen Ross, a young Negro widow with two schooi-age sons, who works for the California State Employes Association in Sacramento, Calif., said: "I think the pendulum has swung so that it's the Negro element that can innitiate the trouble. You've given him the excuse. Those things that could trigger violence are irresponsible legislation, giving police powers where there shouldn't be be police powers."

Taking an optimistic long view was Mary Ellen Lewis, a Negro mother of four, who works in a local community action program in Wichita: "I feel that eventually we all will be treated as human beings. Since I've worked with the poverty program I've learned that poor Negroes and poor whites have much the same problems.

A majority of mothers interviewed seemed satisfied with the education their children were getting. Nearly all wanted their youngsters to go on to college — if they desired — but many were worried where the money would come from to pay for the higher education.

Amy Larkin, mother of two, who writes a local advice column in Atlanta newspapers, said children were kept too busy, without time to "wander around, took at blades of grass, to daydream between TV and school."

Accused Parents

She also accused parents of putting too much pressure on their children to make good grades because "some parents feel an all-A child is as good as a Cadillac as a status symbol among their friends."

Among the married women interviewed a sizable number worked outside the home, some happily "We have been able to get things for our home and for ourselves that we wouldn't have been able to otherwise" and some regretfully "I feel I'm needed fulltime at home, but we need the money."

Most of them said they had not personally felt discrimination against women in their jobs — and they thought it decreasing generally — but they could cite examples of unequal pay.

Mrs. Elena Seipke, daytime secretary, night time college student majoring in education and fulltime wife of a Detroit fireman, said, "They still don't give women much administrative authority. Women are not promoted on an equal basis with men."

Commented an Atlanta woman who supports five people: "I've run into carping, back-stabbing criticism being female in a predominantly male world, and I think it's mainly the male ego."

The controversial teen population came in for criticism — spoiled, lazy, undisciplined, disrespectful — but a majority of women in the survey said they thought the kids were a pretty responsible group:

"A wholesome bunch. The exceptions made the news" — Kay Hamm, Cleveland housewife.

"Most of them real great and well educated." A Bismark, N.D. mother."

"Teenagers are growing up in world full of turmoil and are rebelling by wild behavior — ridiculous hair and clothes styles, but they'll make out. It's more delinquent parents than delinquent children," — the working wife of a Dallas sales manager, with two grown sons.

More Aware

"They're more aware of phoniness in our society than we are. Today's answers aren't enough for them anymore." Another Dallas housewife.

Public and private morality is on a lower plane than it was say, 30 years ago, a majority of the women agreed.

Why?

"Morality is becoming secondary to pleasure. Patriotism, Christianity, old fashioned virtues, and self dignity are ridiculed" from Mississippi.

"Too much freedom — automobiles, liquor in all forms and America's obsession with sex." — Texas.

In the middle of the road was Gloria Littman, mother of two boys, wife of a Dallas tool plant manager: "It's hard to say whether sex morality has loosened up or whether people are just less afraid and ashamed about what has been going on all along, and openly discuss these matters now."

Some even held out for contemporary moves:

"Morality is higher because people are more honest with themselves," said Mrs. Alexander Iantuono of East Hartford, Conn., wife of an aircraft engineer.

Mildred Thompson, retired dean of Vasser College now living in Atlanta, looked reflectively back over her 80 years to decide: "I'm not disturbed by feeling we are more immoral. With my study of history and my continued reading, I feel we're moving and facing the future as we should, as a nation."

You'll Find The Answer At Grand Teton Top In Wyoming

EDITOR'S NOTE — Climbing the Grand Teton, a granite spire 13,766 feet high, a writer asks himself, "What am I doing up here?" And that's a perfectly natural question, says Glen Exum, who pioneered the route up the Wyoming peak. But the answer is at the top, and don't get careless coming down.

By BILL STALL

MOOSE, Wyo. (AP) — This Wall Street leads almost nowhere — with 2,000 feet of nothing but thin mountain air between you and the rocks below.

It is an up-sloping ledge along the flank of 13,766-foot Grand Teton peak. Wall Street narrows to a tiny shelf of rock at the corner of the Exum Ridge, one of the steep, jagged shoulders of the mountain.

A lug or two of climbing boot, nervous fingertips on cold, hard granite, and utter faith in 7-16ths-inch nylon rope held us — me and three other novice climbers — to the mountain.

You look down to grope for the inch of protruding rock and the dizzy void below seems infinite. But you are too busy probing with a worried foot for that elusive black rock to fully appreciate the view.

A Long Step

Then, a long swinging step brought us out onto the serrated Exum Ridge of Grand Teton, the master of the spectacular Teton range, a center of mountaineering in the United States.

We four and our two guides were strangers 72 hours before. This day we were a team. Each potentially held the other's life in his hands through the umbilical cord of the climbing rope.

We were inching up the Exum Ridge just 35 years to the day, July 15, that Glen Exum pioneered the now-popular route up the Grand Teton, a Gothic core of granite rising 7,000 feet above the valley of the Grand Teton National Park known as Jackson Hole.

Even tougher climbing lay ahead. In some spots, with no holds, we had to rely entirely on the friction of our hands and boots on the steep rock. But success in rounding the Wall Street corner, with its frightful exposure, revived our confidence.

The party included guides Dean Moore, 27, of Jackson, Wyo., a ski patrolman in wintertime, and Dave Dornan, 29, of Moose, a world ranging climber now studying for a doctorate in philosophy at the University of California; Lt. Col. Amos C. Matthews, 38, just back from a 30-month tour as commander of an engineering battalion in Viet Nam; Richard Remnger, 40, Bloomfield, Mich., an air freight company executive in Detroit, David Clifton, 28, a Warren, Pa., civil [illegible], Walter Uhlman, 38, a pathologist from Bryan Mawr, Pa., and myself, of Reno.

How did we get there?

First Day's Task

The first day's task is a seven-mile hike up a switch-back trail leading through boulder-strewn Garnett Canyon and under the face of 12,798-foot Middle Teton Peak. The trail, skirting Middle Teton Glacier, brings you to the Lower Saddle, the 11,500-foot pass between the Middle and Grand Tetons.

We huffed and puffed into base camp hut on the lower Saddle at 5:30 p.m. and gratefully slipped out of a 25-pound packs stuffed with food, warm clothing, cameras and a confusion of other gear.

The jagged rock ridges and sheer walls of the Grand Teton soared to the right. Below, to the east, the setting sun cast ragged shadows of the Teton range for miles across Jackson Hole and onto the foothills of the Gros Vetre Mountains. To the west, dusk filtered into the geometric cultivated farming valleys of Idaho. The last rays of the sun bathed the Grand Teton in a warm golden glow.

Above was a world of rock and ice and snow, where the only permanent living thing was a skiff of lichen making random patterns on the rock.

At 8 p.m. we were in sleeping bags and soon asleep.

The windup alarm clock shattered our sleep at 3:15 a.m. By 4 a.m. with the gray just nudging the black from the sky, we were on the upward trail — six figures bundled against the freezing wind, trudging along like ghosts.

After Wall Street, the climbing was easier, even though the hazards remain as real and everpresent. A stretch called the "Friction Pitch," is listed by Leigh Ortenburger's climbing guide book as perhaps the most difficult portion of the ridge. There is virtually no crack or knob on the rock to gain a hand or foothold.

Top Of World

An hour later, after several more difficult pitches, we broke onto the sun-bathed Summit Ridge. About 8:30 a.m., there was nowhere else to go. We were on the top of our world.

The panting eased and fatigue seeped out of our arms and legs as we scanned the landscape flowing from the base of the mountain 7,000 feet below. Peaks could be seen 60 miles or more away on the cloudless horizon. The sky above, unsoiled by haze or smog, was the richest of blues. Then the descent — with great care.

Accidents, injury and death haunt the route down more than the ascent because of a tendency to be careless after reaching the summit goal.

A key to the descent of the Grand Teton is a 120-foot rappel from high on the peak. The climbers lower themselves down a cliff by weaving a double strand of rope over their shoulders. The friction created permits an easy, but spectacular, controlled drop — the last 60 feet of it suspended in air over an over-hanging portion of the cliff.

We were back to the hut about noon. After lunch came the long trudge down the mountain base to the valley and a certificate verifying the ascent.

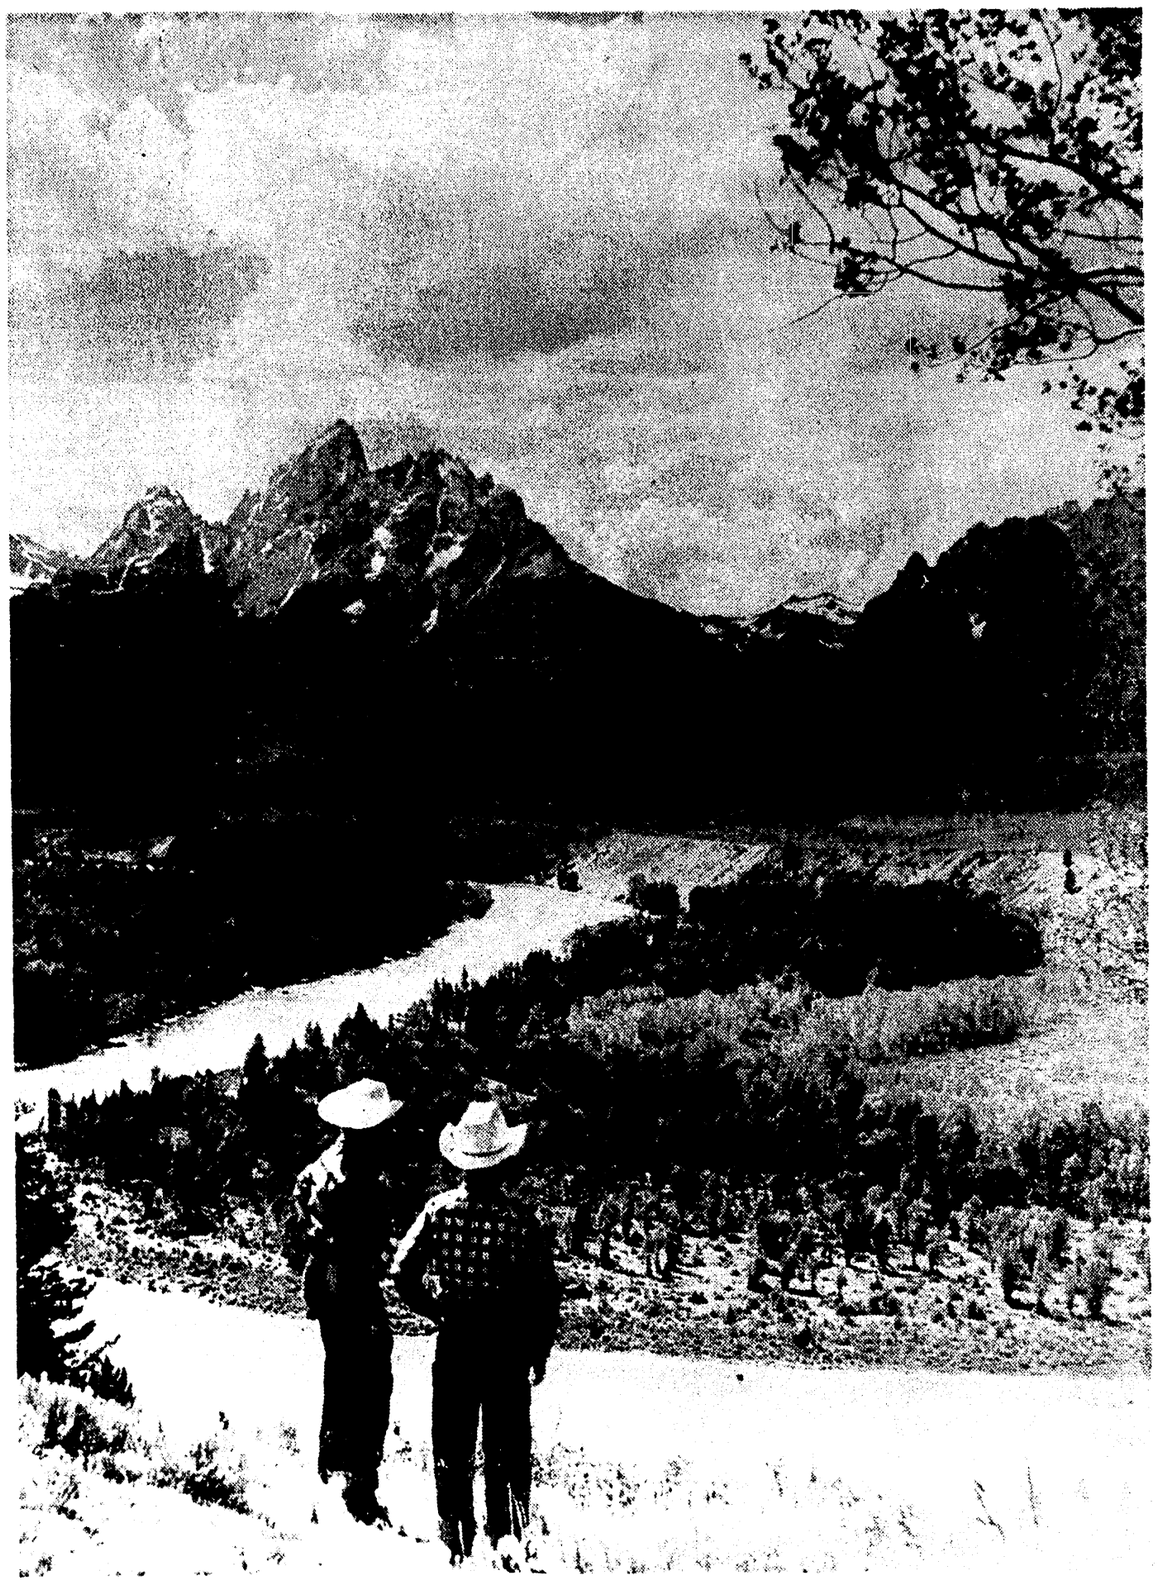
Of 2½ million park visitors last year, rangers approved 1,329 climbers for ascents of the major Teton peaks. Climbers ranged in age from two 5-year-old boys to a 68-year-old man. Two persons were killed on the peaks in 1965; fifteen in the past decade.

Solo climbing is prohibited. The Park Service maintains a crack rescue team in case a party gets into trouble.

Exum, who has climbed the Matterhorn, compares the famed Swiss peak with the Grand Teton, but considers the Grand a tougher climb, given equal weather conditions.

Friti of Fyzell, veteran climber and geologist, expressed the majesty of the Grand Tetons this way:

"More evident here than in many of the great cathedrals of men is the Gothic note. It attains supreme expression in the figures of the peaks themselves that — towering above all else, with pointed summits — direct one's vision and thoughts yet higher.



THE MAJESTIC 13,766-foot high Grand Teton peak towers over its neighboring peaks in the background. The area is considered one of the finest for climbing in the world because of the solid granite and fair weather. Glen Exum, America's veteran mountain guide, considers the Grant Teton a tougher climb than the famed Swiss Matterhorn, given equal weather conditions. Louisiana And New Industry

The Gulf South Research Institute (GSRI) has just issued an interim report on a long range study of Louisiana's economic development and what must be done to create an increasing flow of outside industry into this state. It should be studied by every public official — state, parish and municipal — and especially by the members of the legislature.

For, in effect, the report means that unless long-range programs for reform of the state's tax structure and its education system — as well as in some other fields — are instituted, the present spurt of a record billion dollars in new industry during Governor J. McKeithen's first two years may run dry through progressive action and competition from such states as Arkansas, Texas and Mississippi.

GSRI points out, for one thing, that entirely aside from various faculty basic and long-standing governmental structures in Louisiana, this state spends only 44 cents per capita per year in seeking new industry where Mississippi spends $1.26, Texas $1.04 and Arkansas 84 cents. Putting it another way, Louisiana accounts for only six-tenths of one per cent of the money spent by organized industrial development groups of all of the states, although it accounts for 1.8 per cent of the national population, 1.8 per cent of the national income, 1.5 percent of the manufacturing employment and 1.5 percent of the investment in new plants and equipment by manufacturers.

Louisiana has an excellent state government organization to seek new industry — the Department of Commerce and Industry — the report says, but unless there are vast long-range reforms, especially in such viral fields as taxation, its effort in time may prove in vain.

What GSRI says on the entire subject of what Louisiana needs and must do to increase — or even maintain — the present McKeithen influx of outside industry applies especially to north Louisiana where there has been a fine spurt of new industry in both the Shreveport and Monroe areas. The report should be heeded as a warning that if we sit back in smug complacency over what has been achieved, we may find our area, at some not distant future time, drifting back to past days when very few industries cared even to consider our part of the state.

GSRI urges the formation of district or regional industrial development areas throughout the state made up of groups of parishes comparable to each other in general character. These regional groups would have studies made — by experts — of the types of industry whose needs can be met in their areas. The regional groups would then seek only industries whose needs they can fulfill and would — especially — take advantage of their political authority to vote local bond issues to get industries for which their areas are suited. GSRI says Louisiana has failed badly in not taking advantage of the local bond issuing power — a power which Shreveport used, for example, so effectively in getting the present American Machine and Foundary Beaird plant.

"Without regional development districts." GSRI says, "Louisiana's industrial development will be hindered." Mississippi pioneered this regional, or district, approach and it now is being taken up in Texas, Arkansas and Georgia. Mississippi has six districts ranging from 3 to 28 counties (Parishes) each. Twelve permanent staff members are used.

GSRI pointed out that in education Louisiana is last among the 50 states in literacy and 48th in state and local expenditures for all types of education. This hampers development of skilled labor, for one thing. The state ranks well up in total education spending per capita, but seemingly has not gotten the education the money justified. (A committee of 100, created by the Legislature recently made a comprehensive report to the State Department of Education on the state's secondary and elementary curriculum programs and needs which, if put into effect, would remedy many of the present faults.)

GSRI hits hard at the overall tax structure of the state. But, here again, the constitutional amendment sponsored by Governor McKeithen in 1964 and passed by the people of the state has been a boon. Known as the "right to profit" amendment, it provides that property taxes on industry cannot be higher than for other taxable property in the same area. This is praised by GSRI. This amendment specifically resulted in a new multimillion dollar Texaco plant in South Louisiana and undoubtedly influenced location in north Louisiana of Western Electric, International Telephone and Telegraph, Baifield and Ford.

But where GSRI hits hard on taxes is in the inequity of assessment ratios in the various parishes — which the state constitution forbids — and the tremendous percentage of property exempted from any taxation.

On taxes, the report says in part:

"Axailable data indicates the existence of substantial inequities in the Louisiana property tax structure, as viewed by industry. The use of comparatively low assessment ratios, coupled with an extremely liberal homestead and veterans' exemptions programs, results in the exemption of 62 percent of the residential property of the state from property taxes. Too much property in Louisiana is not even listed on the tax rolls. Recent studies by state agencies and private groups have revealed wide variations in industrial assessment practices within the state.

"Until equity and stability are introduced into the tax legislation of the state, industrial development will not proceed at an optional level, despite the inducements of tax exemptions and financial incentives.

"The relationship between taxation programs and a long-term tax improvement program based on extensive research would undoubtedly promote the stable and equitable tax climate desired by industry."

The Morning World fully agrees with these GSRI recommendations — in fact we have been urging some of them for years. The tax study proposed by GSRI should be made. But if the full benefit is to be gained we will have to have a legislature that will stand up on its feet, do what has to be done, and not bow down to political pressure from various tax assessors, or to interests which benefit from present faults in our tax structure.

Even now, the State Tax Commission is instructed by the constitution to see that property assessment ratios are equalized in the various parishes and to make annual studies of such ratios. It never has done either.

The Gulf South Research Institute is a non-political chartered non-profit corporation organized by 100 leading Louisiana citizens in fields of labor, business, industry and education as a science institute and research center for any citizen center for any clients wishing its services, for fees. It was initiated by the Council for a Better Louisiana (CABL) and given full support by Governor McKeithen and the legislature through state financial backing for the Louisiana Science Foundation — this state financial investment will be returned in time.

The present GSRI report is an interim document, outlining subjects needing attention rather than proposing full solutions. It is also an excellent guide to what industry, seeking a plant site, wants from a state or local area. It will be followed by individual detailed reports on various categories touched on in the interim document.

Beatles Belitting

803 South 5th Street
Monroe, Louisiana

To the Editor:

People of this city, or for that matter, of the whole country, are currently "putting down" a group called The Beatles because of the stirring words spoken by John Lennon, leader of the group, which are as follows . . . "Christianity will go. It will vanish and shrink . . . We're more popular than Jesus now . . . Jesus was all right, but his disciples were thick and ordinary." Maybe these words are harsh, but they are intended to be. Before we, the people of this country, ban the Beatles for these words, we should stop and examine the total situation. Are these words, in part, true? Is this what is really happening to our society today?

The distinguished Christian and social writer, Haskell Miller, has this to say of our modern society. "Every family actually lives its religion, whatever it may be. The family that is always trying to "outdo the Joneses", that exalts itself in prideful arrogance. or that puts bigotry, sensory pleasure, money, conspicious consumption, or maximum reward for minimum efforts at the top of the value list shows that its religion is something far from the Spirit of Christ."

People of this country, is John Lennon's real purpose for making his statement to make us open our eyes? Is he really in truth, trying to wake us up? Are we all guilty of putting material possessions and social prestige before our Christ? The head of the sociology department at Harvard University has said that we are functioning near the tale end of a bankrupt, sensate stage of culture in which value convictions are deteriorating and in which criminality and many other forms of personal and social disorganization are best "symptons and consequences of the crisis."

John Lennon was correct when he said that Jesus's disciples were thick and ordinary, but these conditions existed before the Spirit of Christ began to work within them. This Spirit of Christ made his disciples extraordinary people and it can do the same thing for us today if we will just let it and believe in our Savior. Love the material things of this world, but, for your own salvation, wake up to the fact that Christ is supreme. Love your Christ and put nothing before him.

To the Ediotr:

In support of Mrs. Maxwell's letter to the editor in Sunday's World concerning your editorial on Dr. Chavarria and his treatment for arthritis, I would like to say that she is one hundred per cent correct in calling your attention to the way the facts were misinterpreted.

Johnson Gets Name Of Economic Bully

PRESIDENT JOHNSON is an economic bully rather than an economic statesman. His reaction to wage demands by the airline machinists and to price raises by the steel companies is a study in purely political reflexes without a trace of true concern for the general welfare.

In the airline strike, the President's fact finding commission recommended a settlement roughly close to the President's own "non - inflationary" guidelines for wage hikes. The union snubbed that. The President then "demanded" a settlement, and the union's officials accepted a wage level that clearly went beyond the President's guidelines.

THEN THE President took national television time which he commands so frequently and piously claimed that for "special reasons" the airline wage level miraculously wasn't inflationary after all.

In short, in the face of pressure from a handful of union bosses, the President turned somersaults. Even when the union membership thumbed their noses at him he still passed the buck to Congress, demanding that they, not the White House, take on the authority of actually ordering the machinists back to work in order to protect the transportation lifeblood of the nation.

Let me make abundantly clear that in none of these comments do I intend to say that the President's guidelines either for wages or for prices amount to anything more than politically inspired nonsense. I happen to believe in a market-place, black - ink economy, not in a red-tape, red-ink economy.

WE SEE THAT THE President would even weasel on his own economic rules rather than really lock horns with a voting bloc. His economic policies are inspired by how many votes they are worth, not by principles or by deep concern for the nation's well-being. His reaction to the steel price increase confirms this.

Here, as in every single case where businessmen have been concerned, the President was quick to paint the steel makers as villains. His economic advisers publicly denounced the price increase — without a word about the pressures that force such increases. And many of those pressures are caused by the top - heavy weight of government spending.

THERE WAS EVEN the fantastic suggestion that the steel makers should have consulted the White House before announcing their increases. But if two steel makers got together on a price matter they would risk a jail sentence, and here is the White House suggesting the same sort of getting together.

Most significantly, however, was the carefully cultivated role of helplessness the President adopted. His spokesmen let it be known that the President was powerless to make the steel makers withdraw the price raise.

Obviously, the President wants to inspire his rubber-stamp followers in Congress to pass some new law that would give the President police power over American prices — and probably profits and wages as well.

Who is the real victim of these Presidential maneuverings? You are. If you earn your livelihood in some area of American business or industry, as a union member or not, these Presidential power plays threaten you directly. There is proof in every corner of the world that when government throttles an economy, the economy slows down, stagnates and eventually fails. It is your freedom and your future that Lyndon Johnson is spending so wildly to satisfy his political plans.

'Minute Men' Drop Office Attractions

A BONE - CHILLING story turned up the other day in the Wall Street Journal. It dealt with the "Minute Men," who are not, as you might suppose, either Texas vigilantes or the producers of quick - frozen fish. These are American business executives who save minutes, and the point of the story was to tell how they do it.

One young executive used to have some fine Winslow Homer prints in his office. He liked them; but he took them all down and stripped the walls bare. And why was this? He suddenly realized that he was losing as much as five minutes per visitor in conversation over Winslow Homer before they got down to business.

A Detroit physician used to have a tank of tropical fish in his office. He got rid of them for the same reason. Too much time was being wasted in watching the fish and chatting with patients about them.

The Journal's story went on to tell about a new line of office furniture that has been developed. It includes a desk with a shallow rolltop lid; this permits papers to be neatly covered at night, so they don't have to be reassembled in the morning — but the low clearance prevents too many papers from piling up. The line also features a standup desk with a perch seat "so the executive will remain more alert and will be able to walk his visitors to the door without being trapped in a desk situation."

SEVERAL OF THE Minute Men described the use they make of tape recorders, off and on throughout the day and night. The head of the American Management Association described his techniques for boarding an airplane: He takes the seat farthest forward, so he won't be tempted to look at the overhead movie screen, and he begins work immediately "so his seatmate doesn't lure him into idle conversation."

The story went on and on, but that was the gist of it. Never waste a moment! Time is money! Get to the point! Away with Winslow Homer, tropical fish, and idle talk! American management will be efficient, right down to the cold bare walls.

Is this truly what is happening to American management? If so, then God will have to preserve the Republic, for management, in the end, will not know how. Our executives will have saved a hundred thousand minutes, but they will have lost the values that goaded them into saving the time in the first place.

Such an observation, of course is not especially novel. Wordsworth, 160 years ago, made the same point: "The world is too much with us; late and soon, getting and spending, we lay waste our powers: Little we see in nature that is ours." Yet the getting and spending that drives today's executives to their tape recorders finds no parallel in Wordsworth's time. We have trimmed off every surplus second, summoned the computers, and rallied efficiency experts like acolytes around for Formica altars. The high priests of management are perched on stools to exercise the lingering guest; and all our rolltop desks have shallow lids.

THE JOURNAL'S article brought back to mind a day in Chicago not so long ago. There a busy executive, one of these Minute Men, had presided over an afternoon conference having to do with a bill then pending in Congress. He had kept the discussion taut, the questions to the point, the answers short. Now it was 6:30, and he was flying on to Washington. The big jet was scarcely out of O'Hare before the ubiquitous tape recorder appeared, and he began to dictate a summary paper. Suddenly the plane broke through a cover of towering cumulus clouds, touched by the twilight rose of the waning sun. The jet was a sliver of silver, aloft in a sea of gold. It was a sea of enchanted islands and turreted castles, pennons gleaming, caught like a dream in a dome of darkening blue.

"Look!" cried his companion. "Look at those clouds!"

"EXCUSE ME," said the executive. A shadow of irritation rippled across his tight face. Then the shadow disappeared, because irritation is a waste of time; and he was once more intent upon line 16 of Title II.

It isn't worth it. Honest to God, it isn't worth it. If American medicine cannot pause to let a doctor rest his eyes on tropical fish, lazily swimming in turquoise depths, we would be better off to bear our aches and pains a little longer; for a deeper sickness is at hand. When the pressure of business strips an office wall of Winslow Homer, the pressure is too high. The steam is not worth the fuel it consumes.

The fellow who took down the paintings told the Journal he now saves as much as an hour a day by getting his guests down to business at once. By this he meant that he gains an hour for additional work. To what good end, one asks? To what good end?

Miss Knight Letter To Hoover Is Forged

A week ago, several newspapermen in Washington received, so far as is known anonymously, a copy of a letter addressed to J. Edgar Hoover, and signed ("Cordially"), F. Knight." The F. Knight in question was obviously Frances Knight, head of the passport division of the Department of State, a lady of strong will and enormous efficiency who has from time to time angered the anti-anti-Communist community by her stubborn execution of the anti-Communist provisions of the McCarran Act, and similar effronteries. The letter expressed an almost panicky concern over the likely effect on herself, the State Department, and the FBI of the recent revelation that the FBI had advised the State Department of a forthcoming trip by Professor H. Stuart Hughes of Harvard to the Soviet Union. "I am seriously afraid that this interest may indicate preparations for a sustained press campaign against us," said the letter, continuing: "My own position in the Department is such that I do not wish to commit too many details to paper, for reasons that will be obvious to you . . ." And so on, implying a collusive relation with J. Edgar Hoover to frustrate the Secretary of State.

DREW PEARSON published the letter triumphantly, together with disjointed ramblings on such matters as the aristocratic lineage of Professor Hughes, the incriminating defense of Miss Knight over the years by Senator Thomas Dodd, and the McCarthyite connections of Senator Karl Mundt. All in all a typical Pearson performance, except that the letter from Frances Knight to J. Edgar Hoover is a forgery.

Frances Knight swears that she never sent such a letter, and Hoover swears he never received such a letter, and when the law-abiding lady and that law-abiding gentleman swear to the identical thing, one can safely construct a cathedral on that truth. Asked to comment, Pearson — who had not bothered to check with either Miss Knight's office or with the FBI when the forgery blew in to his desk — insisted that the signature was Miss Knight's very own, that he had "checked with various officials" — whatever that means — and that he has "every reason to believe that the letter is bona fide."

Well, the letter isn't bona fide, and the questions now arise, a) who wrote the letter? and b) what should we infer from Pearson's irresponsible publication of it? As regards b), there are those who conclude that to worry about Pearson's irresponsibility is rather like worrying about illicit sex: as long as there is human lust, there will be human panderers. Point a) is by contrast a finite question, and who if not the FBI is better equipped to find the answer? After all, the FBI is a crime-hunting organization, and it is a crime to go about forging Frances Knight's name on letters to J. Edgar Hoover; though not, apparently, a crime these days to deposit anybody's correspondence on Drew Pearson's desk. Who, one repeats, wrote that letter? Cui bono?

A YEAR OR SO ago a letter distributed all over Washington purporting to establish that Hoover is a pervert — only that letter also was a forgery. There have been other letters, about other public officials, though Hoover appears to have been the principal recent target. Is it an idle mischief-maker? If so, he should be identified and taken gently to prison. Is it a grander operation, in which more than one person is involved? What has been the tendency of the recent forgeries? Has the malice been purely personal, do does it suggest a political objective, e. g., to defame and subvert the public confidence in conspicuously anti-communist officials?

Surely a first step would be to compare carefully the type used in the Pearson letter and the Pervert letter, since it is just possible that the same typewriter was used in both forgeries. Then an industrious typewriter hunt would be in order. I know some of the typewriters I think Sherlock Holmes would begin by checking, and no doubt the FBI would know where to start. Why doesn't it?

The President then "demanded" a settlement, and the union's officials accepted a wage level that clearly went beyond the President's guidelines.

THEN THE President took national television time which he commands so frequently and piously claimed that for "special reasons" the airline wage level miraculously wasn't inflationary after all.

In short, in the face of pressure from a handful of union bosses, the President turned somersaults. Even when the union membership thumbed their noses at him he still passed the buck to Congress, demanding that they, not the White House, take on the authority of actually ordering the machinists back to work in order to protect the transportation lifeblood of the nation.

Let me make abundantly clear that in none of these comments do I intend to say that the President's guidelines either for wages or for prices amount to anything more than politically inspired nonsense. I happen to believe in a market-place, black - ink economy, not in a red-tape, red-ink economy.

WE SEE THAT THE President would even weasel on his own economic rules rather than really lock horns with a voting bloc. His economic policies are inspired by how many votes they are worth, not by principles or by deep concern for the nation's well-being. His reaction to the steel price increase confirms this.

Here, as in every single case where businessmen have been concerned, the President was quick to paint the steel makers as villains. His economic advisers publicly denounced the price increase — without a word about the pressures that force such increases. And many of those pressures are caused by the top - heavy weight of government spending.

THERE WAS EVEN the fantastic suggestion that the steel makers should have consulted the White House before announcing their increases. But if two steel makers got together on a price matter they would risk a jail sentence, and here is the White House suggesting the same sort of getting together.

Most significantly, however, was the carefully cultivated role of helplessness the President adopted. His spokesmen let it be known that the President was powerless to make the steel makers withdraw the price raise.

Obviously, the President wants to inspire his rubber-stamp followers in Congress to pass some new law that would give the President police power over American prices — and probably profits and wages as well.

Who is the real victim of these Presidential maneuverings? You are. If you earn your livelihood in some area of American business or industry, as a union member or not, these Presidential power plays threaten you directly. There is proof in every corner of the world that when government throttles an economy, the economy slows down, stagnates and eventually fails. It is your freedom and your future that Lyndon Johnson is spending so wildly to satisfy his political plans.

'Minute Men' Drop Office Attractions

A BONE - CHILLING story turned up the other day in the Wall Street Journal. It dealt with the "Minute Men," who are not, as you might suppose, either Texas vigilantes or the producers of quick - frozen fish. These are American business executives who save minutes, and the point of the story was to tell how they do it.

One young executive used to have some fine Winslow Homer prints in his office. He liked them; but he took them all down and stripped the walls bare. And why was this? He suddenly realized that he was losing as much as five minutes per visitor in conversation over Winslow Homer before they got down to business.

A Detroit physician used to have a tank of tropical fish in his office. He got rid of them for the same reason. Too much time was being wasted in watching the fish and chatting with patients about them.

The Journal's story went on to tell about a new line of office furniture that has been developed. It includes a desk with a shallow rolltop lid; this permits papers to be neatly covered at night, so they don't have to be reassembled in the morning — but the low clearance prevents too many papers from piling up. The line also features a standup desk with a perch seat "so the executive will remain more alert and will be able to walk his visitors to the door without being trapped in a desk situation."

SEVERAL OF THE Minute Men described the use they make of tape recorders, off and on throughout the day and night. The head of the American Management Association described his techniques for boarding an airplane: He takes the seat farthest forward, so he won't be tempted to look at the overhead movie screen, and he begins work immediately "so his seatmate doesn't lure him into idle conversation."

The story went on and on, but that was the gist of it. Never waste a moment! Time is money! Get to the point! Away with Winslow Homer, tropical fish, and idle talk! American management will be efficient, right down to the cold bare walls.

Is this truly what is happening to American management? If so, then God will have to preserve the Republic, for management in the end, will not know how. Our executives will have saved a hundred thousand minutes, but they will have lost the values that goaded them into saving the time in the first place.

Such an observation, of course is not especially novel. Wordsworth, 160 years ago, made the same point: "The world is too much with us; late and soon, getting and spending, we lay waste our powers: Little we see in nature that is ours." Yet the getting and spending that drives today's executives for their tape recorders finds no parallel in Wordsworth's time. We have trimmed off every surplus second, summoned the computers, and rallied efficiency experts like acolytes around for Formica altars. The high priests of management are perched on stools to exercise the lingering guest; and all our rolltop desks have shallow lids.

THE JOURNAL'S article brought back to mind a day in Chicago not so long ago. There a busy executive, one of these Minute Men, had presided over an afternoon conference having to do with a bill then pending in Congress. He had kept the discussion taut, the questions to the point, the answers short. Now it was 6:30, and he was flying on to Washington. The big jet was scarcely out of O'Hare before the ubiquitous tape recorder appeared, and he began to dictate a summary paper. Suddenly the plane broke through a cover of towering cumulus clouds, touched by the twilight rose of the waning sun. The jet was a sliver of silver, aloft in a sea of gold. It was a sea of enchanted islands and turreted castles, pennons gleaming, caught like a dream in a dome of darkening blue.

"Look!" cried his companion. "Look at those clouds!"

"EXCUSE ME," said the executive. A shadow of irritation rippled across his tight face. Then the shadow disappeared, because irritation is a waste of time; and he was once more intent upon line 16 of Title II.

It isn't worth it. Honest to God, it isn't worth it. If American medicine cannot pause to let a doctor rest his eyes on tropical fish, lazily swimming in turquoise depths, we would be better off to bear our aches and pains a little longer; for a deeper sickness is at hand. When the pressure of business strips an office wall of Winslow Homer, the pressure is too high. The steam is not worth the fuel it consumes.

The fellow who took down the paintings told the Journal he now saves as much as an hour a day by getting his guests down to business at once. By this he meant that he gains an hour for additional work. To what good end, one asks? To what good end?

Miss Knight Letter To Hoover Is Forged

A week ago, several newspapermen in Washington received, so far as is known anonymously, a copy of a letter addressed to J. Edgar Hoover, and signed ("Cordially"), "F. Knight." The F. Knight in question was obviously Frances Knight, head of the passport division of the Department of State, a lady of strong will and enormous efficiency who has from time to time angered the anti-anti-Communist community by her stubborn execution of the anti-Communist provisions of the McCarran Act, and similar effronteries. The letter expressed an almost panicky concern over the likely effect on herself, the State Department, and the FBI of the recent revelation that the FBI had advised the State Department of a forthcoming trip by Professor H. Stuart Hughes of Harvard to the Soviet Union. "I am seriously afraid that this interest may indicate preparations for a sustained press campaign against us," said the letter, continuing: "My own position in the Department is such that I do not wish to commit too many details to paper, for reasons that will be obvious to you . . ." And so on, implying a collusive relation with J. Edgar Hoover to frustrate the Secretary of State.

DREW PEARSON published the letter triumphantly, together with disjointed ramblings on such matters as the aristocratic lineage of Professor Hughes, the incriminating defense of Miss Knight over the years by Senator Thomas Dodd, and the McCarthyite connections of Senator Karl Mundt. All in all a typical Pearson performance, except that the letter from Frances Knight to J. Edgar Hoover is a forgery.

Frances Knight swears that she never sent such a letter, and Hoover swears he never received such a letter, and when the law-abiding lady and that law-abiding gentleman swear to the identical thing, one can safely construct a cathedral on that truth. Asked to comment, Pearson — who had not bothered to check with either Miss Knight's office or with the FBI when the forgery blew in to his desk — insisted that the signature was Miss Knight's very own, that he had "checked with various officials" — whatever that means — and that he has "every reason to believe that the letter is bona fide."

Well, the letter isn't bona fide, and the questions now arise, a) who wrote the letter? and b) what should we infer from Pearson's irresponsible publication of it? As regards b), there are those who conclude that to worry about Pearson's irresponsibility is rather like worrying about illicit sex as long as there is human lust, there will be human panderers. Point a, he contracted a finite question, and who if not the FBI is better equipped to find the answer? After all the FBI is a crime-hunting organization, and it is a crime to go about forging Frances Knight's name on letters to J. Edgar Hoover, though not apparently, a crime these days to deposit anybody's correspondence on Drew Pearson's desk. Who one regrets wrote that letter? Cui bono?

A YEAR OR SO ago a letter distributed all over Washington purporting to establish that Hoover is a pervert — only that letter also was a forgery. There have been other letters about other public officials, though Hoover appears to have been the principal recent target. Is it an idle mischief maker? If so, he should be identified and taken gently to prison. Is it a grander operation in which more than one person is involved? What has been the tendency of the recent forgeries? Has the malice been purely personal, do does it suggest a political objective, e.g., to defame and subvert the public confidence in conspicuously anti-communist officials?

Surely a first step would be to compare carefully the type used in the Pearson letter and the Pervert letter, since it is just possible that the same typewriter was used in both forgeries. Then an industrious typewriter hunt would be in order. I know some of the typewriters I think Sherlock Holmes would begin by checking, and no doubt the FBI would know where to start. Why doesn't it?

Sunday Thought

The things I prize of greatest worth,
Are just the common things of earth:
The rain, the sun, the grass, the trees,
The flowers, the birds, the glorious breeze,
Clouds that pass, the stars that shine,
Mountains, valleys — all are mine,
Rivers broad, and open sea,
Are riches none can take from me.
Oh, God is here on every hand —
Upon the sea, upon the land,
And day by day my thanks I give
That with these common things I live.

It's Interesting

Sometime reading the old masters, you run across an interesting thought or idea. Take the following from the works of Cicero, statesman and philosopher of ancient Rome:

"We are taxed in our bread and wine, in our incomes and our investments, on our land and on our property, not only for base creatures who do not deserve the name of men, but for foreign nations, for complaisant nations who will bow to us and accept our largesse and promise to assist in the keeping of peace — these mendicant nations who will destroy us when we show a moment of weakness or our treasury is bare, and surely it is becoming bare. We are taxed to maintain legions on their soil, in the name of law and order and the Pax Romana, a document which will fall into dust when it pleases our allies and our vassals. We keep them in precarious balance only with our gold. Is the heart-blood of our nation worth these? Shall one Italican be sacrificed for Britain, for Gaul, for Egypt, for India, even for Greece, and a score of other nations? Were they bound to us with ties of love, they would not ask for our gold. They would ask only our laws. They take our every flesh, and they hate us and despise us. And who shall say we are worthy of more?"

There, now, don't you feel b e t t e r knowing that things are no different today?

McNamara's Theory

Have you ever sat down and tried to figure out the actual theory of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara?

Well, we did, with the help of General Thomas A. Lane, a brilliant r e t i r e d Army officer, and we don't like it. In fact, it is down right dangerous, and particularly so since the President has obviously bought it all the way.

Ironically, the McNamara theory of flexible response which has dominated United States military policy for five years has a superficially plausible logic which makes it politically attractive. It argues that there is a precise weight of response which will induce the enemy to desist from his aggression, and that we shall make this response. It is neatly economical, in theory.

It is devastatingly costly in practice. It is true, of course, that a much smaller response would have been required in 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964 or 1965 to halt the aggression against South Viet Nam than is required to do the job today. In all these years, McNamara never made the correct response. Instead, he escalated a small struggle into a major war.

Where has he failed? There are two possible explanations which may apply separately or in combination: He doesn't know what is required to end the aggression, or he lacks the will to do what is required.

Clearly the concept of flexible response has little utility if you don't know how much response is required to produce the desired result. If you underestimate the requirement and continue to do so, you commit your country to an unending war of attrition such as the United States has been waging in Viet Nam. Moreover, you escalate the cost because your reluctance to use decisive measures encourages the aggressor to increase his investment in aggression.

This deepening error derives from Secretary McNamara's lack of comprehension of war. Flexible response leads him to believe that by putting in just a little more power than the enemy displays, or a little more than our last effort, a turning point will be reached. He is not even close to the turning point! He is like a man who has dropped to his knees to search for a milestone which is five miles away.

The erosion of will is more important than the misjudgment of the required response. If the will were strong, the initial error of judgment would be corrected by a prompt adjustment of strategy. When the will is weak and political pressures are strong, the commitment to an inadequate strategy becomes a permanent evil which Secretary McNamara is incapable of correcting. He resorts to small adjustments for political effect and uses the theory of flexible response to cover his continuing failure.

In this war, American will is the prime target of Soviet strategy. The barrage of propaganda, national and international, is directed against U.S. bombing of South Viet Nam, against U.S. "expansion" of the war. These pressures are designed to deter the President from taking the measures which would end the aggression.

The President is persuaded that the war must be waged in South Viet Nam, that the Viet Cong bases in Cambodia, Laos and North Viet Nam must not be attacked by our ground forces. These are precisely the conditions which North Viet Nam must preserve in order to continue its aggression.

Secretary McNamara's preoccupation with the tools of war, with weapons and ammunition and manpower, has made him peculiarly insensitive to the very factors which are decisive in war. His error of thinking he can reduce war to a matter of statistics is a very ancient aberration. It makes him an easy target for Soviet strategists.

Flexible response has served Soviet strategy well.

This Generation

A great deal of discussion, both pro and con, is being made these days over changing attitudes toward morality on college campuses, and it leaves many, both young and old, with a sense of confusion.

In view of this confusion, it strikes us that the words of a California educator addressed to his students are eminently sound. He is Page Price, provost at the University of California's new Cowell College. In a memo to students he observed:

"We have become rather too unbuttoned." Kissing and caressing are "properly a private matter" not to be practiced "in the classrooms, lecture hall, chow line, or wherever there are people who might be embarrassed by such a display." He noted also that the "careless or carefree sexual use of a woman is simply exploitative" and he cautioned co-eds that a woman, through promiscuity, "trivializes and degrades her deepest self."

As for the bewhiskered, carelessly attired type of student which so astounds those of us who admire personal neatness, Price said: "I am aware that for many students an aggressively untidy appearance is a matter of principle, a personal statement about the world, a valued style . . . but, like everything else, it can be carried too far . . . Even if state law did not rquire shos in dining places, unsightly feet would be inappropriate."

His words reflect an admirable understanding and toleration of youthful behavior which is a mark of an educated man. That is all the more reason why young people should heed his advice. Indeed, his is a plea for respect for standards of personal conduct which have served civilization well for generations.

The World's Week In Focus

Fiery Issues, Strife Have National Impact

By Oland Silk

THERE WERE plenty of hot spots around the world last week, political, military and racial.

In Washington, Congress pussy-footed over legislation aimed at sending the five struck airlines aloft. Late Friday, the House Commerce Committee approved a Senate-passed bill to order the 35,000 striking mechanics back to their jobs. It was not a labor of love; the vote was 17 to 13. The bill may reach the House floor next Wednesday. All House members are up for re-election this year, and few are anxious to antagonize labor.

The 1966 Civil Rights Bill continued its painful course in the House, with showdown votes on the housing section and an anti-riot provision receiving prime attention. The bill finally passed.

THE EXECUTIVE Branch was not without its problems, vis-a-vis those thorny issues in Congress. It came down, too, with a bad case of guideline colic, while trying to smooth things over domestically with charts and reassuring economic assessments.

In Viet Nam, two bombing errors caused the U. S. embarrassment, vicious fighting continued on all fronts, and ace American pilot, Major Pames Kasler, was shot down and captured by the North Vietnamese.

RACIAL violence shook Lansing and Detroit, Michigan, Brooklyn, Chicago, and Grenada, Miss. There seemed no end to it.

Full Of Holes

PRESIDENT Johnson called an impromptu news conference Tuesday. He said, in effect, that the steel industry had kicked holes in his 3.2 guidepost formula by raising prices. No retaliation would be forethcoming, however. He said the guidelines were not perfect, but "as of the moment . . . are the best measuring stick that we have." A search, he said, was underway by his advisers to find "something" to replace them that would be fair to both labor and management.

Steel won its round with the Administration because a White House-supported machinist-airlines settlement violated the 3.2 formula. To counter an image of punctured prestige, Johnson reeled off statistics showing how well off the country was compared to other industrial nations.

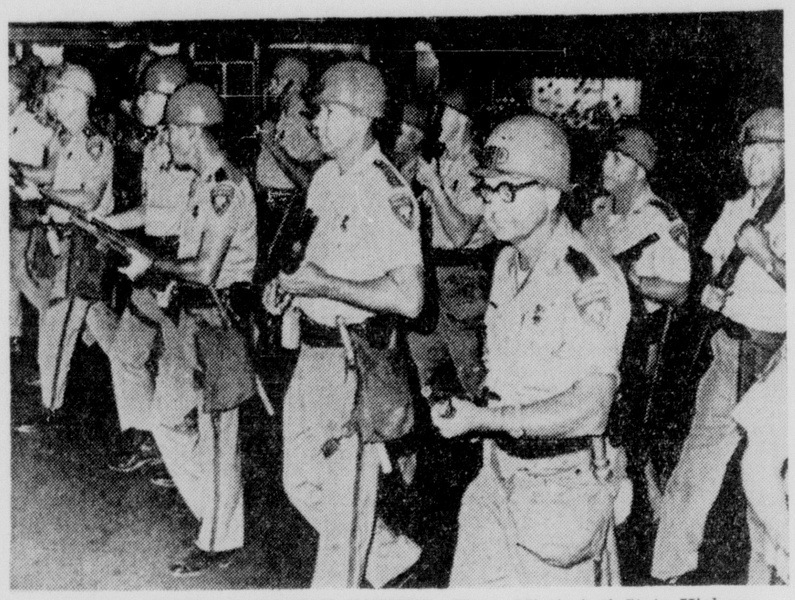
ON FRIDAY, he allowed Cabinet members to give newsmen a 40-minute rehash of the news parley analysis. In summation: "In all cases the economic gains have been spectacularly larger in the past two and a half years than in the previous decade."

THE AIRLINES strike could go on . . and on. Even though the House Commerce Committee voted to send the strikers back to work, the road to full House passage was strewn with booby traps. First, labor will mount a drive against it. Secondly, the Administration remains neutral, eyes fastened on November. Meanwhile, airline losses approached $350 million.

Things got bitter in mid-week. Rep. Harley Staggers, D.-W. Va., chairman of the Commerce group, appealed directly to labor and management to settle the dispute and avoid legislation "you will regret the rest of your lives." Arbitration was proposed and tentatively approved by the carriers and union representatives, then dissolved into heated wrangling.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, threw the weight of his 17-million member labor federation (of which the airline machinists are part) behind the strikers by telling Congress, "Do not pass legislation that YOU will regret for the rest of your lives." Meany was a major political power behind the 1964 Democratic landslide.

Down in Miami, the tourist season was dead. Only one out of five rooms in one hotel was full. Even the winter vacation forecast was bleak. The Miami Chamber of Commerce put tourist revenue losses at $70 million.



SYMBOL OF THE LONG HOT SUMMER—These Mississippi State Highway Patrolman and fish and game agents move against a white crowd in Grenada, Miss., after three nights of racial turbulence. Grenada was just one of several towns wracked by civil strife across the nation last week.

Race Roundup

CHICAGO CIVIL rights leaders pressed their demands for open housing. The latest ploy of marching through white neighborhoods brought tension to sizzle point. Last Sunday angry white mobs hurled rocks and bottles and screamed insults at 2,000 marchers in one white section. Shouts of "Nigger, go back to the South Side," and "Go Home, scum," assailed them.

Plans were made Friday to invade the sensitive sections of Bogan and Cicero, the latter being the scene of the 1959 riot. The direct action tactics were carried out by Martin Luther King's aides. King himself was in Jackson, Miss., for a convention of his Southern Christian Leadership Conference. He kept in touch with the Chicago doings by phone and telegram.

Archbishop Patrick John Cody called for a halt to the protests. Cody, spiritual leader of two million Roman Catholics in the Chicago Archdiocese, urged legal and civil channels be explored.

IN CONGRESS, there was direct action on the rights bill. The House voted approval, but a Senate roadblock stood tall and ominous. Key sections barred discrimination in the sale and rental of housing (with exceptions) — and a last-minute anti-roit amendment forbidding state-to-state travel of racial agitators whose purpose is to lead, take part in, or encourage riots. The vote on the whole measure was 259 to 157. Republicans made a strong effort to kill the housing section, but failed by a vote of 222-190

SOUTHERNERS and Illinois Republican Everett Dirksen may block Senate passage. Dirksen says the housing section is totally unacceptable to him, besides being unconstitutional. Because of the ghetto disorders in Chicago, Dirksen would appear to be in a sensitive spot. But you would never know it. Senate debate will be delayed two weeks.

NEGRO LEADERS were naturally incensed by House passage. King's SCLC conference passed a resolution placing the blame on President Johnson. Johnson had wanted much broader coverage, but settled for the compromise.

In Grenada, Miss., whites and Negroes faced each other three straight nights in the town square. State troopers and fish and game agents stepped into the picture Wednesday night and drove over 200 angry whites from the area. The confrontations were marked by taunts, firecrackers, and slingshot assaults on the Negro demonstrators. Negro forces sought contempt citations against town, county and state police for failure to protect the marchers. A concentrated voter registration drive is underway in Grenada.

POLICE leaves were cancelled in Detroit till trouble subsided there. Tempers cooled in Lansing after rioting and attacks on police. In Cleveland, a grand jury blamed Communist and black nationalist elements for the disorders in the city's Hough section. It also rapped the city administration for not measuring up to its responsibility in the slum area.

As the week ended, Stamford, Conn., was in an uproar over "scattered-site" housing — a new concept in this field — which would place 10-to-30 family units garden - type apartments throughout the city of 100,000. Protests came from several white, middle - class neighborhoods.

Justice Jim Wins

"Justice" Jim Johnson's rallying cry was Constitution, Christianity, and Capitalism in his runoff election with Frank Holt for the Democratic gubernatorial in Arkansas. Johnson won over the man he called a "pleasant vegetable" by 198,494 to 179,981 (unofficial) votes. In November, Johnson faces Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, who regards the segregationist as a demagogue.

Johnson resigned a $20,000 job on the State Supreme Court for the $10,000 governor's job. If that strikes you as peculiar, out in Pennsylvania, Milton Shapp, who routed the state Democratic organization to win the gubernatorial nomination, disclosed he spent $1.4 million of his own f u n d s just to get nominated. Disclosures showed Shapp paid outstanding Negro athletes to pose for pictures with him, which were used in his campaign. Also, he paid $15,000 to a supposed white supremacy leader for name lists and campaign help, only to discover he was a member of the NAACP.

There were other disclosures, of a quite different nature, on the wire. For example, there was the sociologist's report that a bumper crop of babies was born along the East Coast just nine months after the Great Power Blackout. He reported with a straight face that with the lights out and no television, people had no choice but to interact with one another.

JONATHAN Daniels, administartive assistant and press secretary to President Roosevelt, bared the bitter, sweet romance between the President and his wife's social secretary, Lucy Mercer. Daniels, now editor of the Raleigh (N.C.) News and Observer, tells the story in his book "Time Between the Wars." The author says Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was bitter and jealous of Lucy during all the years until the last when at Franklin's death in 1945, she found that Lucy, on one of her several trips to Warm Springs, had been with her husband when he died."

IN OTHER developments:

Housewives now paying higher prices for meat and milk may be paying even more a year from now. Reason: a sharp decline in livestock feed grains, the drought that has dried up thousands of acres of pasture around the nation, and a poor hay crop.

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N. J., accused a (so far) unnamed New York Congressman of resorting to "blackmail . . . pure and simple" in an effort to get a campaign contribution from a government typist. Chorused Republican Senator John Williams, Del., "this is an organized shakedown of Civil Service employes. The President knows about it, he condones it, he likes it." Case and Williams joined in demanding Senate action to tighten the rules governing campaign contributions and spending.

THE SENATE passed a bill to pump $3 billion of government mortgage funds into the home building industry. The vote was 83-0 in response to a warning that the action must be taken to avert a crisis in the economy.

President Johnson's top political strategist, Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien, urged Democratic congressional candidates to campaign this fall in full support of the President's Viet Nam policy. Senate Democrats and Republicans agreed. Those who do have usually won in the primaries, reasoned Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington.

A HIGH U. S. official said that Secretary of Defense McNamara still believes the United States can save $1 billion on the controversial TFX all-purpose warplane. At the same time, McNamara was said to question the original data on the cost of the TFX. There are three versions of plane, one for the Air Force, Navy, and Strategic Air Command.

An 850 - pound Lunar Orbiter was expected to orbit the moon today and take 352 quality pictures, helping select a spot for Apollo astronauts to land sometime between now and 1970. The craft obeyed commands Thursday to fire its main rocket engine and correct its course to the moon. The stubby craft was launched from Cape Kennedy Wednesday.

Another Renegade

NORTH KOREA broke with Peking in a dramatic announcement. Striking an independent stance, the country's leaders made it clear they would not accept guidance any longer from Peking — that it was no longer center of the world revolution. Relations between North Korea and Peking have been cooling ever since Peking and Moscow became entangled in a bitter struggle for supremacy. Apparently, North Korea wants a neutral role, a trend started by Romania and Yugoslavia.

THE STINGING rebuke came just when strange things were happening in Peking. A newspaper reported Mao made an appearance in the capital in which he claimed authorship for the "cultural" purge in progress. The story was deleted in a later edition. It raised new speculation about Mao's health.

IN VIET NAM, bombing troubles piled up. U.S. planes strafed an American Coast Guard cutter by mistake, killing her commander and another Coast Guardsmen. Five others, including a British correspondent, were wounded. The tragic error followed within hours an attack Tuesday night on the South Vietnamese village, an incident which the U.S. blamed on the Viet Cong.

ACCORDING to embassy reports, VC held the villagers at gunpoint and refused to let them seek safety as American bombers zeroed in. The death toll was set at 24; wounded, 100. Aid was rushed to the scene. There were conflicting reports about the VC. Some survivors said there were no guerillas in the village. An inquiry is underway on President Johnson's orders.

TARGETS within 14 miles of Haiphong were bombed while ground forces fought tenaciously in the south. Marines hunted south of Da Nang for a showdown with North Vietnamese army units estimated to total 6,000 men. Earlier, 750 Marines fought off encirclement by 1,500 North Vietnamese in close-quarter fighting.

AT HIS news conference, the President said of Viet Nam. "I don't see any change for the worst at all." He denied the government was responsible for reports that the war might drag on for another eight years. Officials say there is no way to predict how long the the war will last.

ONE THING was certain. The build-up continued full force. There are about 290,000 troops in Viet Nam now. By December, the number is expected to reach 400,000. Former Vice President Nixon said, after a visit to Saigon, that 500,000 men might be necessary. This was taken as a reflection of General Westmoreland's thinking.

If so, the war would reach Korea-size proportions. In view of the continued infiltration of the enemy from the north, the unofficial estimates of troop needs could be correct. Several weeks ago official Washington spoke of a certain "war weariness" in Hanoi. But latest reports say enemy troop discipline has not deteriorated.

The Week's Twin Cities-Area News In Review

World Staff Writer

Politics, by and large, is thought of as a spectator sport. But as the riders mounted up Saturday in the running for the first jewel of the Triple Crown, they seemed as numerous as the onlookers.

The prize at stake, of course, was victory in the first Democratic primary and that's the story on today's Page One, with subsequent gems being the second primary Sept. 24 and the general election Nov. 8.

Without reference to a reliable form sheet, crystal-balling the top riders would amount to prognostic suicide, and off-track betting is illegal anyway. Writing these lines Friday, the focus of attention has to be the size of the field and rules of the running.

These points, indeed, did constitute a large part of last week's local and area news. On the first, size is relative and, again without suitable references, loose commentary places one at the mercy of detail-checkers.

But it's hard to picture a larger field or a larger ballot. In sum, for the posts on which all or parts of Ouachita Parish voted, there were 53 hopefuls at 22 starting gates, and only seven were one-horse races.

TYLER

In descending order, from national to local offices, there w e r e down for consideration seats as U.S. senator, U.S. representative, state education board member, public service commissioner, three district judges, parish assessor, Monroe marshal, West Monroe marshal, district attorney, Monroe judge, West Monroe judge, Monroe School Board member and seven Ouachita School Board members. In the area, there was a run for Eighth District representative.

As to the rules of the running, candidates and commissioners could only await the latest from a three-judge federal court which, early in the week, began issuing pronouncements and clarifications. The first activity from that quarter came with a ruling that federally-registered persons should be added to the rolls for Saturday's election in the five parishes — including Ouachita — where they were signed.

The confusing point, however, was the court's backing of the U.S. Justice Department in its stance that illiterate voters should have assistance in casting their ballots. In considerable doubt for a time was the matter of who should assist and in what manner.

It was a busy week for Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion, what with appeals for a stay of the ruling all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. No stay was forthcoming, but finally almost on election eve a "clarification" was in order: no change in the stand for voter assistance, but the voter swearing himself illiterate at the polls could be assisted only by a commissioner.

Some local sources called the clarification a compromise of a sort, since there had been speculation the reported 100 to 150 federal observers on station in the five parishes might be the ones to cast the illiterates' ballots. That point, at least, was cleared up, though, as D-Day arrived, there was still a measure of doubt as to what role the observers would play.

As for Gremillion, a realist, his opinion freely-given, was that the federal people were running the election. Some agreement was heard locally. But as agreeably as possible, Ouachita Democratic Executive Committee Chairman Bert Sperry said the court order would be guided on, declaring that it "vacated and voided" rulings of the committee.

Mrs. Mae Lucky, the Ouachita registrar, dutifully added the 5,033 federally-registered names to her list of 31,694 qualified voters.

FEDERAL SCENE

The Twin City version of the federal scene included at least one other vista last week. Judge Ben C. Dawkins returned to Ouachita Parish school officials, with only minor changes, their desegregation plan for this fall — the plan which had been given them the week before in its broader aspects by the same judge.

Effect of the plan is that eight grades — 1, 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11 and 12 — will be opened to Negro attendance in previously all-white schools when the new semester starts Aug. 29. The plan places Ouachita schools abreast of those of the City of Monroe in grades desegregated.

Fall of 1967 is the date for desegregation of remaining grades in both systems.

Only change in the local board's idea was an updating by one week of the period for notification of desegregation to parents of prospective students in the eight grades. Letters — some 10,000 of them — must be mailed by tomorrow, rather than the requested Aug. 22. Pupil assignment deadline is Aug. 26.

The school board was not the only parish agency in action during the week. The Ouachita Police Jury held its first semi-monthly August session and debated with zest the proposed Fifth District sales tax (or is that Twin City sales tax?), before convening as fire commissioners to open a big bid on four rural protection stations.

President T. W. Humphries read a telegram from the Twin City mayors suggesting that the parish agree to participate in financing the cost of a sales tax election in Ouachita as rather an inducement to the school board to call the election.

In a 14-2 vote, however, about as close as the jurors usually come to unanimity, it was decided, in effect, that the telegram was "premature" and that the body should await action by the school board at its next meeting Aug. 16 before considering action of its own. The fact that the jury's last August meeting is scheduled the day before was not dwelled upon.

For those who arrived late, the mayors have urged the school board to act, or face the possibility of a local sales tax for municipal purposes only. Such purposes presumably would not include a teacher pay raise, such as is built into the Fifth District tax proposal.

Over on the school board, however, some members are felt displeased by the prospect that the cities and police juries could realize, in surplus after implementation of teacher pay raises, substantially more than the local systems would receive through that implementation.

The lone bid on the four fire stations totalled $141,000, compared with approximately $100,000 which was figured in last fall's successful bond issue for thir building. Action das delayed until Monday and the bid turned over for a combined look by jury and Ouachita Citizens' Fire Protection Committee members.

Gathering Wednesday afternoon, that group, led by Committee Chairman Fred Huenefeld Jr., decided to recommend that the jury accept the bid, $41,000 over the money though it might be. Huenefeld, whose group developed and guided the fire protection tax-bond issue to passage after a similar package failed initially at the polls, said the spending could be kept within budgetary limitations by economies elsewhere.

As an example of means to "take up the slack" in the issue's $250,000 capital outlay schedule for building and equipping the stations, the chairman reported receipt, in the eight months since a parish fire department was formed, of $7,000 in insurance rebate funds. The annual total is expected to reach $10,000.

Turning to another problem of some standing, through longevity, in the community, the jury in its Monday meet also voted to seek reopening by the State Health Department of inquiries into the southside smell-stain situation. Again for late comers, local and area residents have complained vigorously in recent months of foul odors and largely unexplained staining of their homes. Two studies, one by health officials, have not produced conclusive explanations or recommendation for corrective action.

Jury Conservation Committee Chairman Curtis Joiner was given the ball and initated contact at mid-week for a second round with the state. Results are pending.

POST OFFICE

Occuping another high place in the week's news was the first publicly-announced development in six months on plans for acquiring a new, approximately $1 million post office in Monroe.

Dallas divisional real estate chief Arba P. DeWitt was in town for consultation with local postal officials and with Rep. Otto E. Passman and to announce on behalf of the Post Office Department that the search has begun to find suitable land.

But, he stressed, not only the location of the post office, but the land price as well, must be suitable. DeWitt wouldn't speculate in the area of a price range beyond a mystic reference to "fair market value," but on other details he was fairly specific. Needed are approximately 120,000 square feet — a site 300 by 400, that is — preferably located on a corner in the Louisiville Avenue-Highway 165 area.

The latter area, away from downtown congestion, is where the primary search pattern is laid, but under Passman's prodding, DeWitt conceded that Selman Field, deeded by the government to the City of Monroe for industrial development, could be considered seriously should prices shoot out of reason.

He declined to assign a timetable to the project, stating that the department might take its option within a week or within a year and positively would not act until "economically practicable" — another reference to land prices. The building, Passman stressed, will be constructed and owned in the "private sector," with the government, after designing the structure, to be a renter. The renter will have an ultimate option to purchase.

POLICEMEN PRAISED

Monroe policemen came in for a lion's share of praise during the week, starting with a City Council meeting Tuesday that also included cryptic reference to the threat of underworld influence in the city.

Chief James C. Kelly took the occasion of the meeting to render a departmental report that envisioned the end of an outstanding law and enforcement picture, unless hasty action is forthcoming to remedy certain problems — principally, low pay for officers.

Mayor W. L. Howard and the council promised a reply to the report at their next meeting, at the same time giving Kelly's department a resounding pat on the back. Ways of giving a pat on the pocketbook of poorly-paid policemen are being explored: the policemen that remain, that is. The force has shrunk to 13 below authorized strength.

Howard tied the policemen's dilemma to the possiblity of growing power among criminal elements, and Kelly, in fact, reported that Monroe was visited in recent months by "one of the nation's criminal elite." However, he wouldn't specify his information on the visit's purpose or result.

Another loud bang on the police department's shoulder followed the next day as directors on the Monroe Chamber of Commerce joined the chorus, authorizing a highly complementary letter from President George Rorex to Kelly.

NORTHEAST NEWS

Northeast Louisiana State College was newsworthy during the week to an unusual extent, even for the attention-getter it's come to be.

Besides summer graduation — including the conferral of 180 degrees and an address by former Northeast administrator Dr. C. C. Colvert, now a professor at the University of Texas — the college's budget was worth a comment. Counting funds from the State Education Board — the primary source of revenue — with student fees and other local production, Northeast will operate in 1966-67 on a budget approximately $1.1 million larger than in 1965-66.

The new adjusted total budget estimate was listed as $5,553,843.

In the meantime, two new departments were announced at the college and five new top officials were named. Fresh departments are those of Building Construction and Psychology, to be headed, respectively, by Thurman I. Potts, lately of Watertown, S.D., and Dr. Oscar N. Walley Jr., who joined the Northeast faculty in 1963. Newly-named head of an existing department is Dr. Bernard Shadoin of Elementary and Secondary Education. Dr. W. K. Easley, head of the chemistry department, was named dean of the graduate school, and Dr. Glenn F. Powers, head of the physics department, was appointed dean of instruction.

Sunday Thought

The things I prize of greatest worth,
Are just the common things of earth:
The rain, the sun, the grass, the trees,
The flowers, the birds, the glorious breeze,
Clouds that pass, the stars that shine,
Mountains, valleys — all are mine,
Rivers broad, and open sea,
Are riches none can take from me.
Oh, God is here on every hand —
Upon the sea, upon the land,
And day by day my thanks I give
That with these common things I live.

It's Interesting

Sometime reading the old masters, you run across an interesting thought or idea. Take the following from the works of Cicero, statesman and philosopher of ancient Rome:

"We are taxed in our bread and wine, in our incomes and our investments, on our land and on our property, not only for base creatures who do not deserve the name of men, but for foreign nations, for complaisant nations who will bow to us and accept our largesse and promise to assist in the keeping of peace — these mendicant nations who will destroy us when we show a moment of weakness or our treasury is bare, and surely it is becoming bare. We are taxed to maintain legions on their soil, in the name of law and order and the Pax Romana, a document which will fall into dust when it pleases our allies and our vassals. We keep them in precarious balance only with our gold. Is the heart-blood of our nation worth these? Shall one Italican be sacrificed for Britain, for Gaul, for Egypt, for India, even for Greece, and a score of other nations? Were they bound to us with ties of love, they would not ask for our gold. They would ask only our laws. They take our every flesh, and they hate us and despise us. And who shall say we are worthy of more?"

There, now, don't you feel better knowing that things are no different today?

McNamara's Theory

Have you ever sat down and tried to figure out the actual theory of Defense Secretary Robert McNamara?

Well, we did, with the help of General Thomas A. Lane, a brilliant retired Army officer, and we don't like it. In fact, it is down right dangerous, and particularly so since the President has obviously bought it all the way.

Ironically, the McNamara theory of flexible response which has dominated United States military policy for five years has a superficially plausible logic which makes it politically attractive. It argues that there is a precise weight of response which will induce the enemy to desist from his aggression, and that we shall make this response. It is neatly economical, in theory.

It is devastatingly costly in practice. It is true, of course, that a much smaller response would have been required in 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964 or 1965 to halt the aggression against South Viet Nam than is required to do the job today. In all these years, McNamara never made the correct response. Instead, he escalated a small struggle into a major war.

Where has he failed? There are two possible explanations which may apply separately or in combination. He doesn't know what is required to end the aggression, or he lacks the will to do what is required.

Clearly the concept of flexible response has little utility if you don't know how much response is required to produce the desired result. If you underestimate the requirement and continue to do so, you commit your country to an unending war of attrition such as the United States has been waging in Viet Nam. Moreover, you escalate the cost because your reluctance to use decisive measures encourages the aggressor to increase his investment in aggression.

This deepening error derives from Secretary McNamara's lack of comprehension of war. Flexible response leads him to believe that by putting in just a little more power than the enemy displays, or a little more than our last effort a turning point will be reached. He is not even close to the turning point. He is like a man who has dropped to his knees to search for a milestone which is five miles away.

The erosion of will is more important than the misjudgment of the required response. If the will were strong, the initial error of judgment would be corrected by a prompt adjustment of strategy. When the will is weak and political pressures are strong, the commitment to an inadequate strategy becomes a permanent evil which Secretary McNamara is incapable of correcting. He resorts to small adjustments for political effect and uses the theory of flexible response to cover his continuing failure.

In this war, American will is the prime target of Soviet strategy. The barrage of propaganda, national and international, is directed against U.S. bombing of South Viet Nam, against U.S. "expansion" of the war. These pressures are designed to deter the President from taking the measures which would end the aggression.

The President is persuaded that the war must be waged in South Viet Nam, that the Viet Cong bases in Cambodia, Laos and North Viet Nam must not be attacked by our ground forces. These are precisely the conditions which North Viet Nam must preserve in order to continue its aggression.

Secretary McNamara's preoccupation with the tools of war, with weapons and ammunition and manpower, has made him peculiarly insensitive to the very factors which are decisive in war. His error of thinking he can reduce war to a matter of statistics is a very ancient aberration. It makes him an easy target for Soviet strategists.

Flexible response has served Soviet strategy well.

This Generation

A great deal of discussion, both pro and con, is being made these days over changing attitudes toward morality on college campuses, and it leaves many, both young and old, with a sense of confusion.

In view of this confusion, it strikes us that the words of a California educator addressed to his students are eminently sound. He is Page Price, provost at the University of California's new Cowell College. In a memo to students he observed:

"We have become rather too unbuttoned." Kissing and caressing are "properly a private matter" not to be practiced "in the classrooms, lecture hall, chow line, or wherever there are people who might be embarrassed by such a display." He noted also that the "careless or carefree sexual use of a woman is simply exploitative" and he cautioned co-eds that a woman, through promiscuity, "trivializes and degrades her deepest self."

As for the bewhiskered, carelessly attired type of student which so astounds those of us who admire personal neatness, Price said: "I am aware that for many students an aggressively untidy appearance is a matter of principle, a personal statement about the world, a valued style . . . but, like everything else, it can be carried too far . . . Even if state law did not rquire shos in dining places, unsightly feet would be inappropriate."

His words reflect an admirable understanding and toleration of youthful behavior which is a mark of an educated man. That is all the more reason why young people should heed his advice. Indeed, his is a plea for respect for standards of personal conduct which have served civilization well for generations.

The World's Week In Focus

Fiery Issues, Strife Have National Impact

By Oland Silk

THERE WERE plenty of hot spots around the world last week, political, military and racial.

In Washington, Congress pussy-footed over legislation aimed at sending the five struck airlines aloft. Late Friday, the House Commerce Committee approved a Senate-passed bill to order the 35,000 striking mechanics back to their jobs. It was not a labor of love; the vote was 17 to 13. The bill may reach the House floor next Wednesday. All House members are up for re-election this year, and few are anxious to antagonize labor.

The 1966 Civil Rights Bill continued its painful course in the House, with showdown votes on the housing section and an anti-riot provision receiving prime attention. The bill finally passed.

THE EXECUTIVE Branch was not without its problems, vis-a-vis those thorny issues in Congress. It came down, too, with a bad case of guideline colic, while trying to smooth things over domestically with charts and reassuring economic assessments.

In Viet Nam, two bombing errors caused the U. S. embarrassment, vicious fighting continued on all fronts, and ace American pilot, Major Pames Kasler, was shot down and captured by the North Vietnamese.

RACIAL violence shook Lansing and Detroit, Michigan, Brooklyn, Chicago, and Grenada, Miss. There seemed no end to it.

Full Of Holes

PRESIDENT Johnson called an impromptu news conference Tuesday. He said, in effect, that the steel industry had kicked holes in his 3.2 guidepost formula by raising prices. No retaliation would be forethcoming, however. He said the guidelines were not perfect, but "as of the moment . . . are the best measuring stick that we have." A search, he said, was underway by his advisers to find "something" to replace them that would be fair to both labor and management.

Steel won its round with the Administration because a White House-supported machinist-airlines settlement violated the 3.2 formula. To counter an image of punctured prestige, Johnson reeled off statistics showing how well off the country was compared to other industrial nations.

ON FRIDAY, he allowed Cabinet members to give newsmen a 40-minute rehash of the news parley analysis. In summation: "In all cases the economic gains have been spectacularly larger in the past two and a half years than in the previous decade."

THE AIRLINES strike could go on and on. Even though the House Commerce Committee voted to send the strikers back to work, the road to full House passage was strewn with booby traps. First, labor will mount a drive against it. Secondly, the Administration remains neutral, eyes fastened on November. Meanwhile, airline losses approached $350 million.

Things got bitter in mid-week. Rep. Harley Staggers, D.-W. Va., chairman of the Commerce group, appealed directly to labor and management to settle the dispute and avoid legislation "you will regret the rest of your lives." Arbitration was proposed and tentatively approved by the carriers and union representatives, then dissolved into heated wrangling.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, threw the weight of his 17 million member labor federation (of which the airline machinists are part) behind the strikers by telling Congress, "Do not pass legislation that YOU will regret for the rest of your lives." Meany was a major political power behind the 1964 Democratic landslide.

Down in Miami, the tourist season was dead. Only one out of five rooms in one hotel was full. Even the winter vacation forecast was bleak. The Miami Chamber of Commerce put tourist revenue losses at $70 million.

Race Roundup

CHICAGO CIVIL rights leaders pressed their demands for open housing. The latest ploy of marching through white neighborhoods brought tension to sizzle point. Last Sunday angry white mobs hurled rocks and bottles and screamed insults at 2,000 marchers in one white section. Shouts of "Nigger, go back to the South Side," and "Go Home, scum," assailed them.

Plans were made Friday to invade the sensitive sections of Bogan and Cicero, the latter being the scene of the 1959 riot. The direct action tactics were carried out by Martin Luther King's aides. King himself was in Jackson, Miss., for a convention of his Southern Christian Leadership Conference. He kept in touch with the Chicago doings by phone and telegram.

Archbishop Patrick John Cody called for a halt to the protests. Cody, spiritual leader of two million Roman Catholics in the Chicago Archdiocese, urged legal and civil channels be explored.

IN CONGRESS, there was direct action on the rights bill. The House voted approval, but a Senate roadblock stood tall and ominous. Key sections barred discrimination in the sale and rental of housing (with exceptions) — and a last-minute anti-roit amendment forbidding state-to-state travel of racial agitators whose purpose is to lead, take part in, or encourage riots. The vote on the whole measure was 259 to 157. Republicans made a strong effort to kill the housing section, but failed by a vote of 222-190.

SOUTHERNERS and Illinois Republican Everett Dirksen may block Senate passage. Dirksen says the housing section is totally unacceptable to him, besides being unconstitutional. Because of the ghetto disorders in Chicago, Dirksen would appear to be in a sensitive spot. But you would never know it. Senate debate will be delayed two weeks.

NEGRO LEADERS were naturally incensed by House passage. King's SCLC conference passed a resolution placing the blame on President Johnson. Johnson had wanted much broader coverage, but settled for the compromise.

In Grenada, Miss., whites and Negroes faced each other three straight nights in the town square. State troopers and fish and game agents stepped into the picture Wednesday night and drove over 200 angry whites from the area. The confrontations were marked by taunts, firecrackers, and slingshot assaults on the Negro demonstrators. Negro forces sought contempt citations against town, county and state police for failure to protect the marchers. A concentrated voter registration drive is underway in Grenada.

POLICE leaves were cancelled in Detroit till trouble subsided there. Tempers cooled in Lansing after rioting and attacks on police. In Cleveland, a grand jury blamed Communist and black nationalist elements for the disorders in the city's Hough section. It also rapped the city administration for not measuring up to its responsibility in the slum area.

As the week ended, Stamford, Conn., was in an uproar over "scattered-site" housing — a new concept in this field — which would place 10-to-30 family units garden - type apartments throughout the city of 100,000. Protests came from several white, middle - class neighborhoods.

Justice Jim Wins

"Justice" Jim Johnson's rallying cry was Constitution, Christianity, and Capitalism in his runoff election with Frank Holt for the Democratic gubernatorial in Arkansas. Johnson won over the man he called a "pleasant vegetable" by 198,494 to 179,981 (unofficial) votes. In November, Johnson faces Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, who regards the segregationist as a demagogue.

Johnson resigned a $20,000 job on the State Supreme Court for the $10,000 governor's job. If that strikes you as peculiar, out in Pennsylvania, Milton Shapp, who routed the state Democratic organization to win the gubernatorial nomination, disclosed he spent $1.4 million of his own funds just to get nominated. Disclosures showed Shapp paid outstanding Negro athletes to pose for pictures with him, which were used in his campaign. Also, he paid $15,000 to a supposed white supremacy leader for name lists and campaign help, only to discover he was a member of the NAACP.

There were other disclosures, of a quite different nature, on the wire. For example, there was the sociologist's report that a bumper crop of babies was born along the East Coast just nine months after the Great Power Blackout. He reported with a straight face that with the lights out and no television, people had no choice but to interact with one another.

JONATHAN Daniels, administartive assistant and press secretary to President Roosevelt, bared the bitter, sweet romance between the President and his wife's social secretary, Lucy Mercer. Daniels, now editor of the Raleigh (N.C.) News and Observer, tells the story in his book "Time Between the Wars." The author says Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was bitter and jealous of Lucy during all the years until the last when at Franklin's death in 1945, she found that Lucy, on one of her several trips to Warm Springs, had been with her husband when he died."

IN OTHER developments:

Housewives now paying higher prices for meat and milk may be paying even more a year from now. Reason: a sharp decline in livestock feed grains, the drought that has dried up thousands of acres of pasture around the nation, and a poor hay crop.

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N. J., accused a (so far) unnamed New York Congressman of resorting to "blackmail . . . pure and simple" in an effort to get a campaign contribution from a government typist. Chorused Republican Senator John Williams, Del., "this is an organized shakedown of Civil Service employes. The President knows about it, he condones it, he likes it." Case and Williams joined in demanding Senate action to tighten the rules governing campaign contributions and spending.

THE SENATE passed a bill to pump $3 billion of government mortgage funds into the home building industry. The vote was 83-0 in response to a warning that the action must be taken to avert a crisis in the economy.

President Johnson's top political strategist, Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien, urged Democratic congressional candidates to campaign this fall in full support of the President's Viet Nam policy. Senate Democrats and Republicans agreed. Those who do have usually won in the primaries, reasoned Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington.

A HIGH U. S. official said that Secretary of Defense McNamara still believes the United States can save $1 billion on the controversial TFX all-purpose warplane. At the same time, McNamara was said to question the original data on the cost of the TFX. There are three versions of plane, one for the Air Force, Navy, and Strategic Air Command.

An 850 - pound Lunar Orbiter was expected to orbit the moon today and take 352 quality pictures, helping select a spot for Apollo astronauts to land sometime between now and 1970. The craft obeyed commands Thursday to fire its main rocket engine and correct its course to the moon. The stubby craft was launched from Cape Kennedy Wednesday.

Another Renegade

NORTH KOREA broke with Peking in a dramatic announcement. Striking an independent stance, the country's leaders made it clear they would not accept guidance any longer from Peking — that it was no longer center of the world revolution. Relations between North Korea and Peking have been cooling ever since Peking and Moscow became entangled in a bitter struggle for supremacy. Apparently, North Korea wants a neutral role, a trend started by Romania and Yugoslavia.

THE STINGING rebuke came just when strange things were happening in Peking. A newspaper reported Mao made an appearance in the capital in which he claimed authorship for the "cultural" purge in progress. The story was deleted in a later edition. It raised new speculation about Mao's health.

IN VIET NAM, bombing troubles piled up. U.S. planes strafed an American Coast Guard cutter by mistake, killing her commander and another Coast Guardsmen. Five others, including a British correspondent, were wounded. The tragic error followed within hours an attack Tuesday night on the South Vietnamese village, an incident which the U.S. blamed on the Viet Cong.

ACCORDING to embassy reports, VC held the villagers at gunpoint and refused to let them seek safety as American bombers zeroed in. The death toll was set at 24; wounded, 100. Aid was rushed to the scene. There were conflicting reports about the VC. Some survivors said there were no guerillas in the village. An inquiry is underway on President Johnson's orders.

TARGETS within 14 miles of Haiphong were bombed while ground forces fought tenaciously in the south. Marines hunted south of Da Nang for a showdown with North Vietnamese army units estimated to total 6,000 men. Earlier, 750 Marines fought off encirclement by 1,500 North Vietnamese in close-quarter fighting.

AT HIS news conference, the President said of Viet Nam, "I don't see any change for the worst at all." He denied the government was responsible for reports that the war might drag on for another eight years. Officials say there is no way to predict how long the the war will last.

ONE THING was certain. The build-up continued full force. There are about 290,000 troops in Viet Nam now. By December, the number is expected to reach 400,000. Former Vice President Nixon said, after a visit to Saigon, that 500,000 men might be necessary. This was taken as a reflection of General Westmoreland's thinking.

If so, the war would reach Korea-size proportions. In view of the continued infiltration of the enemy from the north, the unofficial estimates of troop needs could be correct. Several weeks ago official Washington spoke of a certain "war weariness" in Hanoi. But latest reports say enemy troop discipline has not deteriorated.

The Week's Twin Cities-Area News In Review

World Staff Writer

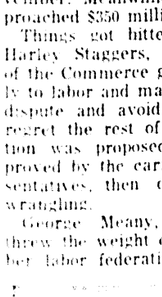
Politics, by and large, is thought of as a spectator sport. But as the riders mounted up Saturday in the running for the first jewel of the Triple Crown, they seemed as numerous as the onlookers.

The prize at stake, of course, was victory in the first Democratic primary and that's the story on today's Page One, with subsequent gems being the second primary Sept. 24 and the general election Nov. 8.

Without reference to a rehable form sheet, crystal-balling the top riders would amount to prognostic suicide, and off-track betting is illegal anyway. Writing these lines Friday, the focus of attention has to be the size of the field and rules of the running.

These points, indeed, did constitute a large part of last week's local and area news. On the first, size is relative and, again without suitable references, loose commentary places one at the mercy of detail-checkers.

But it's hard to picture a larger field or a larger ballot. In sum, for the posts on which all or parts of Ouachita Parish voted, there were 53 hopefuls at 22 starting gates, and only seven were one-horse races.



TYLER

In descending order, from national to local offices, there were down for consideration seats as U.S. senator, U.S. representative, state education board member, public service commissioner, three district judges, parish assessor, Monroe marshal, West Monroe marshal, district attorney, Monroe judge, West Monroe judge, Monroe School Board member and seven Ouachita School Board members. In the area, there was a run for Eighth District representative.

As to the rules of the running, candidates and commissioners could only await the latest from a three-judge federal court which, early in the week, began issuing pronouncements and clarifications. The first activity from that quarter came with a ruling that federally-registered persons should be added to the rolls for Saturday's election in the five parishes — including Ouachita — where they were signed.

The confusing point, however, was the court's backing of the U.S. Justice Department in its stance that illiterate voters should have assistance in casting their ballots. In considerable doubt for a time was the matter of who should assist and in what manner.

It was a busy week for Louisiana Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion, what with appeals for a stay of the ruling all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. No stay was forthcoming, but finally almost on election eve a "clarification" was in order: no change in the stand for voter assistance, but the voter swearing himself illiterate at the polls could be assisted only by a commissioner.

Some local sources called the clarification a compromise of a sort, since there had been speculation the reported 100 to 150 federal observers on station in the five parishes might be the ones to cast the illiterates' ballots. That point, at least, was cleared up, though, as D-Day arrived, there was still a measure of doubt as to what role the observers would play.

As for Gremillion, a realist, his opinion freely-given, was that the federal people were running the election. Some agreement was heard locally. But as agreeably as possible, Ouachita Democratic Executive Committee Chairman Bert Sperry said the court order would be guided on, declaring that it "vacated and voided" rulings of the committee.

Mrs. Mae Lucky, the Ouachita registrar, dutifully added the 5,033 federally-registered names to her list of 31,694 qualified voters.

FEDERAL SCENE

The Twin City version of the federal scene included at least one other vista last week. Judge Ben C. Dawkins returned to Ouachita Parish school officials, with only minor changes, their desegregation plan for this fall — the plan which had been given them the week before in its broader aspects by the same judge.

Effect of the plan is that eight grades — 1, 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11 and 12 — will be opened to Negro attendance in previously all-white schools when the new semester starts Aug. 29. The plan places Ouachita schools abreast of those of the City of Monroe in grades desegregated.

Fall of 1967 is the date for desegregation of remaining grades in both systems.

Only change in the local board's idea was an updating by one week of the period for notification of desegregation to parents of prospective students in the eight grades. Letters — some 10,000 of them — must be mailed by tomorrow, rather than the requested Aug. 22. Pupil assignment deadline is Aug. 26.

The school board was not the only parish agency in action during the week. The Ouachita Police Jury held its first semi-monthly August session and debated with zest the proposed Fifth District sales tax (or is that Twin City sales tax"), before convening as fire commissioners to open a big bid on four rural protection stations.

President T. W. Humphries read a telegram from the Twin City mayors suggesting that the parish agree to participate in financing the cost of a sales tax election in Ouachita as rather an inducement to the school board to call the election.

In a 14-2 vote, however, about as close as the jurors usually come to unanimity, it was decided, in effect, that the telegram was "premature" and that the body should await action by the school board at its next meeting Aug. 16 before considering action of its own. The fact that the jury's last August meeting is scheduled the day before was not dwelled upon.

For those who arrived late, the mayors have urged the school board to act, or face the possibility of a local sales tax for municipal purposes only. Such purposes presumably would not include a teacher pay raise, such as is built into the Fifth District tax proposal.

Over on the school board, however, some members are felt displeased by the prospect that the cities and police juries could realize, in surplus after implementation of teacher pay raises, substantially more than the local systems would receive through that implementation.

The lone bid on the four fire stations totalled $141,000, compared with approximately $100,000 which was figured in last fall's successful bond issue for thir building. Action das delayed until Monday and the bid turned over for a combined look by jury and Ouachita Citizens' Fire Protection Committee members.

Gathering Wednesday afternoon, that group, led by Committee Chairman Fred Huenefeld Jr., decided to recommend that the jury accept the bid, $41,000 over the money though it might be. Huenefeld, whose group developed and guided the fire protection tax-bond issue to passage after a similar package failed initially at the polls, said the spending could be kept within budgetary limitations by economies elsewhere.

As an example of means to "take up the slack" in the issue's $250,000 capital outlay schedule for building and equipping the stations, the chairman reported receipt, in the eight months since a parish fire department was formed, of $7,000 in insurance rebate funds. The annual total is expected to reach $10,000.

Turning to another problem of some standing, through longevity, in the community, the jury in its Monday meet also voted to seek reopening by the State Health Department of inquiries into the southside smell-stain situation. Again for late comers, local and area residents have complained vigorously in recent months of foul odors and largely unexplained staining of their homes. Two studies, one by health officials, have not produced conclusive explanations or recommendation for corrective action.

Jury Conservation Committee Chairman Curtis Joiner was given the ball and initated contact at mid-week for a second round with the state. Results are pending.

POST OFFICE

Occuping another high place in the week's news was the first publicly-announced development in six months on plans for acquiring a new, approximately $1 million post office in Monroe.

Dallas divisional real estate chief Arba P. DeWitt was in town for consultation with local postal officials and with Rep. Otto E. Passman and to announce on behalf of the Post Office Department that the search has begun to find suitable land.

But, he stressed, not only the location of the post office, but the land price as well, must be suitable. DeWitt wouldn't speculate in the area of a price range beyond a mystic reference to "fair market value," but on other details he was fairly specific. Needed are approximately 120,000 square feet — a site 300 by 400, that is — preferably located on a corner in the Louisiville Avenue-Highway 165 area.

The latter area, away from downtown congestion, is where the primary search pattern is laid, but under Passman's prodding, DeWitt conceded that Selman Field, deeded by the government to the City of Monroe for industrial development, could be considered seriously should prices shoot out of reason.

He declined to assign a timetable to the project, stating that the department might take its option within a week or within a year and positively would not act until "economically practicable" — another reference to land prices. The building, Passman stressed, will be constructed and owned in the "private sector," with the government, after designing the structure, to be a renter. The renter will have an ultimate option to purchase.

POLICEMEN PRAISED

Monroe policemen came in for a lion's share of praise during the week, starting with a City Council meeting Tuesday that also included cryptic reference to the threat of underworld influence in the city.

Chief James C. Kelly took the occasion of the meeting to render a departmental report that envisioned the end of an outstanding law and enforcement picture, unless hasty action is forthcoming to remedy certain problems — principally, low pay for officers.

Mayor W. L. Howard and the council promised a reply to the report at their next meeting, at the same time giving Kelly's department a resounding pat on the back. Ways of giving a pat on the pocketbook of poorly-paid policemen are being explored: the policemen that remain, that is. The force has shrunk to 13 below authorized strength.

Howard tied the policemen's dilemma to the possiblity of growing power among criminal elements, and Kelly, in fact, reported that Monroe was visited in recent months by "one of the nation's criminal elite." However, he wouldn't specify his information on the visit's purpose or result.

Another loud bang on the police department's shoulder followed the next day as directors on the Monroe Chamber of Commerce joined the chorus, authorizing a highly complementary letter from President George Rorex to Kelly.

NORTHEAST NEWS

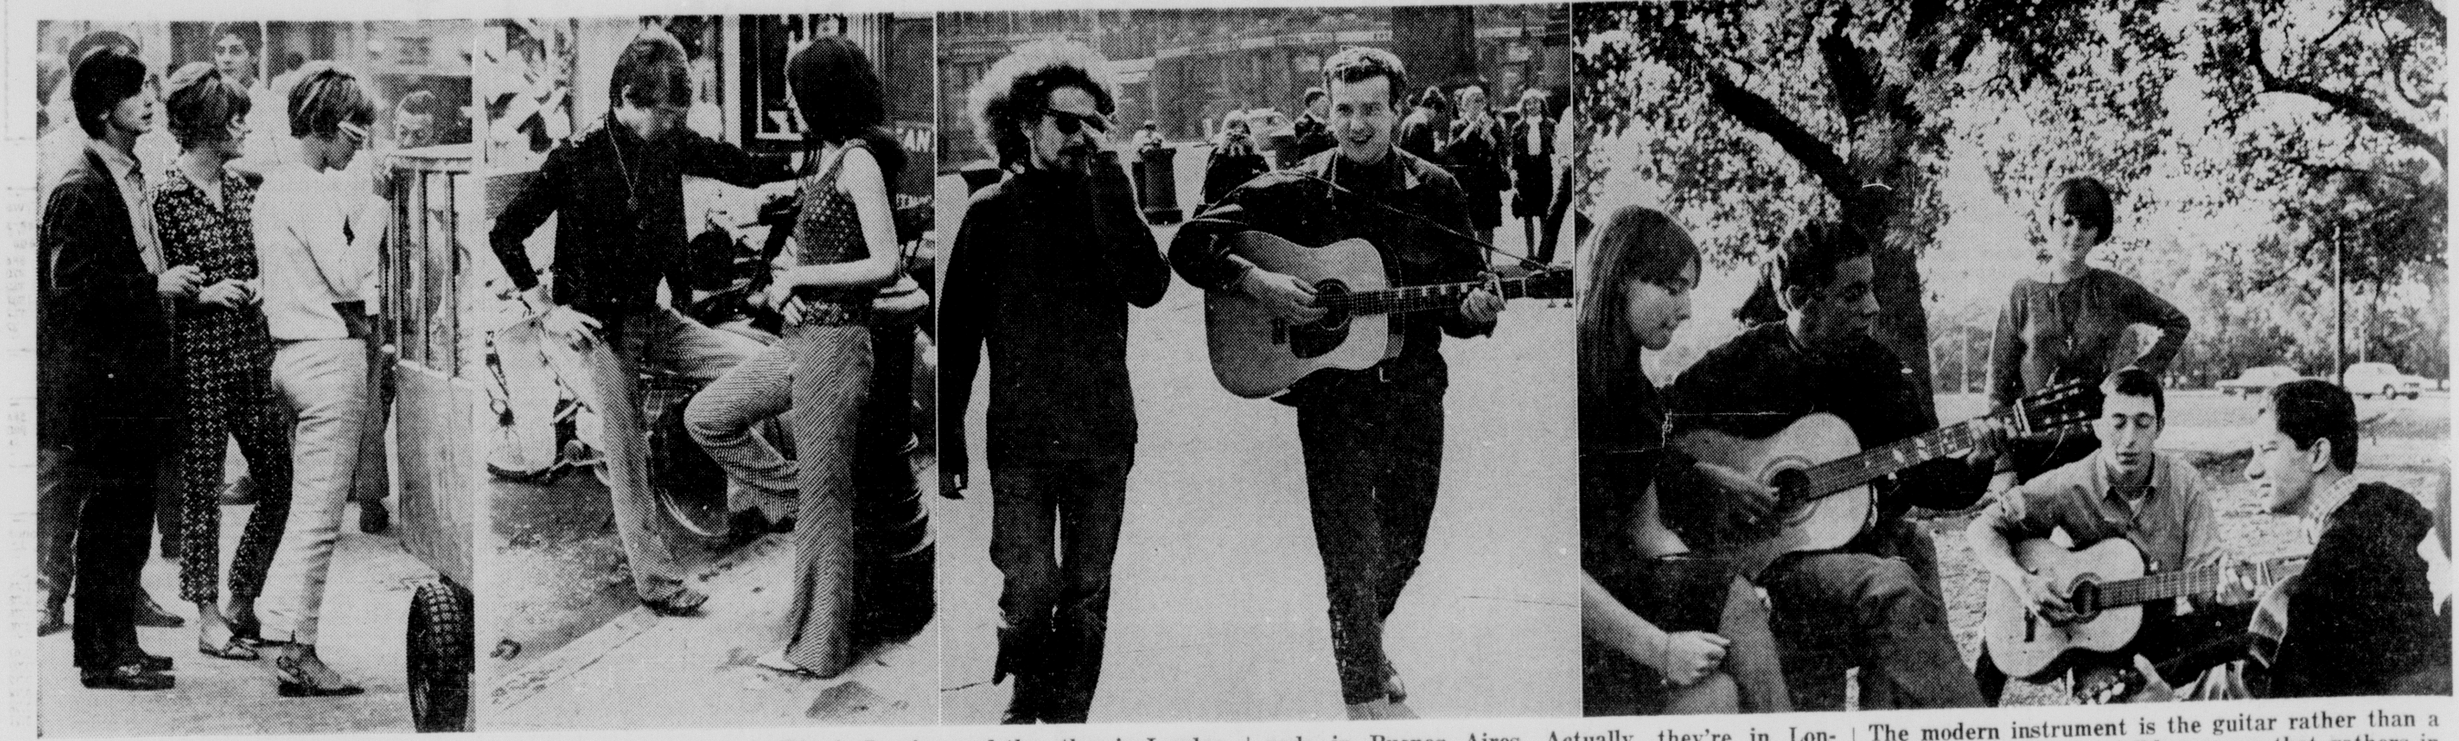
Northeast Louisiana State College was newsworthy during the week to an unusual extent, even for the attention-getter it's come to be.

Besides summer graduation — including the conferral of 180 degrees and an address by former Northeast administrator Dr. C. C. Colvert, now a professor at the University of Texas — the college's budget was worth a comment. Counting funds from the State Education Board — the primary source of revenue — with student fees and other local production, Northeast will operate in 1966-67 on a budget approximately $1.1 million larger than in 1965-66.

The new adjusted total budget estimate was listed as $5,553,843.

In the meantime, two new departments were announced at the college and five new top officials were named. Fresh departments are those of Building Construction and Psychology, to be headed, respectively, by Thurman I. Potts, lately of Watertown, S.D., and Dr. Oscar N. Walley Jr., who joined the Northeast faculty in 1963. Newly-named head of an existing department is Dr. Bernard Shadoin of Elementary and Secondary Education. Dr. W. K. Easley, head of the chemistry department, was named dean of the graduate school, and Dr. Glenn F. Powers, head of the physics department, was appointed dean of instruction.

Teen Society About Same Throughout Western World



THE CLOTHES of teen-agers have their impact on those worn by adults. Styles, among teens, catch on rapidly and spread around the world. In the two poses at left are shown the mod pants. The first group is in Rio de Janeiro, and the other in London. In the center, the beatnik type and his guitarist friend might be from New York's Greenwich Village area, a Stockholm square or walking down a promenade in Buenos Aires. Actually, they're in London's Trafalgar Square. The group at right like the Pied Piper of folklore, today's teen-ager uses an instrument to gather young followers around him. The modern instrument is the guitar rather than a flute. This is a young folklore group that gathers in a park in the Palermo district of Buenos Aires. (AP Newsfeatures Photos)

Between the ages of 15 and 19, there is a population sharing a world that knows no borders or national identity. It is the way out teenager society, and in the Westernized nations of every continent, one hippie can scarcely be detected from the other.

Long hair, radically-styled clothes, a zest for g r o o v y dancing and folk-rock music, are few of the surface characteristics of the group although it certainly does not apply to all the young folk.

Beneath the surface, it is clear that this is the new force in the world–a force that is not merely faithful to the trappings but recognizes the potential political strength in their growing and overwhelming numbers. The adults have to sit up and take notice.

The teenagers, the students, are the ones in the vanguard of much that is new and radical. Their styles have been modified and have had impact on clothes worn by adults. They are the users of g o o d s. They are the experimenters in the sexual revolution.

And so, the world over they share common excitements and common pursuits. The mod styles of London catch on in Tokyo. The Nordist caps of Paris find their way to the Americas. The British miniskirt goes to Sweden.

As always, their atmosphere is charged with the noise of action: the hopped-up throaty rumble of automobiles, the gutty roars of motorcycles, the boosted rhythm of electric guitars. Instrumental or vocal, the style is all decibels out and quiet be damned.

Except for the obvious racial characteristics and perhaps familiar background – The Spanish Steps of Rome are an easily identifiable hallmark–it would be difficult to tell from these photographs an Argentinian youth from a French one.

IN ROME, they call them "capelloni," the long haired ones. Except for the name, they are similar in dress and dance to other teens around the world. This particular group, dancing atop a table at the "Piper Club" in downtown Rome, has made the club their night time headquarters. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

THE STYLE IS the same for youth over the world. At left is two representative groups. The long hair style has become the universal image of many of today's teenagers. At left in the first picture, Swedish mods sit on the steps of the concert hall in Stockholm, a popular hangout for them. The group at right in the first picture sits at the base of a statue dedicated to an earlier rebel against society, Denis Diderot, in Paris. The next two scenes show a teen hangout in Tokyo and a boy's room in Paris. Both look alike. Another universality among the world's teens is their taste in decoration. Moscow's Soft Sell Toward Western Europe Seems To Be Paying Big Dividends

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Moscow's soft-sell policy toward Western Europe appears to be paying the Kremlin important dividends.

It seems to dim European memories and produce a wide-spread feeling that, so far as the continent is concerned, peace has broken out and a prosperous public can go confidently about its pursuit of easy living.

Only five years ago, Europe watched aghast as the Communists constructed a wall across divided Berlin. Only four years ago, the Russians tried to install offensive missiles in Cuba and provoked a brink-of-war crisis.

But since Nikita S. Khrushchev's fall, things have been different.

PEACEMAKERS

Today, the Russian leaders are even cast in the roles of potential peacemakers in Viet Nam. Lack of tension in the European air helps a process threatening gradual disintegration of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The Southeast Asia Treaty Organization is just the shell of an alliance, and the same seems true of the Central Treaty Organization linking NATO nations with the Middle East.

In Washington, leaders plagued by NATO's burgeoning problems may have an almost wistful, nostalgic feeling about the crises of other days which, frightening though they might have been, tended to push the allies together.

Many a European now seems to regard the U.S. military presence in Europe as anachronistic. The Communist world speaks frequently of a full-blown crisis in NATO. It interprets the example of France's President Charles de Gaulle, in his defection from the NATO military organization, as a powerful example for other states.

In the United States, proposals are made for the reduction of the American military commitment in Europe because of the enormous needs in Viet Nam.

Gerhard Schroeder, West Germany's foreign minister, indicated in a recent German magazine article his alarm at factors causing the allies to drift apart. He recalled the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

"It was a situation in which millions of people all over the world held their breath in view of the magnitude of the crisis with which they were suddenly faced," he wrote. "It would be bad if we had a short memory."

He admonished Europeans to remember the often repeated Soviet dictum — expressed early this year in a Kremlin letter to Red China — that Communist policy should be able at any moment to make an abrupt aboutface. He expressed worry at the lack of concern with which, he said, Europeans proclaim that "this or that situation in Europe can be dealt with without the Americans." Should the Americans back away from their European commitment, Schroeder said, "a tremor would shake the Continent and the supremacy of the other side would make itself felt."

SOME CHANGES

Not long ago, Washington could depend upon Moscow's leaders every once in a while to threaten a rain of rockets on the West or kick up a noisy crisis, thus pushing the allies together in mutual protection.

Ten years ago the Kremlin threatened to pour rockets on Britain and France because of their attack on Egypt in the Suez crisis. These were the same Soviet leaders who, only days before, had crushed a Hungarian revolution with overwhelming military might.

Eight years ago, Khrushchev laid down an ultimatum to the United States: Get out of Berlin within six months. He backed away from that later on. Five years ago, the Berlin Wall began a two-months crisis culminating in a nose-to-nose confrontation of American and Soviet tanks at Checkpoint Charlie. The Russians eventually backed down on that one, too, as they would a year later in the case of the Cuban missile showdown.

Since Khrushchev, there has been no major crisis involving Western Europe. What are the prospects?

KEY THINKING

Viet Nam looms large in Soviet political and strategic thinking. The world waits for Moscow to drop the other shoe — to make clear whether it will or will not help in the quest for peace there. Evidently the Kremlin would prefer not to do so unless it judged the risk of general war to be intolerable.

Barring that, the Soviet leaders may be pleased with the situation. The Americans spend more in one month in Viet Nam than the Russians have invested to date in aid to the Communist side. U.S. manpower and resources are taxed. Viet Nam causes U.S. domestic political trouble and abrades American relations abroad.

There would seem little percentage now in provoking new European tension. The Kremlin can consider it is doing quite well without that.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has reported that Moscow still has 20 divisions in East Germany. It retains the potential of any well armed totalitarian state to shift policy at a moment's notice.

Moscow proposes a nonaggression agreement between East and West blocs in Europe and dissolution of both NATO and Warsaw military organizations. Dismantlement of the Warsaw Pact would mean little, since it is an invention of the Russians and dominated by them. But NATO's end would mean a 3,000-mile withdrawal of the U.S. presence which protects Western Europe from the heavy pressures implicit in the East's enormous conventional military strength.

The end of NATO would also make it easier for the Kremlin to pursue its careful, limited support of what it calls "just wars of national liberation," which invariably turn out to be wars to promote Communist expansion.

The question before Western Europe appears to be this: Is it too soon to proclaim the beginning of an era of peace.

Federal Registrars Watch Voting Here

By BOB LEE
World Staff Writer

Police and other law agencies, as well as Democratic Voting Commissioners Saturday reported no activity out of the usual as thousands in Ouachita Parish cast their votes, even with approximately, 5,000 federally registered persons scheduled to vote, and generally two federal observers stationed at every precinct.

Confusion found its way into the process in some cases, however, with hundreds of the persons registered to vote by federal authorities in recent months reporting to vote in misdesignated precincts.

Mrs. Mae Lucky, Ouachita Parish Registrar of Voters, told of making hundreds of corrections in precinct designations in the federal rolls.

In a Ward 10 precinct, commissioners entered protests — filings on the votes cast by persons whose identity or registration seemed in doubt, while in another precinct, commissioners apparently were not aware of the protest forms in their paraphenalia.

Ouachita Democratic Committee Chairman Burt Sperry said totals of votes protested could not be gained Saturday except through individual precinct deputy commissioners — who seemed inclined not to make statements.

The two federal observers in the polling places questioned all persons referred to them on matters of registration and identification — and took copious notes on the person's predicament.

Two federal judges in New Orleans the day before the elections ruled injuctions against interference with the observers and their assistance of illiterate voters in the booths.

For probably the first time three persons were seen in one voting booth with the curtain closed — the voter, the commissioner giving him asked-for assistance, and the federal observer, observing the whole procedure. According to Friday's ruling, the observers could enter booths only when asked.

Though campaigning and the presence of posters are lawfully forbidden within 300 feet of all polling places, very few were without large autos parked nearby with large prominent political stickers facing the polls.

Many Negro voters appeared at the polls with small, typed-out voting keys — numbers standing for candidates in the various races — which they said were passed out at the close of a large Negro rally at Marbles Recreation Center Thursday.

U.S. Sees Viet Red Conflicts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States sees conflicting signs of North Viet Nam's intentions regarding the Vietnamese war, officials reported Saturday.

One set of signs might indicate the Hanoi regime is digging in for a long conflict. For example, there have been reports that some of North Viet Nam'e industry is being dispersed from the Hanoi-Haiphong areas. There recently were reports of some evacuation of people from Hanoi.

Another set of signs might indicate some degree of war weariness—not yet translated into any decision to end the war. These include reports by visitors to Hanoi of lowered morale.

Added together, officials said, the differing signs still make no coherent picture. But it was against this background that President Johnson this week gave Ambassador-at-large W. Averell Harriman an additional assignment to keep permanent track of diplomatic probes and reports concerning possibilities for peace talks.

Uncertainty about Hanoi's intentions was also cited by officials as one reason why it is so difficult for the U.S. to make estimates on how long the war might last and how many U.S. troops might be required.

There were recent press reports of an alleged government study concluding that U.S. forces would have to be incrased to 750,000 to end the war in eight years. President Johnson told a news conference Aug. 9 that he knew of no such study.

Morrison, Rep. Willis In Runoff

Morrison's chief challenger was John R. Rarick, a slightly built, bespectacled former state judge who campaigned on a slogan of "For God and Country." Morrison accused him of being a Klan member while Rarick retorted that the incumbent was "an LBJ rubber-stamp" and the "black power candidate."

At 11:15 p.m. CST, the count in the 6th District, from 265 of 329 precincts stood: Rep. Morrison 58,325; Rarick 49,651; James E. Morrison, no kin to the incumbent, 5,382; and three other candidates with less than 3,000 votes.

In the 4th District, where the health of Willis was a campaign topic, the count from 247 of 260 precincts, gave Willis 39,853; LeBlanc 22,271; State Rep. Dick Guidry of Galliano, 19,554, and political novice Ernest Kelly 1,800.

Guidry, however, refused to concede the second spot to the 71-year-old LeBlanc until all returns were counted.

Ellender polled 440,919 votes to 82,231 for J. D. DeBlieux, a state senator from Baton Rouge who had the support of organized labor; and 67,027 for Troyce Guice, a wealthy young conservative from Ferriday. The returns were from 2,125 of 2,338 precincts.

In Plaquemines Parish, one of the six assigned federal observers by Doar, fiery Leander H. Perez told election commissioners not to give the watchers "A glass of water or a crumb of bread."

Two freshman congressmen swamped opponents in their quest for a second term.

In the 8th District, Rep. Speedy O. Long of Jena, scored a 48,074-20,077 victory over Larry Parker, a onetime prizefighter and radio newsman now serving in the state legislature from Alexandria.

Rep. Edwin Edwards of Crowley, elected a year ago to an unexpired term, turned back Sulphur businessman Mervn J. LaBorde, 81,136-12,855 in the 7th District.

In the first Republican primary for a U. S. House nomination ever staged in the state, Crayton G. Sparky Hall was leading John P. Cornett 647-221 with 148 of 329 precincts reported in the 6th District.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert a former newspaperman who has been in Congress for 13 terms, easily defeated Alec L. Norris, a New Orleans entomolgist in the 1st District contest.

Norris had called Hebert a "tool" of Perez. Hebert replied that the Plaquemines Parish political leader was "an old and valued friend."

Perez, 75, a cigar-smoking, white-haired lawyer, has had the last — and frequently the only - word about Plaquemine Parish affairs for 45 years. He is considered the chief segregation spokesman in this Deep South state.

LeBlanc had made a big issue over Willis' health in the 3rd District race. Willis had what he described himself as "a little stroke" last fall. LeBlanc said Willis was too ill to continue in Congress. Willis is now perfectly healthy.

Rarick called Morrison "an LBJ rubberstamp" and the "Black Power candidate." Morrison said a vote for Rarick and "his hooded followers" in the 6th District — which includes racially - troubled Bogalusa — was tantamount to endorsing "extremism and bigotry."

Invites Inspection

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Metairie pharmaceutical manufacturer Satuday invited the governor's special committee to inspect his plant.

Paul H. Bowdle, president of Carrtone Laboratory, wired Gov. John J. McKeithen that the committee should see his plant and equipment and have an on-the-spot view of the manufacturing systems etc.

Bowdle's invitation, including lunch, went out after the governor's special committee had invited Carrtone officials to meet with the committee in Baton Rouge.

The committee was named to inquire why Carrtone did not receive business from Louisiana hospitals and institutions.

Federal Registrars Watch Voting Here

By BOB LEE
World Staff Writer

Police and other law agencies, as well as Democratic Voting Commissioners Saturday reported no activity out of the usual as thousands in Ouachita Parish cast their votes, even with approximately, 5,000 federally registered persons scheduled to vote, and generally two federal observers stationed at every precinct.

Confusion found its way into the process in some cases, however, with hundreds of the persons registered to vote by federal authorities in recent months reporting to vote in misdesignated precincts.

Mrs. Mae Lucky, Ouachita Parish Registrar of Voters, told of making hundreds of corrections in precinct designations in the federal rolls.

In a Ward 10 precinct, commissioners entered protests — filings on the votes cast by persons whose identity or registration seemed in doubt, while in another precinct, commissioners apparently were not aware of the protest forms in their paraphenalia.

Ouachita Democratic Committee Chairman Burt Sperry said totals of votes protested could not be gained Saturday except through individual precinct deputy commissioners — who seemed inclined not to make statements.

The two federal observers in the polling places questioned all persons referred to them on matters of registration and identification — and took copious notes on the person's predicament.

Two federal judges in New Orleans the day before the elections ruled injuctions against interference with the observers and their assistance of illiterate voters in the booths.

For probably the first time three persons were seen in one voting booth with the curtain closed — the voter, the commissioner giving him asked-for assistance, and the federal observer, observing the whole procedure. According to Friday's ruling, the observers could enter booths only when asked.

Though campaigning and the presence of posters are lawfully forbidden within 300 feet of all polling places, very few were without large autos parked nearby with large prominent political stickers facing the polls.

Many Negro voters appeared at the polls with small, typed-out voting keys — numbers standing for candidates in the various races — which they said were passed out at the close of a large Negro rally at Marbles Recreation Center Thursday.

U.S. Sees Viet Red Conflicts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States sees conflicting signs of North Viet Nam's intentions regarding the Vietnamese war, officials reported Saturday.

One set of signs might indicate the Hanoi regime is digging in for a long conflict. For example, there have been reports that some of North Viet Nam'e industry is being dispersed from the Hanoi-Haiphong areas. There recently were reports of some evacuation of people from Hanoi.

Another set of signs might indicate some degree of war weariness—not yet translated into any decision to end the war. These include reports by visitors to Hanoi of lowered morale.

Added together, officials said, the differing signs still make no coherent picture. But it was against this background that President Johnson this week gave Ambassador-at-large W. Averell Harriman an additional assignment to keep permanent track of diplomatic probes and reports concerning possibilities for peace talks.

Uncertainty about Hanoi's intentions was also cited by officials as one reason why it is so difficult for the U.S. to make estimates on how long the war might last and how many U.S. troops might be required.

There were recent press reports of an alleged government study concluding that U.S. forces would have to be increased to 750,000 to end the war in eight years. President Johnson told a news conference Aug. 9 that he knew of no such study.

Morrison, Rep. Willis In Runoff

Morrison's chief challenger was John R. Rarick, a slightly built, bespectacled former state judge who campaigned on a slogan of "For God and Country." Morrison accused him of being a Klan member while Rarick retorted that the incumbent was "an LBJ rubber-stamp" and the "black power candidate."

At 11:15 p.m. CST, the count in the 6th District, from 265 of 329 precincts stood: Rep. Morrison 58,325; Rarick 49,651; James E. Morrison, no kin to the incumbent, 5,382; and three other candidates with less than 3,000 votes.

In the 4th District, where the health of Willis was a campaign topic, the count from 247 of 260 precincts, gave Willis 39,853; LeBlanc 22,271; State Rep. Dick Guidry of Galliano, 19,554, and political novice Ernest Kelly 1,800.

Guidry, however, refused to concede the second spot to the 71-year-old LeBlanc until all returns were counted.

Ellender polled 440,919 votes to 82,231 for J. D. DeBlieux, a state senator from Baton Rouge who had the support of organized labor, and 67,027 for Troyce Guice, a wealthy young conservative from Ferriday. The returns were from 2,125 of 2,338 precincts.

In Plaquemines Parish, one of the six assigned federal observers by Doar, fiery Leander H. Perez told election commissioners not to give the watchers "A glass of water or a crumb of bread."

Two freshman congressmen swamped opponents in their quest for a second term.

In the 8th District, Rep. Speedy O. Long of Jena, scored a 48,074-20,077 victory over Larry Parker, a onetime prizefighter and radio newsman now serving in the state legislature from Alexandria.

Rep. Edwin Edwards of Crowley, elected a year ago to an unexpired term, turned back Sulphur businessman Merva J. LaBorde, 81,136-12,857 in the 7th District.

In the first Republican primary for a U. S. House nomination ever staged in the state, Crayton G. "Sparky" Hall was leading John P. Cornett 647-221 with 148 of 329 precincts reported in the 6th District.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert a former newspaperman who has been in Congress for 13 terms, easily defeated Alec L. Norris, a New Orleans entomologist in the 1st District contest.

Norris had called Hebert a "tool" of Perez. Hebert replied that the Plaquemines Parish political leader was "an old and valued friend."

Perez, 75, a cigar-smoking, white-haired lawyer, has had the last — and frequently the only — word about Plaquemine Parish affairs for 45 years. He is considered the chief segregation spokesman in this Deep South state.

LeBlanc had made a big issue over Willis' health in the 3rd District race. Willis had what he described himself as "a little stroke" last fall. LeBlanc said Willis was too ill to continue in Congress. Willis is now perfectly healthy.

Rarick called Morrison "an LBJ rubberstamp" and the "Black Power candidate." Morrison said a vote for Rarick and "his hooded followers" in the 6th District — which includes racially - troubled Bogalusa — was tantamount to endorsing "extremism and bigotry."

Invites Inspection

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Metairie pharmaceutical manufacturer Saturday invited the governor's special committee to inspect his plant.

Paul H. Bowdle, president of Carrtone Laboratory, wired Gov. John J. McKeithen that the committee should see his plant and equipment and have an on-the-spot view of the manufacturing systems etc.

Bowdle's invitation, including lunch, went out after the governor's special committee had invited Carrtone officials to meet with the committee in Baton Rouge.

The committee was named to inquire why Carrtone did not receive business from Louisiana hospitals and institutions.

Anyone For A Challenge?

Although I realize a good sports column should be written for the enjoyment of as many people as possible, I am breaking the rule today.

This column will actually only be worth while to a select group. That group is the major league baseball fans who fancy themselves as the "expert."

If you don't feel you know too much about the game I advise you to look elsewhere today for your entertainment. Unless, of course, you want to be enlightened.

And, for those of you old reliables who are confident of your baseball knowledge I might advise you to read this in private — it could get embarrassing if some of those people you've been impressing all these years (such as wife, neighbor, golf partner) should ask you some of these questions before you have readied yourself.

You see, today we are going to play "Baseball Quiz" just for a check on all you perfectionists. Answers will appear at lower half of the column. And, don't cheat.

QUESTIONS FOR THE SCHOLARS

1. Obviously, Babe Ruth is the major league leader in number of years hitting most home runs (12), but who is the national league player holding that title? What was his most productive year?

2. Three-base hits, a test of speed and power, are on the decline now. Who was the last man to record 20 triples in one year? Incidentally, he was a national leaguer. Therefore, I also want to know who the last American leaguer was to accomplish the feat.

3. Mickey Mantle has led the American League in many offensive categories. However, twice he has led the league for three consecutive years in a category. One was for most runs scored in a season (1956-57-58). What was the other category?

4. How many batting titles did Ty Cobb win? How many did he win in a row? What was his highest winning mark and lowest winning mark?

5. Everybody knows the Yankees have won the most world championships. But do you know how many times they have won it? What is the most world titles won in succession by the Yanks? What major league club is second on the list of World Series titles?

6. Although Roger Maris hit 61 homers in 1961, Babe Ruth's total of 60 still stands for a 154 game season. Who is second to Ruth's record for 154 games?

7. One major league baseball park has a glass backstop rather than the normal wire screen. Which park is it and when was it installed?

8. Dizzy Dean was the last man to win 30 games in a season, compiling a 30-7 mark in 1930. What pitcher turned the trick last before Dean? What pitcher has come the nearest to 30 victories since Dean?

9. Who was the last man to hit .400 in the National League? What's the highest number of RBI's ever recorded for a single season in either league? What's the most hits ever recorded in one season in either league?

10. How many pitchers have thrown two no-hitters in one season?

11. Babe Ruth's playing career spanned 21 years. What was his highest salary and his lowest?

12. What is the record for consecutive number of strike outs by a relief pitcher? (Hint: it was set last year.)

13. Has Willie Mays ever led the National League in stolen bases? If so (that ought to tell you brighter people something) how many times?

14. There have been nine world series won in four straight games. Only four teams possess all nine wins between them. Who are they?

15. Ty Cobb's career spanned over a 24 year period. How many times did his batting average fall under the .300 mark?

ANSWERS, IF YOU PLEASE

1. Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh, seven years (1946-1952). Highest total was 54 in 1949.

2. Willie Mays, 20 triples in 1957. Dale Mitchell was last in AL, hitting 23 for Cleveland in 1949.

3. Strikeouts. Mantle led in 1958 with 120 (tied with James Lemon of Washington), in 1959 with 126 and 1960 with 125. He also led in 1952 with 111 and in 1954 with 107.

4. Cobb won 12 titles, three in a row. Highest winning mark was .420 in 1911, lowest was .324 in 1908.

5. Yankees have won 20 world titles, taking five straight from 1949-1953. St. Louis is second with seven titles.

6. Babe Ruth is second to Babe Ruth. The second highest total was 59 by The Babe in 1921. Two others totaled 58 for a season: James Foxx in 1932 and Hank Greenberg in 1938.

7. The use of a glass backstop was introduced at Crosley Field in Cincinnati in 1965. Made of herculite glass, it measures 54 feet, 10 inches in length and is 15 feet, 4 inches high.

8. Robert (Lefty) Grove of Philadelphia in 1931 when he won 31 and lost four. Since Dean, Hal Newhouser, Detroit, has come the closest, winning 29 and losing eight in 1944.

9. Last in NL to hit .400 or better was Bill Terry, New York, with a .401 average in 1930. Lewis (Hack) Wilson is top RBI man ever with 190 in 1930. Most hits in one season was 257, collected by George Sisler, St. Louis, in 1920.

10. Four. Jim Maloney, Cincinnati, is the most recent. Maloney pitched two 10-inning no-hitters in 1965, winning one and losing one by identical 1-0 scores. Others are Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati, 1938 when he became the only man to ever pitch back-to-back no-hitters (June 11 and June 15); Allie Reynolds, New York Yankees, 1951; and Virgil Trucks, Detroit, 1952.

11. Ruth's highest salary was $80,000 in both 1930 and 1931 while with Yankees. Lowest was $1,300 in 1914, his first pro season when he played with Baltimore and Providence of the International League before finishing the season with Boston of the American League.

13. Yes. Mays led the NL in stolen bases four straight years, 1956-1959.

14. Boston swept the series in 1914, New York Giants in 1954, Los Angeles Dodgers in 1963 and the New York Yankees own the other six four-game World Series sweeps, 1927-28-32-38-39-50.

15. Once. He hit .240 in 1905, his first year in the majors when he played in only 41 games, and batted over .300 the next 23 seasons.

(If you answered 10 of the 15 consider yourself an "expert." If you didn't but would like a second chance at some more questions, drop me a note and we'll go again soon).

Reds Slaughter Bucs, 11-0

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati erupted for eight runs in the fifth inning and Jim Maloney hurled a two-hitter as the Reds walloped the Pittsburgh Pirates 11-0 Saturday in a game called at the end of five innings because of rain.

The shutout, first over the National League-leading Pirates, since June 15, when they lost 1-0 to St. Louis, ended their winning string at four games.

The Reds sent 11 batters to the plate in the fifth inning. Vada Pinson, Pete Rose and Leo Cardenas knocked in two runs apiece and Tommy Helms and Deron Johnson delivered one each.

Cincinnati rapped seven hits in the inning, including doubles by Johnson, Helms and Rose, as they knocked out rookie Woody Fryman, now 9-7.

The Reds scored in the second on a single by Tony Perez and Don Pavletich's triple. They added two more in the third on run-scoring singles by Johnson and Perez, who collected three straight hist.

Maloney gave up successive singles to Jose Pagan and Donn Clendenon in the second inning for the Pirates' only htis. The right-hander struck out seven in recording his 13th victory against four losses.

Newman Directs California Past White Sox, 7-3

CHICAGO (AP)—Fred Newman stifled Chicago on five hits and batted in a pair of runs as the California Angels snapped the White Sox' eight-game winning streak with a 7-3 victory Saturday.

The Angels wrapped it up with a four-run second inning that kayoed starter Joe Horlen. Norm Siebern singled, Bob Rodgers doubled, and after Ed Kirkpatrick fanned, Tom Satriano was intentionally passed, filling the bases.

Koufax Wins 19th With Five-Hitter

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sandy Koufax pitched a five-hitter, struck out 11 and gained his 19th victory Saturday as the Los Angeles Dodgers broke a four-game losing streak with a 6-1 victory over Chicago.

Koufax, 19-6, held the Cubs hitless until Ron Santo lined a single to center field with two out in the fourth inning. Pitcher Dick Ellsworth singled with one out in the eighth and Koufax yielded a run in the ninth on singles by Billy Williams, Santo and Byron Browne.

Tommy Davis drove in three runs with three singles and a homer, pacing the Dodgers' 12-hit attack against Ellsworth, who suffered his 18th loss in 23 decisions. Willie Davis drove in two runs with a single.

It was the 12th time this season and 94th time in his career that Koufax has struck out 10 or more batters in a game. The 30-year-old left-hander reduced his earned run average to 1.62, lowest among National League starting pitchers.

Koufax' third strikeout of the game, in the third inning, was the 2,311th of his career, moving him into ninth place on the all-time list, ahead of Rube Waddell.

Another Notch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers moved into ninth place on the all-time list of strikeout leaders when he calked up the 2,311th of his career Saturday.

Koufax' fanned Chicago pitcher Dick Ellsworth for his third strikeout of the game in the third inning and moved past Rube Waddell's 2,310 and behind Early Wynn, who had 2,334 in his career.

The all-time strikeout leader is Walter Johnson, who had 3,508.

Orioles Rap Senators, 5-2 With Snyder

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles scored five runs in the fourth inning, the last three on Russ Snyder's bases-loaded single and a Washington throwing error, and whipped the Senators 5-2 Saturday nighht.

The victory enabled the American League leading Orioles to maintain their 12-game margin over second-place Detroit.

Bloop hits by Bob Johnson and winning pitcher Jim Palmer with two out in the fourth scored the first two runs in Baltimore's rally against loser Phil Ortega, who contributed to his own downfall with two walks and a hit batsman.

Three more Orioles crossed the plate when Snyder singled with the bases loaded and Washington center fielder Don Lock made an off-target throw to the infield.

Palmer, Baltimore's top winner at 13-6, struck out seven before he was relieved in the eighth by Eddie Fisher.

Palmer's wild pitch sent the first Washington run across in the second after a two-out walk to Ken Harrelson and Paul Casanova's single.

Colts Romp Over Eagles

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A nimble Johnny Unitas and his No. 1 stand-in, Gary Cuozzo, pierced Philadelphia's air defense with four touchdown passes Saturday night as Baltimore defeated the Eagles, 31-17 in an exhibition game.

Unitas, whose injured knee hurt the Colts in the National Football League race last year, was in prime condition, and the mammoth Colt line guarded him ferociously.

Operating for the first half only, Unitas nailed end Jack Mackey with a spectacular 40-yard touchdown pass for the first Colt score. He hit end Butch Wilson from 32 yards for the second.

Cuozzo, not as flashy but almost equally proficient, nailed Jimmy Orr with a 21-yard TD pass and also hit flanker Willie Richardson with a 30-yard scoring heave.

The Eagles' first touchdown came after Randy Beisler intercepted a Unitas pass on the 34. Fullback Earl Gros rammed over from the one-yard line eight plays later.

The second was set up when Baltimore's Ted Davis fumbled a punt on his own 29. Quarterback Jack Concannon then passed 29 yards to flanker Ben Hawkins, who wrestled the ball from a Colt defender and fell across the goal.

Lou Michaels of Baltimore booted a 33-yard field goal and Philadelphia's Sam Baker kicked one from 22 yards.

Giants Topple Atlanta Falcons

By BOB GILBERT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Veteran quarterback Earl Morrall passed for two touchdowns as the New York Giants defeated the new Atlanta Falcons 14-7 in a National Football League exhibition game Saturday night.

Atlanta, looking for its first victory, threatened to tie the score in the final two minutes but stalled at the Giants' eight-yard line when Jimmy Patton and Wendell Harris deflected a pass in the end zone.

Morrall concentrated on his passing attack, completing 20 of his attempts for 213 yards. He connected seven times to Joe Morrison for 84 yards and hit Morrison and end Homer Jones for the two touchdowns.

Atlanta tied the score in the third quarter when rookie defensive back Ron Smith, who has two of the Falcons' three touchdowns in exhibition games, intercepted a pass and returned it 68 yards to score.

The first Giant touchdown drive covered 80 yards, with Morrall tossing to Morrison from the two for the score.

David Lee Takes Post At Oak Grove

OAK GROVE (Special) — Oak Grove High School terminated its search for a head football coach Saturday when it named David Lee to take over immediately in that capacity.

Lee, who comes to Oak Grove from Lake Providence where he has served as an assistant for five years, will be joined by Lloyd Ray Smith who is to be Lee's top assistant.

Lee's appointment comes eight days after Woody Boyles announced his resignation at Oak Grove to take over the head coach and athletic directorship at Caldwell High School.

A Star City, Ark., native, Lee graduated from Arkansas A&M College at Monticello, Ark., where he played football.

After graduation, he went to Eudora, Ark., High School where he was an assistant for three years and head coach for one year.

He then went to Lake Providence in 1961 and has been an assistant there since then. Lee is married and has four children, two girls and two boys, ranging in age from five to 13.

Lee has attended Lamar Tech, University of Arkansas and LSU on National Science Foundation grants in science and is currently working on his masters degree at Ole Miss.

The University of Mississippi summer session is not out until Wednesday. Smith will be in charge of drills until then.

Smith, a native of Pioneer, will be the head track coach along with his football duties. He is a graduate of Bastrop High School and Northeast State College where he was an all-GSC fullback.

After college graduation, Smith was an assistant at Farmerville one year, head coach at Bernice for two years and an assistant at West Monroe last year.

Smith, who received his masters degree from Northeast in 1963, is married and has two children, a girl seven and boy five.

A "get-acquainted" fete will be held today at Oak Grove for all high school athletes and the Oak Grove quarterback club. The affair will begin at 1 p.m. at Brackett's Cafe in Oak Grove.

Principal Sam Gallien said that school officials were "very pleased with the number of men who applied for the job, and especially with the caliber of all the applicants."

Anyone For A Challenge?

Although I realize a good sports column should be written for the enjoyment of as many people as possible, I am breaking the rule today.

This column will actually only be worth while to a select group. That group is the major league baseball fans who fancy themselves as the "expert."

If you don't feel you know too much about the game I advise you to look elsewhere today for your entertainment. Unless, of course, you want to be enlightened.

And, for those of you old reliables who are confident of your baseball knowledge I might advise you to read this in private — it could get embarrassing if some of those people you've been impressing all these years (such as wife, neighbor, golf partner) should ask you some of these questions before you have readied yourself.

You see, today we are going to play "Baseball Quiz" just for a check on all you perfectionists. Answers will appear at lower half of the column. And, don't cheat.

QUESTIONS FOR THE SCHOLARS

1. Obviously, Babe Ruth is the major league leader in number of years hitting most home runs (12), but who is the national league player holding that title? What was his most productive year?

2. Three-base hits, a test of speed and power, are on the decline now. Who was the last man to record 20 triples in one year? Incidentally, he was a national leaguer. Therefore, I also want to know who the last American leaguer was to accomplish the feat.

3. Mickey Mantle has led the American League in many offensive categories. However, twice he has led the league for three consecutive years in a category. One was for most runs scored in a season (1956-57-58). What was the other category?

4. How many batting titles did Ty Cobb win? How many did he win in a row? What was his highest winning mark and lowest winning mark?

5. Everybody knows the Yankees have won the most world championships. But do you know how many times they have won it? What is the most world titles won in succession by the Yanks? What major league club is second on the list of World Series titles?

6. Although Roger Maris hit 61 homers in 1961, Babe Ruth's total of 60 still stands for a 154 game season. Who is second to Ruth's record for 154 games?

7. One major league baseball park has a glass backstop rather than the normal wire screen. Which park is it and when was it installed?

8. Dizzy Dean was the last man to win 30 games in a season, compiling a 30-7 mark in 1930. What pitcher turned the trick last before Dean? What pitcher has come the nearest to 30 victories since Dean?

9. Who was the last man to hit .400 in the National League? What's the highest number of RBI's ever recorded for a single season in either league? What's the most hits ever recorded in one season in either league?

10. How many pitchers have thrown two no-hitters in one season?

11. Babe Ruth's playing career spanned 21 years. What was his highest salary and his lowest?

12. What is the record for consecutive number of strike outs by a relief pitcher? (Hint: it was set last year.)

13. Has Willie Mays ever led the National League in stolen bases? If so (that ought to tell you brighter people something) how many times?

14. There have been nine world series won in four straight games. Only four teams possess all nine wins between them. Who are they?

15. Ty Cobb's career spanned over a 24 year period. How many times did his batting average fall under the .300 mark?

ANSWERS, IF YOU PLEASE

1. Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh, seven years (1946-1952). Highest total was 54 in 1949.

2. Willie Mays, 20 triples in 1957. Dale Mitchell was last in AL, hitting 23 for Cleveland in 1949.

3. Strikeouts. Mantle led in 1958 with 120 (tied with James Lemon of Washington), in 1959 with 126 and 1960 with 125. He also led in 1952 with 111 and in 1954 with 107.

4. Cobb won 12 titles, three in a row. Highest winning mark was .420 in 1911, lowest was .324 in 1908.

5. Yankees have won 20 world titles, taking five straight from 1949-1953. St. Louis is second with seven titles.

6. Babe Ruth is second to Babe Ruth. The second highest total was 59 by The Babe in 1921. Two others totaled 58 for a season: James Foxx in 1932 and Hank Greenberg in 1938.

7. The use of a glass backstop was introduced at Crosley Field in Cincinnati in 1965. Made of herculite glass, it measures 54 feet, 10 inches in length and is 15 feet, 4 inches high.

8. Robert (Lefty) Grove of Philadelphia in 1931 when he won 31 and lost four. Since Dean, Hal Newhouser, Detroit, has come the closest, winning 29 and losing eight in 1944.

9. Last in NL to hit .400 or better was Bill Terry, New York, with a .401 average in 1930. Lewis (Hack) Wilson is top RBI man ever with 190 in 1930. Most hits in one season was 257, collected by George Sisler, St. Louis, in 1920.

10. Four. Jim Maloney, Cincinnati, is the most recent. Maloney pitched two 10-inning no-hitters in 1965, winning one and losing one by identical 1-0 scores. Others are Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati, 1938 when he became the only man to ever pitch back-to-back no-hitters (June 11 and June 15); Allie Reynolds, New York Yankees, 1951; and Virgil Trucks, Detroit, 1952.

11. Ruth's highest salary was $80,000 in both 1930 and 1931 while with Yankees. Lowest was $1,300 in 1914, his first pro season when he played with Baltimore and Providence of the International League before finishing the season with Boston of the American League.

13. Yes. Mays led the NL in stolen bases four straight years, 1956-1959.

14. Boston swept the series in 1914, New York Giants in 1954, Los Angeles Dodgers in 1963 and the New York Yankees own the other six four-game World Series sweeps, 1927-28-32-38-39-50.

15. Once. He hit .240 in 1905, his first year in the majors when he played in only 41 games, and batted over .300 the next 23 seasons.

(If you answered 10 of the 15 consider yourself an "expert." If you didn't but would like a second chance at some more questions, drop me a note and we'll go again soon).

Koufax Wins 19th With Five-Hitter

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sandy Koufax pitched a five-hitter, struck out 11 and gained his 19th victory Saturday as the Los Angeles Dodgers broke a four-game losing streak with a 6-1 victory over Chicago.

Koufax, 19-6, held the Cubs hitless until Ron Santo lined a single to center field with two out in the fourth inning. Pitcher Dick Ellsworth singled with one out in the eighth and Koufax yielded a run in the ninth on singles by Billy Williams, Santo and Byron Browne.

Tommy Davis drove in three runs with three singles and a homer, pacing the Dodgers' 12-hit attack against Ellsworth, who suffered his 18th loss in 23 decisions. Willie Davis drove in two runs with a single.

It was the 12th time this season and 94th time in his career that Koufax has struck out 10 or more batters in a game. The 30-year-old left-hander reduced his earned run average to 1.62, lowest among National League starting pitchers.

Koufax' third strikeout of the game, in the third inning, was the 2,311th of his career, moving him into ninth place on the all-time list, ahead of Rube Waddell.

Another Notch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers moved into ninth place on the all-time list of strikeout leaders when he calked up the 2,311th of his career Saturday.

Koufax' fanned Chicago pitcher Dick Ellsworth for his third strikeout of the game in the third inning and moved past Rube Waddell's 2,310 and behind Early Wynn, who had 2,334 in his career.

The all-time strikeout leader is Walter Johnson, who had 3,508.

Reds Slaughter Bucs, 11-0

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati erupted for eight runs in the fifth inning and Jim Maloney hurled a two-hitter as the Reds walloped the Pittsburgh Pirates 11-0 Saturday in a game called at the end of five innings because of rain.

The shutout, first over the National League-leading Pirates, since June 15, when they lost 1-0 to St. Louis, ended their winning string at four games.

The Reds sent 11 batters to the plate in the fifth inning. Vada Pinson, Pete Rose and Leo Cardenas knocked in two runs apiece and Tommy Helms and Deron Johnson delivered one each.

Cincinnati rapped seven hits in the inning, including doubles by Johnson, Helms and Rose, as they knocked out rookie Woody Fryman, now 9-7.

The Reds scored in the second on a single by Tony Perez and Don Pavletich's triple. They added two more in the third on run-scoring singles by Johnson and Perez, who collected three straight hist.

Maloney gave up successive singles to Jose Pagan and Donn Clendenon in the second inning for the Pirates' only htis. The right-hander struck out seven in recording his 13th victory against four losses.

Newman Directs California Past White Sox, 7-3

CHICAGO (AP)—Fred Newman stifled Chicago on five hits and batted in a pair of runs as the California Angels snapped the White Sox' eight-game winning streak with a 7-3 victory Saturday.

The Angels wrapped it up with a four-run second inning that kayoed starter Joe Horlen. Norm Siebern singled, Bob Rodgers doubled, and after Ed Kirkpatrick fanned, Tom Satriano was intentionally passed, filling the bases.

Bobby Knoop singled home Siebern and Rodgers, with Satriano taking third and Knoop second on a throw to the plate. Newman then singled to left, scoring Satriano and Knoop.

Orioles Rap Senators, 5-2 With Snyder

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles scored five runs in the fourth inning, the last three on Russ Snyder's bases-loaded single and a Washington throwing error, and whipped the Senators 5-2 Saturday nighht.

The victory enabled the American League leading Orioles to maintain their 12-game margin over second-place Detroit.

Bloop hits by Bob Johnson and winning pitcher Jim Palmer with two out in the fourth scored the first two runs in Baltimore's rally against loser Phil Ortega, who contributed to his own downfall with two walks and a hit batsman.

Three more Orioles crossed the plate when Snyder singled with the bases loaded and Washington center fielder Don Lock made an off-target throw to the infield.

Palmer, Baltimore's top winner at 13-6, struck out seven before he was relieved in the eighth by Eddie Fisher.

Palmer's wild pitch sent the first Washington run across in the second after a two-out walk to Ken Harrelson and Paul Casanova's single.

Colts Romp Over Eagles

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A nimble Johnny Unitas and his No. 1 stand-in, Gary Cuozzo, pierced Philadelphia's air defense with four touchdown passes Saturday night as Baltimore defeated the Eagles, 31-17 in an exhibition game.

Unitas, whose injured knee hurt the Colts in the National Football League race last year, was in prime condition, and the mammoth Colt line guarded him ferociously.

Operating for the first half only, Unitas nailed end Jack Mackey with a spectacular 40-yard touchdown pass for the first Colt score. He hit end Butch Wilson from 32 yards for the second.

Cuozzo, not as flashy but almost equally proficient, nailed Jimmy Orr with a 21-yard TD pass and also hit flanker Willie Richardson with a 30-yard scoring heave.

The Eagles' first touchdown came after Randy Beisler intercepted a Unitas pass on the 34. Fullback Earl Gros rammed over from the one-yard line eight plays later.

The second was set up when Baltimore's Ted Davis fumbled a punt on his own 29. Quarterback Jack Concannon then passed 29 yards to flanker Ben Hawkins, who wrestled the ball from a Colt defender and fell across the goal.

Lou Michaels of Baltimore booted a 33-yard field goal and Philadelphia's Sam Baker kicked one from 22 yards.

Giants Topple Atlanta Falcons

By BOB GILBERT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Veteran quarterback Earl Morrall passed for two touchdowns as the New York Giants defeated the new Atlanta Falcons 14-7 in a National Football League exhibition game Saturday night.

Atlanta, looking for its first victory, threatened to tie the score in the final two minutes but stalled at the Giants' eight-yard line when Jimmy Patton and Wendell Harris deflected a pass in the end zone.

Morrall concentrated on his passing attack, completing 20 of his attempts for 213 yards. He connected seven times to Joe Morrison for 84 yards and hit Morrison and end Homer Jones for the two touchdowns.

Atlanta tied the score in the third quarter when rookie defensive back Ron Smith, who has two of the Falcons' three touchdowns in exhibition games, intercepted a pass and returned it 68 yards to score.

The first Giant touchdown drive covered 80 yards, with Morrall tossing to Morrison from the two for the score.

David Lee Takes Post At Oak Grove

OAK GROVE (Special) — Oak Grove High School terminated its search for a head football coach Saturday when it named David Lee to take over immediately in that capacity.

Lee, who comes to Oak Grove from Lake Providence where he has served as an assistant for five years, will be joined by Lloyd Ray Smith who is to be Lee's top assistant.

Lee's appointment comes eight days after Woody Boyles announced his resignation at Oak Grove to take over the head coach and athletic directorship at Caldwell High School.

A Star City, Ark., native, Lee graduated from Arkansas A&M College at Monticello, Ark., where he played football.

After graduation, he went to Eudora, Ark., High School where he was an assistant for three years and head coach for one year.

He then went to Lake Providence in 1961 and has been an assistant there since then. Lee is married and has four children, two girls and two boys, ranging in age from five to 13.

Lee has attended Lamar Tech, University of Arkansas and LSU on National Science Foundation grants in science and is currently working on his masters degree at Ole Miss.

The University of Mississippi summer session is not out until Wednesday. Smith will be in charge of drills until then.

Smith, a native of Pioneer, will be the head track coach along with his football duties. He is a graduate of Bastrop High School and Northeast State College where he was an all-GSC fullback.

After college graduation, Smith was an assistant at Farmerville one year, head coach at Bernice for two years and an assistant at West Monroe last year.

Smith, who received his masters degree from Northeast in 1963, is married and has two children, a girl seven and boy five.

A "get-acquainted" fete will be held today at Oak Grove for all high school athletes and the Oak Grove quarterback club. The affair will begin at 1 p.m. at Brackett's Cafe in Oak Grove.

Principal Sam Gallien said that school officials were "very pleased with the number of men who applied for the job, and especially with the caliber of all the applicants."

Baseball Now Quietly Plans It's Timetable For Expansion

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the Wisconsin State Supreme Court has ruled that baseball is the master of its own destiny, the sports' higher officials are quietly planning a timetable for expansion that in all probability will culminate in two 12-club leagues by 1970.

First on the agenda is a December meeting of baseball's deep thinkers to modernize the list of requirements a city must meet to get a franchise. If everything goes according to plan the four winners will be named early in 1968 and the new teams will take the field in 1970.

Current thinking is that the four new major league members will come from the following five cities—Seattle, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Diego, Oakland and Milwaukee.

Right now Seattle is the most favored city. There is talk of a domed stadium but the big lure is the vast, virgin television area. Seattle has the same appeal that Atlanta offered before the Braves foresook Milwaukee.

In reverse, Milwaukee has the least appeal and its recent court battles with baseball have nothing to do with the Wisconsin city's position. The former home of the Braves offers a restricted television field because of the Chicago Cubs and White Sox to the south, the Minnesota Twins to the northwest and Lake Michigan on the east. Just as the popcorn machine in the lobby kept many movie houses solvent in recent years, so television now pays much of the financial freight in baseball.

That leaves Oakland, where a new stadium already is built; San Diego, where a new plant is under construction; Dallas-Fort Worth, where Lamar Hunt of the American Football Leavue already owns the minor league team; and Seattle as the likely four newcomers.

None of baseball's higher regime will be quoted directly but apparently the idea of three major leagues of eight clubs each is dead and when the new members are admitted two circuits of 12 clubs will be established.

Each league, in turn, would be divided into two sections of six each. Each club would play all other clubs in its league but would play more with those in its own division. Then, for the benefit of more television gold, the two division leaders would meet to determine the league champion and its representative in the World Series.

Assuming that Seattle, San Diego, Oakland and Dallas-Fort Worth make the grade, the National League could have an Eastern Division made up of New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Cincinnati and Chicago. Its Western Division would have Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, Seattle, Houston and St. Louis.

The American League layout would have an Eastern Division made up of New York, Boston, Baltimore, Washington, Detroit and Cleveland. In the (EST would be California, Oakland, Minnesota, Dallas-Fort Worth, Kansas City and Chicago.

Bunning, Culp Fire Phillies To Sweep

ATLANTA (AP) — Jim Bunning and Ray Culp pitched Philadelphia to a 4-2, 7-4 sweep of a doubleheader over Atlanta Saturday night.

The victories by the Phillies broke Atlanta's four-game winning streak and presented Billy Hitchcock with his first defeat since he replaced Bobby Bragan as Braves manager last Tuesday.

Richie Allen, Philadelphia third baseman, carried most of the offensive punch for the Phillies driving in three runs in the first game with a homer in the first inning and two more in the second game.

For Bunning, it was his 13th victory against eight defeats this season and Culp's record now is 4-4.

A double by Dick Groat and a bases-loaded single by Allen gave the Phillies a 4-1 lead in the second game, with Groat collecting his two RBI in the second inning with Allen and Clay Dalrymple on base. It gave the Phils a 2-0 lead.

The Braves scored in the third when Hank Aaron stole second, then third and scored on a single by Denis Menke.

Namath Hurt As Jets Win

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The New York Jets foiled a Houston gamble and defeated the Oilers 16-10 in an American Football League exhibition game Saturday night that saw Jet quarterback Joe Namath blasted out of action.

Namath's injury — said to be a minor knee strain that will keep him sidelined for two weeks — overshadowed the field play which attracted 57,205 fans, the most ever to see a pre-season AFL game.

It was the first AFL loss for Houston Coach Wally Lemm, who had guided the Oilers to 11 straight victories dating back to 1961. He came back to the Oilers this year after four years with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League.

The key play came late in the fourth quarter with the Jets leading 13-10. The Oilers gambled on a fourth and two situation on their own 36, and Jet defenders Jim Gray and Ralph Baker tossed Oiler halfback Sid Blanks for a three-yard loss.

Quarterback Mike Taliaferro, filling in for the injurd Namath, took the Jets in for the insurance field goal, a 17-yarder by Curley Johnson. Johnson also kicked the go-ahead three-pointer from the 38-yard line about midway in the fourth quarter.

The Oilers took a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on a 40-yard field goal by Blanda, but late in the period, Namath got the Jets rolling.

He had driven them to the Oiler 23 when Fullback Matt Snell fumbled and a Houston man recovered. Houstn defensive end Don Floyd blocked Namath with all of his 255-pounds, sending the former Alabama star spinning to the ground. That was all for Namath.

New York took command in the second quarter, scoring 10 points on a 25-yard field goal by Jim Turner and a touchdown, a naked reverse by Taliaferro from the 10.

The Oilers tied the score in the fourth when Blanda, who took over from Dun Trull, hit Charles Hennigan with a 16-yard scoring pass.

Jefferson Meet

Jefferson Junior High School coach Robert Sims said that the regular pre-season football meeting will be held Monday at 8 a.m. at the school gym.

The meeting is for seventh and eighth graders.

Portable Track Planned For Civic Center

Monroe Mayor Jack Howard has authorized Civic Center director, Bill Lillyman, to explore the costs involved in installing a portable track at the Monroe Civic Center.

The Monroe City Council had talked about the installation of a track, but it had been put off for some time in the future. After further consideration, Howard felt that the track was necessary now, and this is one of the projects Lillyman will be working on when he goes to New York next week.

The primary reason for considering this project now is to give every assistance to Northeast Louisiana State College, which is gaining a national reputation for their excellent track program.

Nine Lettermen Leading Homer Grid Prospects

HOMER (Special) — Nine lettermen will lead a group of more than 40 prospective Pelican gridders, who plan to report for Homer High School football practice Monday, August 15.

Coaches Joe Stewart, Norman Soulis and Ronnie Beard will greet the boys at 8 a.m. Friday and be given physical examinations at the stadium, and equipment issued Saturday, August 13 from 8 to 11 a.m. Early morning and afternoon sessions will be held until school starts, when drills will be held only in the afternoon.

First game scheduled is September 9 with triple A Bolton playing here, but the Pels will see their first action September 2 in the Springhill Jamboree.

Seventeen lettermn were lost from the squad which advanced to the state semifinals before bowing to Larose-Cutoff, the eventual champion.

PHILADELPHIA EAGLES halfback Timmy Brown (22) heads for big trouble as he sweeps end on a handoff from quarterback Norm Snead (background) during exhibition action against the Baltimore Colts in New Orleans Saturday night. Providing the "big trouble" is Baltimore's 242-pound defensive end Lou Michaels (79). (AP Wirephoto)

Fourth Annual Junior Affair Has Distinction

The fourth annual Twin City Junior Golf Tournament to be played Aug. 22 over Monroe's Municipal course will have a distinction.

It will be one of the few in the tourney's brief history that the defending champ will be on hand for a second shot at the title.

Peddy, now 16 years old, is expected to return for a possible second crown over the course managed by professional Johnny Myers.

The tourney is open to boys and girls of the twin cities between the ages of 8-17 with play in age divisions.

Last year 70 juniors participated in six divisions.

Through Saturday a total of 10 juniors were registered for the tournament.

Prizes will be given to five winners in each flight.

A tentative tournament schedule calls for:

All boys and girls between the ages of 8-13 to tee off between 8 and 9 a.m.; boys 13-14 between 9-10; and ages 15-17 between 10-11; boys 8-10 will tee off on number five and play five holes; girls 11-13 will tee off on number three and play seven holes; boys 11-17 will play 18 holes.

A hole-in-one contest will be held on number eight and a long driving contest will be conducted off the 10th tee.

The course will be closed to regular play until the last foursome of the tournament has left the tee.

Balls and clubs willl be furnished free of charge to players without their own equipment.

Roy Campanella Wants To Coach

MINNEAPOLIS - ST.PAUL (AP)—A Negro will become manager of a major league baseball team "when an owner thinks the time and the place is right," former big league catcher Roy Campanella said Saturday.

And, Campanella added, he wouldn't mind the first Negro manager in the majors being Roy Campanella, former Brooklyn Dodger great whose career was ended by a 1954 automobile accident which left him crippled.

"I'm ready," said Campanella, who is here doing promotional work for a food supply firm. "I think a catcher is a qualified manager. Most managers I played for all played the game through their catchers."

Campanella also said he is certain Jackie Robinson, former Dodger second base star, "would be only too eager to accept the managerial challenge if the opportunity were presented."

Martindale Takes Over Lead By 2, Jack Nicklaus Closes In

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP)—Young Bill Martindale, who admits he can't see the tee without his thick, horn-rimmed spectacles, soared into a two-stroke lead but felt the heat of a rallying Jack Nicklaus Saturday in the third round of the $100,000 Thunderbird Golf Classic.

The 27-year-old former Texas A&M athlete fired a six-under-par 66 for a 54-hole total of 207 over the 7,055-yard, par 72 Upper Montclair Country Club course.

Nicklaus, booming 300-yard-plus drives and sinking a half-dozen long putts, also cut out a 66 which placed him in a tie at 209 with Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., and 29-year-old Tommy Aaron.

Rudolph shot a 70. Aaron, coming from four shots off the second round pace, fired a 67 during a near perfect day on a course made easy by pin placements and shortened tees.

Like Martindale, Aaron has never won a tour event.

Bill Casper, the U.S. Open champion and year's leading money-winner, lost his halfway lead when he skied to a final round 76 for 214.

Arnold Palmer fought back with a sub-par 70 after appearing to have blown his chances, and was still in contention, tied with Casper and three others at 214.

Tied for fifth place at 211 were long-hitting Tom Weiskopf, with a 69, and Texan Jacky Cupit, with a 68.

At 212 were Julius Boros, the two-time U.S. Open winner, 68; Jerry Pittman, a club pro from Glen Cove, N.Y., who knocked in two eagles and tied the course and tournament record with a 65, and Miller Barber, 70.

Martindale, son of a lumber executive in Jacksonville, Tex., had eight birdies and two bogeys.

"I was real lucky out there," he said. "I didn't hit too many good shots but the ones I did were close to the hole. I made a lot of putts, but you have to do that to win one of these."

One of the most awesome exhibitions came off the explosive sticks of Nicklaus.

Jack chipped in from 35 feet for a birdie at the first hole, sank a 25-footer for another bird at the second and birdied five of the last nine holse.

Baseball Now Quietly Plans It's Timetable For Expansion

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the Wisconsin State Supreme Court has ruled that baseball is the master of its own destiny, the sports' higher officials are quietly planning a timetable for expansion that in all probability will culminate in two 12-club leagues by 1970.

First on the agenda is a December meeting of baseball's deep thinkers to modernize the list of requirements a city must meet to get a franchise. If everything goes according to plan the four winners will be named early in 1968 and the new teams will take the field in 1970.

Current thinking is that the four new major league members will come from the following five cities—Seattle, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Diego, Oakland and Milwaukee.

Right now Seattle is the most favored city. There is talk of a domed stadium but the big lure is the vast, virgin television area. Seattle has the same appeal that Atlanta offered before the Braves foresook Milwaukee.

In reverse, Milwaukee has the least appeal and its recent court battles with baseball have nothing to do with the Wisconsin city's position. The former home of the Braves offers a restricted television field because of the Chicago Cubs and White Sox to the south, the Minnesota Twins to the northwest and Lake Michigan on the east. Just as the popcorn machine in the lobby kept many movie houses solvent in recent years, so television now pays much of the financial freight in baseball.

That leaves Oakland, where a new stadium already is built; San Diego, where a new plant is under construction; Dallas-Fort Worth, where Lamar Hunt of the American Football Leavue already owns the minor league team; and Seattle as the likely four newcomers.

None of baseball's higher regime will be quoted directly but apparently the idea of three major leagues of eight clubs each is dead and when the new members are admitted two circuits of 12 clubs will be established.

Each league, in turn, would be divided into two sections of six each. Each club would play all other clubs in its league but would play more with those in its own division. Then, for the benefit of more television gold, the two division leaders would meet to determine the league champion and its representative in the World Series.

Assuming that Seattle, San Diego, Oakland and Dallas- Fort Worth make the grade, the National League could have an Eastern Division made up of New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Cincinnati and Chicago. Its Western Division would have Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego, Seattle, Houston and St. Louis.

The American League layout would have an Eastern Division made up of New York, Boston, Baltimore, Washington, Detroit and Cleveland. In the (EST would be California, Oakland, Minnesota, Dallas-Fort Worth, Kansas City and Chicago.

Bunning, Culp Fire Phillies To Sweep

ATLANTA (AP) — Jim Bunning and Ray Culp pitched Philadelphia to a 4-2, 7-4 sweep of a doubleheader over Atlanta Saturday night.

The victories by the Phillies broke Atlanta's four-game winning streak and presented Billy Hitchcock with his first defeat since he replaced Bobby Bragan as Braves manager last Tuesday.

Richie Allen, Philadelphia third baseman, carried most of the offensive punch for the Phillies driving in three runs in the first game with a homer in the first inning and two more in the second game.

For Bunning, it was his 13th victory against eight defeats this season and Culp's record now is 4-4.

A double by Dick Groat and a bases-loaded single by Allen gave the Phillies a 4-1 lead in the second game, with Groat collecting his two RBI in the second inning with Allen and Clay Dalrymple on base. It gave the Phils a 2-0 lead.

The Braves scored in the third when Hank Aaron stole second, then third and scored on a single by Denis Menke.

Namath Hurt As Jets Win

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The New York Jets foiled a Houston gamble and defeated the Oilers 16-10 in an American Football League exhibition game Saturday night that saw Jet quarterback Joe Namath blasted out of action.

Namath's injury — said to be a minor knee strain that will keep him sidelined for two weeks — overshadowed the field play which attracted 57,205 fans, the most ever to see a pre-season AFL game.

It was the first AFL loss for Houston Coach Wally Lemm, who had guided the Oilers to 11 straight victories dating back to 1961. He came back to the Oilers this year after four years with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League.

The key play came late in the fourth quarter with the Jets leading 13-10. The Oilers gambled on a fourth and two situation on their own 36, and Jet defenders Jim Gray and Ralph Baker tossed Oiler halfback Sid Blanks for a three-yard loss.

Quarterback Mike Taliaferro, filling in for the injurd Namath, took the Jets in for the insurance field goal, a 17-yarder by Curley Johnson. Johnson also kicked the go-ahead three-pointer from the 38-yard line about midway in the fourth quarter.

The Oilers took a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on a 40-yard field goal by Blanda, but late in the period, Namath got the Jets rolling.

He had driven them to the Oiler 23 when Fullback Matt Snell fumbled and a Houston man recovered. Housth defensive end Don Floyd blocked Namath with all of his 255-pounds, sending the former Alabama star spinning to the ground. That was all for Namath.

New York took command in the second quarter, scoring 10 points on a 25-yard field goal by Jim Turner and a touchdown, a naked reverse by Taliaferro from the 10.

The Oilers tied the score in the fourth when Blanda, who took over from Dun Trull, hit Charles Hennigan with a 16-yard scoring pass.

Portable Track Planned For Civic Center

Monroe Mayor Jack Howard has authorized Civic Center director, Bill Lillyman, to explore the costs involved in installing a portable track at the Monroe Civic Center.

The Monroe City Council had talked about the installation of a track, but it had been put off for some time in the future. After further consideration, Howard felt that the track was necessary now, and this is one of the projects Lillyman will be working on when he goes to New York next week.

The primary reason for considering this project now is to give every assistance to Northeast Louisiana State College, which is gaining a national reputation for their excellent track program.

Jefferson Meet

Jefferson Junior High School coach Robert Sims said that the regular pre-season football meeting will be held Monday at 8 a.m. at the school gym.

The meeting is for seventh and eighth graders.

Fourth Annual Junior Affair Has Distinction

The fourth annual Twin City Junior Golf Tournament to be played Aug. 22 over Monroe's Municipal course will have a distinction.

It will be one of the few in the tourney's brief history that the defending champ will be on hand for a second shot at the title.

Terry Peddy, now living in Ruston, won the championship flight last year with a three-over 75 during the one-day affair. He succeeded his brother, Wayne, as the Twin City Junior Champ.

Peddy, now 16 years old, is expected to return for a possible second crown over the course managed by professional Johnny Myers.

The tourney is open to boys and girls of the twin cities between the ages of 8-17 with play in age divisions.

Last year 70 juniors participated in six divisions.

Through Saturday a total of 10 juniors were registered for the tournament.

Prizes will be given to five winners in each flight.

A tentative tournament schedule calls for:

All boys and girls between the ages of 8-13 to tee off between 8 and 9 a.m.; boys 13-14 between 9-10; and ages 15-17 between 10-11; boys 8-10 will tee off on number five and play five holes; girls 11-13 will tee off on number three and play seven holes; boys 11-17 will play 18 holes.

A hole-in-one contest will be held on number eight and a long driving contest will be conducted off the 10th tee.

The course will be closed to regular play until the last foursome of the tournament has left the tee.

Balls and clubs willl be furnished free of charge to players without their own equipment.

Nine Lettermen Leading Homer Grid Prospects

HOMER (Special) — Nine lettermen will lead a group of more than 40 prospective Pelican gridders, who plan to report for Homer High School football practice Monday, August 15.

Coaches Joe Stewart, Norman Soulis and Ronnie Beard will greet the boys at 8 a.m. Friday and be given physical examinations at the stadium, and equipment issued Saturday, August 13 from 8 to 11 a.m. Early morning and afternoon sessions will be held until school starts, when drills will be held only in the afternoon.

First game scheduled is September 9 with triple A Bolton playing here, but the Pels will see their first action September 2 in the Springhill Jamboree.

Seventeen lettermn were lost from the squad which advanced to the state semifinals before bowing to Larose-Cutoff, the eventual champion.

Roy Campanella Wants To Coach

MINNEAPOLIS - ST.PAUL (AP)—A Negro will become manager of a major league baseball team "when an owner thinks the time and the place is right," former big league catcher Roy Campanella said Saturday.

And, Campanella added, he wouldn't mind the first Negro manager in the majors being Roy Campanella, former Brooklyn Dodger great whose career was ended by a 1954 automobile accident which left him crippled.

"I'm ready," said Campanella, who is here doing promotional work for a food supply firm. "I think a catcher is a qualified manager. Most managers I played for all played the game through their catchers."

Campanella also said he is certain Jackie Robinson, former Dodger second base star, "would be only too eager to accept the managerial challenge if the opportunity were presented."

Martindale Takes Over Lead By 2, Jack Nicklaus Closes In

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP)—Young Bill Martindale, who admits he can't see the tee without his thick, horn-rimmed spectacles, soared into a two-stroke lead but felt the heat of a rallying Jack Nicklaus Saturday in the third round of the $100,000 Thunderbird Golf Classic.

The 27-year-old former Texas A&M athlete fired a six-under-par 66 for a 54-hole total of 207 over the 7,055-yard, par 72 Upper Montclair Country Club course.

Nicklaus, booming 300-yard-plus drives and sinking a half-dozen long putts, also cut out a 66 which placed him in a tie at 209 with Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., and 29-year-old Tommy Aaron.

Rudolph shot a 70. Aaron, coming from four shots off the second round pace, fired a 67 during a near perfect day on a course made easy by pin placements and shortened tees.

Like Martindale, Aaron has never won a tour event.

Bill Casper, the U.S. Open champion and year's leading money-winner, lost his halfway lead when he skied to a final round 76 for 214.

Arnold Palmer fought back with a sub-par 70 after appearing to have blown his chances, and was still in contention, tied with Casper and three others at 214.

Tied for fifth place at 211 were long-hitting Tom Weiskopf, with a 69, and Texan Jacky Cupit, with a 68.

At 212 were Julius Boros, the two-time U.S. Open winner, 68; Jerry Pittman, a club pro from Glen Cove, N.Y., who knocked in two eagles and tied the course and tournament record with a 65, and Miller Barber, 70.

Martindale, son of a lumber executive in Jacksonville, Tex., had eight birdies and two bogeys.

"I was real lucky out there," he said. "I didn't hit too many good shots but the ones I did were close to the hole. I made a lot of putts, but you have to do that to win one of these."

One of the most awesome exhibitions came off the explosive sticks of Nicklaus.

Cepeda's Bat Boosts Cards Past Mets 9

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Orlando Cepeda, who had been benched because of a hitting slump, clubbed a three-run homer in the first inning, sending the St. Louis Cardinals on their way to a 9-6 victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

Right-hander Bob Gibson yielded eight hits in registering his 15th victory against nine losses. He has won four in a row and has a 15-2 career mark against New York.

Cepeda, who had only five hits in his last 41 at bats, hit his 18th homer off Bob Friend in the first following a walk and Curt Flood's single.

Ex-Met Charley Smith, who singled home the last of the Cards' four first-inning runs, touched of a three-run rally in the sixth with a homer off Bob Gardner.

The two other runs in the sixth resulted from Jerry Buchek's double, a sacrifice, Gibson's single and stolen base, and an error.

Ed Kranepool hit a two-run homer for the Mets in the eighth and Al Luplow homered in the ninth.

Lou Brock stole his 50th and 51st bases and ran his hitting streak to 18 games.

Indians Top Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck Hinton scord one run and drove in another while Steve Hargan limited New York to four hits as Cleveland defeated the Yankees 2-1 Saturday.

Fred Whitfield singled Hinton home with the winning run in the eighth inning, giving Hargan his ninth victory of the season.

Hinton had singled with two out and stole second before Whitfield singled him home.

Both teams scored in the sixth after Jim Bouton and Hargan had worked five shutout innings apiece.

Hargan scored Cleveland's run. He opened the inning by drawing a walk moved to third on a sacrifcie and infield out and then came home on Hinton's single.

The Yankees tied it in their half of the sixth when Tom Tresh walked and came around on singles by Bobby Richardson and Mickey Mantle.

Grand Slammer By Wilson Gets Tigers Big Win

BOSTON (AP) — Pitcher Earl Wilson drilled a grand slam homer and two singles while checking his former Boston Teammates on four hits as the Detroit Tigers bombed the Red Sox 13-1 Saturday.

Wilson hit his bases-loaded blast — the first of his major league career — in the seventh inning off Dan Osinski, capping a six-run rally. Osinski, the fourth Boston pitcher, had walked Orlando McFarlane intentionally to get at Wilson.

Wilson also singled across a run in the ninth while breeezing to his 13th victory against nine losses and snapping Boston's three-game winning string.

The Tigers chased loser Jose Santiago in the third inning, touching the right-hander for four runs and five hits, including a homer by Jim Northrup.

Tony Conigliaro drove in the Red Sox' run in the sixth inning with a squeeze bunt.

Carner Takes Triumph

SEWICKLEY, Pa. (AP)—Scrambling JoAnne Gunderson Carner of Seattle, Wash., fought back after a shaky start Saturday, then outlasted Marlene Stewart Streit to win the USGA National Women's Amateur Golf Championship for the fourth time on the fifth hole of a sudden death playoff.

Mrs. Carner sank a two-foot putt to par the 41st hole and close out the match, Mrs. Streit took a bogey on the hole when her second shot from the rough struck a tree and glanced into a trap.

It was the first time the final match went into sudden death.

In winning, Mrs. Carner reversed a decision of 10 years ago when she lost a 4-up lead on the last nine holes and lost to Mrs. Streit for the title at Indianapolis, Ind.

Mrs. Carner, who twice blew 3-up leads, evened the match at the 35th hole with a par when Mrs. Streit three putted from 32-feet for a bogey.

The championship match at the 6,120-yard, par 73 Sewickley Heights Golf Club course was a study in contrast between the grim and determined Mrs. Streit and the free-wheeling and easy-going Mrs. Carner.

Mrs. Carner's booming drives constantly put her 20 to 40 yards beyond Mrs. Streit, a 32-year-old housewife from Willowdale, Ont. Mrs. Carner also turned in some of the best putting she displayed all week in adding the crown to those she won in 1957, 1960 and 1962.

Mrs. Carner had regulation rounds of 78-76 Saturday and Mrs. Streit shot 74-77.

Cepeda's Bat Boosts Cards Past Mets 9

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Orlando Cepeda, who had been benched because of a hitting slump, clubbed a three-run homer in the first inning, sending the St. Louis Cardinals on their way to a 9-6 victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

Right-hander Bob Gibson yielded eight hits in registering his 15th victory against nine losses. He has won four in a row and has a 15-2 career mark against New York.

Cepeda, who had only five hits in his last 41 at bats, hit his 18th homer off Bob Friend in the first following a walk and Curt Flood's single.

Ex-Met Charley Smith, who singled home the last of the Cards' four first-inning runs, touched of a three-run rally in the sixth with a homer off Bob Gardner.

The two other runs in the sixth resulted from Jerry Buchek's double, a sacrifice, Gibson's single and stolen base, and an error.

Ed Kranepool hit a two-run homer for the Mets in the eighth and Al Luplow homered in the ninth.

Lou Brock stole his 50th and 51st bases and ran his hitting streak to 18 games.

Indians Top Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck Hinton scord one run and drove in another while Steve Hargan limited New York to four hits as Cleveland defeated the Yankees 2-1 Saturday.

Fred Whitfield singled Hinton home with the winning run in the eighth inning, giving Hargan his ninth victory of the season.

Hinton had singled with two out and stole second before Whitfield singled him home.

Both teams scored in the sixth after Jim Bouton and Hargan had worked five shutout innings apiece.

Hargan scored Cleveland's run. He opened the inning by drawing a walk moved to third on a sacrifcie and infield out and then came home on Hinton's single.

The Yankees tied it in their half of the sixth when Tom Tresh walked and came around on singles by Bobby Richardson and Mickey Mantle.

Grand Slammer By Wilson Gets Tigers Big Win

BOSTON (AP) — Pitcher Earl Wilson drilled a grand slam homer and two singles while checking his former Boston Teammates on four hits as the Detroit Tigers bombed the Red Sox 13-1 Saturday.

Wilson hit his bases-loaded blast — the first of his major league career — in the seventh inning off Dan Osinski, capping a six-run rally. Osinski, the fourth Boston pitcher, had walked Orlando McFarlane intentionally to get at Wilson.

Wilson also singled across a run in the ninth while breeezing to his 13th victory against nine losses and snapping Boston's three-game winning string.

The Tigers chased loser Jose Santiago in the third inning, touching the right-hander for four runs and five hits, including a homer by Jim Northrup.

Tony Conigliaro drove in the Red Sox' run in the sixth inning with a squeeze bunt.

Hornung, Taylor Face Bonus Boys Without Any Animosity

WEST DEPERE, Wis. (AP) — How do Paul Hornung and Jim Taylor look at the challenge of Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski? Will the big bonus boys create a problem among the veterans of Green Bay's championship team?

A visit to the Packer camp on the campus of St. Norbert's College found the champs taking things in stride. If they were preoccupied, it didn't show in their preparations for the new season. They were trim and ready for that 38-0 romp over the College All Stars in which both Anderson and Hornung suffered minor injuries.

"Our players understand pretty well that in order to win, we have to keep getting new players," said Vince Lombardi, the Packers' coach-general manager. "Our players want to be winners.

"Actually it was the players who convinced Anderson to come to us. They talked to him when he visited us at Baltimore last December. I know Paul took him out and showed him around.

"Hornung is too big a man to become involved in any petty worries about a new player. He is taking it all as a matter of course. I am sure he is not worried about Donny Anderson.

"Both Anderson and Grabowski missed a lot of work by being with the College All-Stars. We have a lot to catch up. They are treated just like everybody else. I hope we can get to see a lot of them in the pre-season games."

Hornung seemed genuinely happy to have Anderson with the Packers.

"I don't figure to play too many more years," he said. "You have to take the long look ahead. I am sure it will work out for everybody. Sure, Jim and I will do our best to help Donny and Jim. It will take time for them to catch on to a few things.

"I'd like to play on another championship team. If there is any animosity on a club toward any one player, it doesn't work. I did my best to sell Donny on the Packers. When we saw him in Baltimore last December, I think it was touch and go between us and Houston. I told him it was much better to play in the NFL. As it turned out, it's all the same now.

"Don't worry about me. I expect to play."

Both Hornung and Taylor worked hard at the camp and came into the exhibition season in their best condition in years. Both were injured during most of last season but managed to shake off their problems for the final drive to the title.

"Both those boys look like top pro prospects," commented Taylor who must fight off the challenge of Grabowski, the man who broke Red Grange's records at Illinois. "But I think I have four or five more years to go if I can stay in one piece. As long as I have desire I'm going to be a running back here. I play the best football I know how. As long as I feel I can do the job I am going to be a running back in the NFL.

"I have been around a long time (this is his ninth year). I have learned a lot of little tricks that make it easier. You learn to react and pick up little things in the defense so you know whether to fall outside or go inside.

"I never felt better than I do right now but each game is a challenge to see what kind of a man you are.

"Last year is history. You can't live off yesterday."

Anderson, who reportedly got $600,000 to sign out of Texas Tech, came out of the All-Star game limping. He and Grabowski, the fullback with the $300,000 price tag, wound up gaining a total of 24 yards on seven carriers.

"I sure wish we had done a little better," sai da crestfallen Grabowski. "It got a little embarrassing out there."

When they checked in at camp they found they were sharing room 216 at Sensenbrenner Hall, two in a room like all the others. For $900,000 you still get a bed, desk, chair, two towels and use of the wash room down the hall. And when Lombardi says lights out he means it.

Sooner Fans Want Prestige

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — "I like to hear you talk, coach, because I can tell you believe in what you say," a fellow football mentor told Jim MacKenzie at a recent coaching clinic.

"First of all, I believe in winning. I think you must do the things that will give you the best chance of winning."

Giusti's 1-Hitter Helps Astros Defeat Marichal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dave Giusti came within one pitch of a perfect game Saturday, hurling a one-hitter as the Houston Astros beat Juan Marichal and the San Francisco Giants 3-0. Giusti, who retired the last 22 Giants in a row, faced only 28 batters. The only man to reach base was Cap Peterson, who had a two-out single in the second.

Peterson's hit went through the middle. Giusti, who raised his record to 12-9, fanned the giant outfielder in his last two trips to the plate for half of his four strikeouts.

The loss was Marichal's fifth in 22 decisions. It was his first appearance in nine days. He had been out with a twisted ankle.

The Astros got their first run in the fourth, when Joe Morgan led off with a walk. He scored with two away on Bob Aspromonte's single through the middle.

Houston's second run came with two out in the seventh on rookie Ron Davis' first major league home run.

Ivy Leaguers Holding Top Records

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Yale, Princeton, Penn and Harvard — those venerable Ivy Leaguers who started it all — remain college football's Big Four.

If their national championships are only memories, their victory totals remain unchallenged.

Starting with a three goals to none decision over Columbia in its 1872 inaugural, Yale still sets a rugged pace heading the field at 607 triumphs.

Princeton, which helped launch the American game by splitting a pair of 1869 challenges with Rutgers, is the Tiger on the Elis' tail with 575 victories. Penn has 559 and Harvard 552.

Michigan, Notre Dame, California, Texas, Army and Dartmouth round out the top 10. The rankings are based solely on the number of games won with percentages a factor only when teams have the same totals. Thus Alabama (.718) edges Navy (.646) for 11th although both have captured 430 decisions.

Nebraska and Pitt, blood and thunder rivals of the 1927-42 era, are the newest members of football's 400-winner circle, swelling the ranks to 22.

The Ivy quartet still dominates the standings partly because of the big head start they had. At the end of the 1888 season, Yale had won 92 games, Princeton 91, Harvard 79 and Penn 51.

By comparison, Michigan claimed 16 and neophyte Notre Dame one.

Giusti's 1-Hitter Helps Astros Defeat Marichal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dave Giusti came within one pitch of a perfect game Saturday, hurling a one-hitter as the Houston Astros beat Juan Marichal and the San Francisco Giants 3-0. Giusti, who retired the last 22 Giants in a row, faced only 28 batters. The only man to reach base was Cap Peterson, who had a two-out single in the second.

Peterson's hit went through the middle. Giusti, who raised his record to 12-9, fanned the giant outfielder in his last two trips to the plate for half of his four strikeouts.

The loss was Marichal's fifth in 22 decisions. It was his first appearance in nine days. He had been out with a twisted ankle.

The Astros got their first run in the fourth, when Joe Morgan led off with a walk. He scored with two away on Bob Aspromonte's single through the middle.

Houston's second run came with two out in the seventh on rookie Ron Davis' first major league home run.

Ivy Leaguers Holding Top Records

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Yale, Princeton, Penn and Harvard — those venerable Ivy Leaguers who started it all — remain college football's Big Four.

If their national championships are only memories, their victory totals remain unchallenged.

Starting with a three goals to none decision over Columbia in its 1872 inaugural, Yale still sets a rugged pace heading the field at 607 triumphs.

Princeton, which helped launch the American game by splitting a pair of 1869 challenges with Rutgers, is the Tiger on the Elis' tail with 575 victories. Penn has 559 and Harvard 552.

Michigan, Notre Dame, California, Texas, Army and Dartmouth round out the top 10. The rankings are based solely on the number of games won with percentages a factor only when teams have the same totals. Thus Alabama (.718) edges Navy (.646) for 11th although both have captured 430 decisions.

Nebraska and Pitt, blood and thunder rivals of the 1927-42 era, are the newest members of football's 400-winner circle, swelling the ranks to 22.

The Ivy quartet still dominates the standings partly because of the big head start they had. At the end of the 1888 season, Yale had won 92 games, Princeton 91, Harvard 79 and Penn 51.

By comparison, Michigan claimed 16 and neophyte Notre Dame one.

Deadlines Are Close

With Paul Martin

Time is fast running out for two types of sportsmen, the members of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit who haven't registered a fish in the summer fishing contest, and waterfowl hunters who haven't applied for a permit for the experimental teal season.

The fishing contest closes with tomorrow's catches.

Jim Packer, contest chairman, will be busy during the week compiling entries to determine winners for the final month's contest and also who collects the grand prizes for the full three months when the wildlife units holds its next meeting August 30.

Remember, the presentations may be over two weeks away, but the contest closes tomorrow. Awards go for big bass, crappie and bream. The biggest may still be waiting to make some sportsman's fishing season a big success.

The application deadline for federal teal permits is Wednesday.

Persons desiring free permits should address a postcard or letter to "Teal Section, Room 305, Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries, Old Peabody Hall, Baton Rouge, La."

Wildlife officials have advised any request for a permit postmarked August 17 will be honored, but if you haven't put your request in the mail soon enough then you can forget about legal teal hunting.

After the deadline date, all blank permits will be returned to Washington for further processing before the second experimental team season which will run nine days, September 17 through sunset Sept. 25, including two weekends.

The permit is free, but a basic Louisiana hunting license and a federal duck stamp will be required.

Richard K. Yancey, assistant LWLFC director, has predicted the teal season will be "a very fine one barring any severe bad weather" prior to the season start.

Pine Hills Reservations

Pine Hills Gun Club has sent out early reminders to its members to plan participation in the annual all-day shoot and club party next Sunday.

Jesse Cobb, club president, announced a program of 50-bird races in trap and skeet for classes A, B, C and junior shooters and a handicap trap event. Trophies await winners and runners-up in every class.

"This will give all entries an opportunity to shoot for tophies, practice for the hunting season, and wind up with a good Vance Haile hamburger party," Cobb said.

Shotgunners are invited to include family members in the hamburger party . . . all the burgers and refreshments you can consume for $2 per person. Reservations are being taken by club secretary Harrell Lary, Box 2925, Monroe.

Pine Hills runs its usual afternoon shoot today, featuring a 100 registered skeet targets for 12-guage guns. It's the last registered shoot of the season. Begins at 1:30 p.m. Trap range is open for practice.

Odor Worse Than Picture

By now some of you have heard there's a terrible fish kill in Cheniere Creek below the spillway.

The picture is not as bad as it is painted; it's the odor that's disagreeable.

We got a report Friday about the fish kill and decided to make an on the spot chick of our own before making this report.

So, we walked both shores of Cheniere creek from the spillway deep into the woods during intermittent showers and mosquito harrassment.

Shad were dead by the hundreds, maybe a few thousand. It was this abundance of dead shad, big ones, that caused the big odor, caused exaggerated reports of dead fish. They're dead fish, all right, but shad populations usually aren't reduced enough to suit the sportsman.

The only other dead fish counted were seven bass, one small buffalo, and a jackfish. Except for one large bass in the woods, all the bass we saw were right at the spillway, so was the jack. Only three of the bass were of good size and that exaggerated by bloat.

All the dead fish, we should say shad since this undesirable was dominant, were from the spillway to about a couple of hundred yards into the woods, in a pool in which they became landlocked by shallows that cut them off from deeper pools of the creek below.

These dead shad were not in the lake itself. They died because of an oxygen shortage in the pool below the spillway when the gates were closed to stop the lake drawdown a week ago. A quick drop in the creek then followed. Shad require more oxygen than other fish to survive. They were the ones to suffer.

We counted no bream among the dead fish.

The destruction of this mass of shad was probably worth the few game fish to suffer.

Biologists had predicted some die-off in the lake itself as a result of the drawdown. So far this hasn't developed, except for an occasional shad.

Getting with the fishermen:

Showing limits at Bussey Brake were M. A. LARY and PAUL E. BROOKS, Monroe, bass; BOB GRIFFIN, El Dorado, Ark., bass; and MRS. MARLEY PING, bream. Getting close were BILL BICKHAM, Monroe, 14 bass; PAUL and MRS. CARROLL, Bastrop, 180 bream; ALLEN and MRS. BARDIN, Bastrop, 25 bass; PETE and MRS. INGRAM, Bastrop, 28 crappie; MR. and MRS. WOMACK, Bastrop, 35 crappie.

The REV. PAUL YOUNG took the 50 limit of white perch at Lake Providence port River Chute.

A party of Alexandria and Baton Rouge men, fishing Lake Concordia — PETE HATHAWAY, JAMES WHITE, W. A. HAWKEYE, A. A. HARRELSON and DARRELL WALKER — have been taking bass limits almost daily this week.

Lake D'Arbonne fishing was slowed down, except for action up the Corney arm where crappie limits were taken by C. E. WILLIAMS and M. E. BRAZZELL, Hico; A. L. BRISTER, GERALD HILBURN and JAMES FOLD, Baskin; HUGH HUNT, W. C. HALLEY and F. M. BRANCH, Haynesville; J. D. REPPOND, MRS. T. D. REPPOND and C. O. and MRS. BROWN, Marion; QUINTEN RIGGIN and C. C. GRAY, Magnolia, Ark.; GENE POWELL, Longview, Tex.; W. R. PEACE and R. B. and MRS. BROWN, El Dorado, Ark.; and MRS. CARRIE W. BROWN, with guide, mixed 50 crappie and bream with six of the white perch going over one pound.

Other good "Corney arm" catches were by TOMMY REYNOLDS, Bernice, and WILLIAM KENNEDY, Cheneyville, 45 bream; JAMES SIMMONS, Longview, Tex., 10 bass; MARVIN CANTRELL, six bass; BARBARA WHITE, Farmerville, 56 bream; BONITA LYNN HUTSON, Farmerville, 31 bass and crappie; MELVIN DEAN and J. C. WINZER, Homer, 80 bream.

Black Bayou Lakes catches of note included bass limits two straight nights for SAM DANNA; bass limit weighing 45 pounds for STEVE JOINER; JOHN AMOS, SAM LADRT and CHARLES DEAN, bass limits, and crappie limit for W. A. and MRS. STEWART and L. B. CROSSLAND. Other good hauls were by PAUL STOUT, 58 bream; ALDIN "BUTCH" MARTIN, 75 bream; FRANK SAVANA and LOUIS MALTA, 99 bream; WESLEY LINER and CHARLIE MARX, 75 crappie; MARX back with JIMMY COHEN for 75 more; W. M. HILL, 40 crappie and 12 bream; J. W. EDWARDS, 193 bream in two days.

Vacationers at Saline Lake near Winnfield mopped up on bass during the week. JAMES DURHAM said a Shreveport party was averaging 50 a day, and a party from Lake Charles and Houston, Tex., caught 366 for a full week.

CHARLES PRITCHARD caught these two bass in Bussy. The 11 year old's fish weighed six pounds and five pounds. Charles is the son of J. C. Pritchard, 2321 Duvall, Monroe.

Touring Pros Deny Break With PGA Is Probable

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — The touring pros denied Saturday that they are on the verge of a break with the professional Golfers Association and expressed confidence that their petition for greater autonomy would be approved at the PGA's annual meeting in December.

"This is not a matter of the players deciding that they can run the tour better than the PGA," said Tommy Jacobs, tournament committee chairman and a PGA vice president.

"The players, acting entirely under the constitution of the PGA, have petitioned to be recognized as a players' section of the PGA.

"We are just suggesting that this may be the time for the PGA to divisionalize this part of its operation.

"The growing administrative and communications problems in operating this great tour have proven a strain on the national staff. Under the proposed reorganization, we will have an executive staff working entirely on the prudent management of professional tournament golf.

"We share membership in the PGA with over 5,000 friends and that is the way we want it to stay. We have been dismayed to hear this referred to as a potential revolt. Discussions will continue until the annual meeting in December."

Jacobs called a special news conference during the third round of the $100,000 Thunderbird Classic to clarify the situation.

He said the touring pros "are not concerned with the general monetary operation of the tour. But we feel if we are given a greater voice in operation of the tour through our own section it might result in more proceeds accruing to the PGA.

"We have had our problems on the tour communicating with the officers and executives at national PGA headquarters and they have had problems communicating with us," Jacobs said. "It is an unwieldy organization structure."

Jacobs said the overwhelming majority of the touring pros favor their own section and there is no group which wants a clean break with the PGA.

"We players are on the road all the time," he said. "We cannot clearly identify with a particular local section. Our business life is entirely different from the calling of the club professional. We are only asking to be treated like other members of the PGA."

He said the rights and duties of the players' section will be the topic of the continuing discussions.

The touring pros have been under the wing of the parent PGA for one-half century. The parent group is made up largely of club or teaching pros, who outnumber the tourists by 15-1.

Touring Pros Deny Break With PGA Is Probable

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — The touring pros denied Saturday that they are on the verge of a break with the professional Golfers Association and expressed confidence that their petition for greater autonomy would be approved at the PGA's annual meeting in December.

"This is not a matter of the players deciding that they can run the tour better than the PGA," said Tommy Jacobs, tournament committee chairman and a PGA vice president.

"The players, acting entirely under the constitution of the PGA, have petitioned to be recognized as a players' section of the PGA.

"We are just suggesting that this may be the time for the PGA to divisionalize this part of its operation.

"The growing administrative and communications problems in operating this great tour have proven a strain on the national staff. Under the proposed reorganization, we will have an executive staff working entirely on the prudent management of professional tournament golf.

"We share membership in the PGA with over 5,000 friends and that is the way we want it to stay. We have been dismayed to hear this referred to as a potential revolt. Discussions will continue until the annual meeting in December."

Jacobs called a special news conference during the third round of the $100,000 Thunderbird Classic to clarify the situation.

He said the touring pros "are not concerned with the general monetary operation of the tour. But we feel if we are given a greater voice in operation of the tour through our own section it might result in more proceeds accruing to the PGA.

"We have had our problems on the tour communicating with the officers and executives at national PGA headquarters and they have had problems communicating with us," Jacobs said. "It is an unwieldy organization structure."

Jacobs said the overwhelming majority of the touring pros favor their own section and there is no group which wants a clean break with the PGA.

"We players are on the road all the time," he said. "We cannot clearly identify with a particular local section. Our business life is entirely different from the calling of the club professional. We are only asking to be treated like other members of the PGA."

He said the rights and duties of the players' section will be the topic of the continuing discussions.

The touring pros have been under the wing of the parent PGA for one-half century. The parent group is made up largely of club or teaching pros, who outnumber the tourists by 15-1.

The Gold Bull

Late on a night not long ago, two road weary American travelers bounced across the Sierra Morena Mountains of Andalusia into Seville. The Hotel Cristina seemed every oasis in the sands of Araby, plus all the beautiful gardens of Babylon, come true. There was much business in the ornate lobby, and you could hear delightful sounds coming up from the Bodega just down the steps. Sapristi! The dining room was not only open, but wide open. It seemed apparent that while Americans began to think of sleep at ninety minutes until midnight, Spaniards must think of food! It was the dinner hour, the time of a "light meal." Spaniards shift into high gear just before midnight and the ten p.m. "light meal" gives them the strength and vitality to face the night ahead. The Spanish dinner hour became a joyful occurrence to travelers used to late evening snacks of peanut butter and graham cracker sandwiches.

Consider some dimensions of dinner at the Cristina. The table for two was set with more silver and shimmering crystal than most Americans hoard in locked sideboards. Along came a splendidly drssed waiter bearing a menu which was not unlike something from "Odes of the Divan of Hafiz." Once the important decision of the proper wine was reached, there was the immediate problem of the soup. The choice was Andalusian Gaspachos soup. This was an amazing and delightful chef's salad which went liquid and gained dynamic maturity.

The soup salad was followed closely by a succulent fish course, meat, vegetables, Spanish coffee, and a basket full of fresh fruit. Did you ever see a Spanish waiter peel an orange? He casually unwinds the orange, unclothes it so to speak, as if the whole procedure were some extraordinarily interesting striptease. It's almost embarrassing to look upon the poor nude orange.

Next day, one was advised to proceed for the noon meal to the place of the Gold Bull — El Toro de Oro! Fortunately the Gold Bull was right around the corner from the hotel. The Bull is so authentic even the Spaniards like it. Cervantes must have owned a piece of the dark oak rafters and heavy wooden tables. It is said the Moors hated to give up Seville, and now you know why — no more paella and wine at the Gold Bull!

After the usual decisions of the menu and wine, the arrival of the Andalusian Gaspachos soup, and fish, came the paella. True paella is a tremendous combination of products from the seas, barnyards, forests, chicken coops, and everywhere else. The whole works is fixed in a "shallow casserole." The casserole ought not to be too shallow for it must contain lobster, clams, mussels, olive oil, chicken, veal, lean pork, asparagus tips, onions, salt, pepper, tomatoes, rice, sweet red peppers, peas, artichoke hearts, crab meat and pimento. If a stray squid wandered in, don't kick it, eat.

Lo and behold, paella was not the finish, for the Gold Bull then presented the hearty eaters with ice creams and Spanish coffee. This was the "lunch" of Seville which usually operates between two and four o'clock in the afternoons. Only Americans and Germans eat earlier.

Just outside the door, the marque of the Gold Bull — El Toro de Oro — shone in the afternoon sunlight, a true sign of complete repast for the hungry. For Americans there was the hotel and a well earned siesta. The Spaniards? Where there's life, there's hope. It would soon be suppertime!

Political Tightrope

Guatemalan Chief Begins New Post

GUATEMALA (AP) — Guatemala's new civilian president started his four-year term last month on a political tightrope.

If Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro steps too far to the left he may be tripped by strong conservative forces. Some disgruntled military officials who wanted to block his accession to power by a coup d'etat are still around.

But if he does not move far enough and fast enough along the reformist line, he may be shaken by leftist political opponents.

And a couple of underground Communist groups have sworn they will try to push him out no matter how delicate his footwork.

While promising economic and social reforms, the former law school dean appears to be starting his administration carefully near the middle of the road, seeking as broad a base of support as possible.

The successful candidate of the moderate leftist Revolutionary party is still enjoying a political honeymoon following his inaugural call for national unity. He needs all the support he can get to cope with the tremendous problems of this Central-American republic.

Two Marxist guerrilla groups, pledged to the violent overthrow of the government, are operating in the northeastern mountains.

Most of the country's 4.4 million people — over half of them Indians — live in shocking poverty. Seventy-five per cent of the population — mostly peasants —have a per capita income of only about $100 a year.

The housing deficit is calculated at over 700,000 units.

The illiteracy rate is estimated at 75 per cent.

The government is suffering serious financial woes. Its internal debt is $95 million; its foreign debt, $55 million. Of its current $155 million budget, $19 million go to pay off debts.

To blunt the guerrilla threat, Mendez Montenegro offered amnesty to all who would lay down their arms within an eight-day period which ended 10 days ago. But before the eight days were up the guerrillas had scorned the offer.

Luis Augusto Turcios Lima, 24, leader of the rebel armed forces told local newsmen at a clandestine meeting in the capital: "Our struggle continues. Our objective is to seize power and give it to the workers and peasants. The army should give its arms to the people who are being exploited by the powerful ones."

Marco Antonio Yon Shosa, 36, leader of the 13th of November Revolutionary Movement, called a couple of newsmen to a mountain hideout to announce that his group would continue to fight "to install a revolutionary socialist regime in Guatemala."

To this a high government official said privately: "Since they have rejected the amnesty, we will have to go after them."

But under the previous three-year military rule of Col. Enrique Peralta Azurdia, the guerrillas successfully evaded pursuit and carried out hit-and-run raids in the mountains and in the capital. They made no raids during the first weeks of the new civilian regime.

President Mendez Montenegro is primarily concerned with getting programs started to improve rural conditions. He intends to press forward with a series of projects to construct new roads, build electric power plants, overhaul old, badly managed agrarian colonies, and use government-owned finacas or large farms as the basis for new agrarian colonies, probably organized as cooperatives.

He hopes to build new schools and health clinics in the countryside.

New Boots With Cavalier Elegance Being Displayed

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Designers who have always included some boots in their shoe collections are now turning out large groups. And what boots they are! A new dash of cavalier elegance, a supple slimness, a Gay Nineties refinement, characterize such boots as those designed by Sandler of Boston.

This collection begins with the chunky little ankle - boot in ponyskin, rises to the tapered mid-calf boot with delicate drawstring detail, goes even higher to the knee-high officer boot and the over - the - knee cavalier boot started by St. Laurent in Paris.

For dress wear boots rise only to the calf, are always tapered. Some have French braid trim, some have fur linings or cuffs, some have to be zipped open to get into, they are so slim on the leg. These Sandler boots will be seen with brocade theater suits and cocktail dresses this winter.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J Brice and of Mr. and Mrs. J. H Norris, all of Bastrop. Mr. Seago's grandparents are R. W. Ford of Mansfield and Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Seago of Beckville, Texas.

TRADITIONS ARE MADE, NOT BORN

More and more brides are discovering the good sense of using their sterling silver flatfare for the family — and not just "for good." The reason is two-fold: first, daily use and daily washing in hot, soapy water is the best way to prevent tarnish on silver; second, the tiny "use lines" gradually blend together over the years to form the beautiful patina so treasured in solid silver flatware.

BEFORE FIVE ELEGANCE

You needn't wait until after five to look elegant! New for fall is a group of beautifully tailored suits, coats, and dresses in sumptuous textured fabrics of Creslan acrylic fiber.

The fabrics feature raised self-patterns in such motifs as black checks, stylized tweeds, and clear paisleys, bringing softness and elegance to the daytime scene.

DENIM

Denim, that sturdy cloth from which jeans and other durable apparel is made, now is for evening. Hazel Blackman, of New York, uses the fabric in an at-home gown, a long shift with diamond inset panels in brown and beige stripes.

Your Problems

Names Are News-- Neuter Or Not!

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: You had a letter in your column recently from a lady who claimed she could tell all about a person by hearing his first name (Frank is sexy, Esther is stupid and cow-like, Albert is a jerk, etc.). Your readers might like to know there is a magazine called "Mother To Be And Infant Care" which offers a list of "neuter" names for the expectantmother who wants to settle on the baby's name before birth.

Some suggested names: Kimberly, Duncan, Cabot, Brooke, Tracey, Noland, Trevor, Udine, Wright, Vaughn and Bailey. Aren't they dillies? Sign me—DECISIONS! DECISIONS!

Dear Decisions: I don't mean to knock the magazine, but all those names sound like family names to me. I've always liked the idea of using a family name as a first name, but unless the last name goes with it — forget it.

No kid should be saddled with a handle like Noland Lefkovitch or Trevor Papplopolous.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column on names brought to my mind a true story. Maybe you'd like to share it with your readers.

A friend of mine named Joseph Kissinger got fed up with lame jokes about his name, so he went to court and changed his name to MacArthur, who happened to be his hero at the moment.

After a few months he became disenchanted with MacArthur and had his name legally changed to Williams. He got tired of people asking if he was any relation to "Soapy", so he changed his name — to Carter.

The jokes about the liver pills bothered him so again he changed his name — to Harrigan. He pulled the court bit so often that his friends are going around asking, "I wonder who's Kissinger now?" — PAUL M

Dear Paul: Now there's a knee - slapper if I ever heard one!! Thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I just celebrated our fourth wedding anniversary. I should say I celebrated it by walking a sick child all night. My husband was away on a fishing trip with his brother.

Andy and I are both 22. I look like 40 and feel like 90. Nothing bothers Andy. He buys whatever he wants for himself and if the bills have to wait he couldn't care less. I haven't had a new dress since we were married. I have been pregnant four times in the past four years. (I miscarried twice and we have two children.) My husband says I don't need any clothes because I don't go any place and he is right about that.

What can I do to get him to treat me like a wife and companion instead of a baby machine? — GALLONS OF COFFEE

Dear Gal: According to my arithmetic you grabbed the bargain when he was 18 years old. No wonder you are having trouble. He wasn't ready to settle down — and he still isn't. (Are you listening, students?)

Insist that he go to a marriage counselor. If he refuses, go yourself and get some help. You need outside guidance.

Confidential to Herman The Heel: There is no way to get out of this "gracefully" — but you can get out of it. And you should. You do not belong at that function and you were unwise to agree to go.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped self - addressed envelope.

GO WESTERN, YOUNG MAN

The Western look is taking the world of men's sportswear by storm. Among the newest and best looking Western-inspired sportswear is a collection of shirts and jackets featuring shearling-like pile fabrics of Creslan acrylic fiber. Included in the group of warm, lightweight outer-wear are the authentic ranch jacket, the pondorosa shirt, and logger and herder shirts and jackets.

DUTCH TREAT

The cranberry, America's native fruit, has an international aura. Over a century ago, a barrel of cranberries was washed overboard in a shipwreck off the coast of Holland. The barrel floated to the island of Terschelling, and the contents scattered into low areas where they took root and flourished. Cranberries still grow on Terschelling, but refuse to grow in any other place in Holland.

ADD HAIRPIECE

The "thing" for fall in coiffure is to add hairpieces for evening; some of the new ones are big cascades of hair falling to the shoulders.

Sarah Elizabeth Young, W. E. Vosburg Married In St. Thomas Aquinas Church

Miss Sarah Elizabeth Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lee Young of Ruston, became the bride of William Edward Vosburg of Port Arthur, Texas, Saturday, August 13, in St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church, Ruston. The Rev. Father Thomas Cashman heard the vows at 4 p.m. The groom is the son of Mrs. Charles Edward Vosburg of New Roads, and the late Mr. Vosburg.

White gladioli, emerald fern, and ivy in brass altar vases formed the setting for the ceremony. Music was provided by Maurice Cottingham at the organ and Nick Medica, soloist.

Mr. Young escorted his daughter and gave her in marriage. Her bridal gown of gardenia white silk organza was styled on princess lines with below the elbow sleeves. Reembroidered Alencon lace adorned with seed pearls created a scalloped fan neckline and extended down the front of the gown. Silk organza roses bedewed with pearls caught her three-tiered veil of illusion. She wore a string of pearls, a gift from the groom, and for something old, carried her mother's handkerchief embroidered with hearts and flowers. Her bouquet was a cascade of stephanotis and ivy centered with a white orchid.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. Ernest Lee Young, III, sister-in-law of the bride of Bossier City, matron of honor; Mrs. Dwight C. Anderson of Ruston and Miss Mary Nell Dennig of Ferriday. Their Dior styled dresses were of Wedgwood blue crepe with soft columned skirts, and raised waistlines accented by self cording. They carried garnet red roses, pink carnations and ivy, and the same blossoms were used for their chaplets.

Lorie Young, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her nephew, Ernie Young, carried the rings.

The groom's brother, Charles P. Vosburg of New Roads was best man. Groomsmen - ushers were Ralph Lieux of Monroe; James A. Kreamer of Lafayette; Lt. Ernest Lee Young, III, brother of the bride, Bossier City; Donald Cazayout, Henry Morel, III, and Gassie Deville, all of New Roads.

Mrs. Young chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of blue lace with matching accessories. Mrs. Vosburg was attired in mauve pink lace. Each wore an orchid corsage.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents following the church service. Miss Pamela Payne registered guests in the bride's book.

The refreshment table was centered with a mass arrangement of stock, gladioli, and fern in a silver footed vase. At one end of the table was the silver punch service, with the bride's cake opposite. Alternating at the punch bowl were the bride's aunts, Mrs. Richard D. Young, Monroe, and Mrs. Milton E. Wilks, Bastrop.

Cousins of the bride, Mrs. Emmett Futch and Mrs. Raymond Germany, cut the cake. Others who assisted at the reception were the Mesdames J. D. Carter, C. E. Cotton, Lloyd Crafton, James Lee, O. Eston Payne, Glen Smith, and the Misses Sandra McCrory, Jackie Stevenson, Peggy Gerow.

When the newly married couple left on their wedding trip to the Ozarks and Missouri, Mrs. Vosburg was wearing a two-piece yellow silk suit with bone lizard accessories and an orchid corsage. Upon their return, they will be at home in Port Arthur, Texas, where both are employed by the Port Arthur Independent School district.

The bride is a graduate of Ruston High School and of Louisiana Tech, where she was a member of Kappa Delta. She did graduate work at the University of Texas workshop.

Mr. Vosburg, a graduate of Poydras High School, New Roads, received both his bachelor's and his master's degree from the University of Southwestern Louisiana in Lafayette.

MRS. WILLIAM EDWARD VOSBURG

Thomas Cassel Claims Bride In Florida Ceremony

The Church of the Incarnation of Sarasota, Florida, was scene of the wedding of Miss Rita Louise Creasser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Creasser of Sarasota, and Thomas H. Cassel Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Cassel Sr. of Harrisonburg. The double ring ceremony was performed on Saturday, August 13, at 11 a.m. by Father Cornelius Dougherty in a background of white gladiolos, carnations and ivy stock.

Miss Barbara Ellis served as organist and Charles Edward McMillin was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight white silk linen floor length gown with overlay of alencon lace, and veil of candlelight shoulder length with tiara of pearls. She carried a cascade of white sweetheart roses and carnations.

Miss Catherine Cohan of Jacksonville, maid of honor, was attired in a powder blue linen floor length gown, with nosegay of pale yellow mums and carnations. Bridesmaids were Miss Glenda Kurtnacken of Sarasota; Miss Dianne Cassel (sister of the groom) and Miss Dell Husbands, both of Harrisonburg. They all wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor.

Best man was John Allen of New Orleans. Ushers were Henry Comacho, New Orleans; Bryan Jordan, Baton Rouge; Mike Moody, Plant City, Fla.; Mark Creasser, and John Moran of Sarasota.

Mrs. Creasser chose a green linen dress with white embroidered top with white accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Cassel, mother of the groom wore a aqua silk dress and matching accessories.

Immediately following the wedding a reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Blue and yellow color scheme were carried throughout the room with flowers on all tables.

The bride's table, with a white tablecloth and overlaid with blue net, held the tiered wedding cake and the punch service.

Mrs. David Martin and Mrs. Bill Tibbs served the cake and Miss Mary V. Simberly and Mrs. Lawrence Bruno, punch. Presiding at the guest book were Misses Delores and Jeanette Weis.

The bride is a 1963 graduate of Cardinal Mooney high school, Sarasota, and was graduated from the Charity Nursing school of New Orleans on July 1, 1966. The groom is a graduate of Harrisonburg high school and is presently attending LSU in Baton Rouge.

For their wedding trip to Miami, the bride wore a powder blue linen suit with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. They will make their home in Baton Rouge.

Sarah Elizabeth Young, W. E. Vosburg Married In St. Thomas Aquinas Church

Miss Sarah Elizabeth Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lee Young of Ruston, became the bride of William Edward Vosburg of Port Arthur, Texas, Saturday, August 13, in St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church, Ruston. The Rev. Father Thomas Cashman heard the vows at 4 p.m. The groom is the son of Mrs. Charles Edward Vosburg of New Roads, and the late Mr. Vosburg.

White gladioli, emerald fern, and ivy in brass altar vases formed the setting for the ceremony. Music was provided by Maurice Cottingham at the organ and Nick Medica, soloist.

Mr. Young escorted his daughter and gave her in marriage. Her bridal gown of gardenia white silk organza was styled on princess lines with below the elbow sleeves. Reembroidered Alencon lace adorned with seed pearls created a scalloped fan neckline and extended down the front of the gown. Silk organza roses bedewed with pearls caught her three-tiered veil of illusion. She wore a string of pearls, a gift from the groom, and for something old, carried her mother's handkerchief embroidered with hearts and flowers. Her bouquet was a cascade of stephanotis and ivy centered with a white orchid.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. Ernest Lee Young, III, sister-in-law of the bride of Bossier City, matron of honor; Mrs. Dwight C. Anderson of Ruston and Miss Mary Nell Dennig of Ferriday. Their Dior styled dresses were of Wedgwood blue crepe with soft columned skirts, and raised waistlines accented by self cording. They carried garnet red roses, pink carnations and ivy, and the same blossoms were used for their chaplets.

Lorie Young, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her nephew, Ernie Young, carried the rings.

The groom's brother, Charles P. Vosburg of New Roads was best man. Groomsmen - ushers were Ralph Lieux of Monroe; James A. Kreamer of Lafayette; Lt. Ernest Lee Young, III, brother of the bride, Bossier City; Donald Cazayout, Henry Morel, III, and Gassie Deville, all of New Roads.

Mrs. Young chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of blue lace with matching accessories. Mrs. Vosburg was attired in mauve pink lace. Each wore an orchid corsage.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents following the church service. Miss Pamela Payne registered guests in the bride's book.

The refreshment table was centered with a mass arrangement of stock, gladioli, and fern in a silver footed vase. At one end of the table was the silver punch service, with the bride's cake opposite. Alternating at the punch bowl were the bride's aunts, Mrs. Richard D. Young, Monroe, and Mrs. Milton E. Wilks, Bastrop.

Cousins of the bride, Mrs. Emmett Futch and Mrs. Raymond Germany, cut the cake. Others who assisted at the reception were the Mesdames J. D. Carter, C. E. Cotton, Lloyd Crafton, James Lee, O. Eston Payne, Glen Smith, and the Misses Sandra McCrory, Jackie Stevenson, Peggy Gerow.

GO WESTERN, YOUNG MAN

The Western look is taking the world of men's sportswear by storm. Among the newest and best looking Western-inspired sportswear is a collection of shirts and jackets featuring shearling-like pile fabrics of Creslan acrylic fiber. Included in the group of warm, lightweight outer-wear are the authentic ranch jacket, the pondorosa shirt, and logger and herder shirts and jackets.

DUTCH TREAT

The cranberry, America's native fruit, has an international aura. Over a century ago, a barrel of cranberries was washed overboard in a shipwreck off the coast of Holland. The barrel floated to the island of Terschelling, and the contents scattered into low areas where they took root and flourished. Cranberries still grow on Terschelling, but refuse to grow in any other place in Holland.

The bride is a 1963 graduate of Cardinal Mooney high school, Sarasota, and was graduated from the Charity Nursing school of New Orleans on July 1, 1966. The groom is a graduate of Harrisonburg high school and is presently attending LSU in Baton Rouge.

Fuzzy Coat Goes Back To School

As all the world knows, the young set these days usually takes to fashion ideas which are opposed to the high fashion look for more mature women. So it should be no surprise that while most coats are looking smoother for fall, the back-to-school look will be fuzzy-wuzzy.

The National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry ascribes the fuzzy-wuzzy coat trend to the influence of "fun" furs. These are all the Mongolian lambs, kit foxes and snow lynxes which have been snapped up by the younger women. Lots of girls, however, can't afford even a fun fur, so the man-made imitations come to their rescue.

For pin money a girl can have a man-made pin seal that looks for all the world like the real thing. It comes faced with tweed in a double-breasted, elongated pea jacket coat with a skirt in the tweed to make up the perfect college costume.

Arnel is the fiber from which a soft, seal-like fabric is made. It doubles for day and date occasions, in a full-length double-breasted cut with a cowl collar and armholes wide enough to go over suits. Colors include ice, champagne, black and brown, and at the price a girl could easily own two.

Campus coats are generally short enough to show even an above-knee skirt, and they are the fuzzy-wuzziest of all. Acrylic fiber makes the shaggy fur-look fabric which often bows to no particular fur. It's just a lovely shaggy stuff in gray or brown or olive, and is quilt-lined for that extra warmth needed on cold country campuses.

Mary Lyda Coon, Robert Biggs Wed In First Baptist Church

Miss Mary Lyda Coon and Robert Edward Biggs were wed Saturday, August 13, in First Baptist church. The Rev. James Taylor Horton performed the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Norman Coon, 3414 Westminister, Monroe, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Basil Edward Biggs of Baldwin, Louisiana.

Dozens of yellow cathedral tapers burned in candelabra of graduated heights, flanked with candle trees. Grecian urns overflowing with yellow gladioli were placed at each side of the chancel rail. Candles were lighted by John Ardis Duval and Clinton Edward Duval, cousins of the bride, of Houston.

Music was provided by Mrs. Jack White, organist, and Mrs. Allen Coon, soloist.

The bride entered the sanctuary on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a wedding dress of candlelight peau de soie, styled on princess lines with scalloped neckline of Venise lace, long sleeves coming to a point over the hands, and a cathedral train. The fingertip veil of English illusion fell from a circlet of pearl lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Jacob Norman Coon Jr., attended the bride as matron of honor. Miss Margaret Ann Coon of Alexandria, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Paul Naquin Jr., of Baldwin, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids, and Miss Marguerite Culpeppper, cousin of the bride, junior bridesmaid. Their dresses were of jade silk organza over silk taffeta, styled with empire waistlines and A-line skirts. Headdresses were bows of jade peau de soie. They carried crescents of yellow roses.

Kevin Maria and Kendra Lee Coon, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. They wore dresses of jade silk organza and carried nosegays of miniature yellow roses. Jacob Norman Coon, III, was ring bearer.

Donald Lester Biggs of Lafayette was his brother's best man. Groomsmen-ushers were Richard Andre Aycock and Claude Savoie, both of New Orleans, Albert H. Blevins Jr., of Franklin, Richard Allwood of Ferriday, Jacob Norman Coon, Jr., and Allen Howard Coon, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Coon wore for her daughter's wedding a floor length dress of aquamarine silk crepe with unlined hip-length lace jacket. Mrs. Biggs chose a floor length Nile green silk with jacket. Mrs. John Robert Carson, grandmother of the groom, wore a turquoise Italian silk suit.

RECEPTION

Following the wedding ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Coon entertained at a reception at the Paragon Club. Topiary trees lined the foyer where guests were greeted by Mrs. Henson S. Coon, Mrs. C. Ardis Caldwell, Mrs. Henson S. Coon Jr., and Mrs. John S. Culpepper.

Yellow and white flowers decorated the ballroom for the reception. Mrs. Edwin Buckley invited guests to register in the bride's book, which lay on a small table ornamented with a memory candle.

The punch table was overlaid with a linen and lace banquet cloth and centered with a silver and crystal epergne filled with yellow roses and stock. Alternating at the two punch bowls were Mrs. Billy Daniel, Mrs. Richard Aycock, Miss Ruby Biggs, Miss Melinda Biggs, Mrs. John Moses, and Mrs. Edward Dewees.

The tiered bride's cake was placed on a round table covered with white ruffled net. Mrs. John Elton Coon, Mrs. Rex Queen of Wichita Falls, Mrs. Henson S. Coon, Mrs. C. Ardis Caldwell, Mrs. Leonard Hearton of Washington, and Mrs. Clyde C. Graves of Crystal Springs, Miss., served the cake.

Serving the groom's cake and coffee from the silver service were Mrs. George Marshall and Mrs. A. W. Thompson of Ruston; Miss Natalie McDuff and Mrs. Herman Jerry Carpenter of Los Angeles; Mrs. Ned Duval of Houston; and Mrs. Web Coon Jr., of Alexandria.

Background music was provided during the reception by Ronnie Brothers at the organ.

PARFAIT PERFECTION

A delicious and unusual treat for family or company dessert is the cranberry-orange parfait. Layer softened vanilla ice cream or sherbet with tart, tangy cranberry-orange relish in tall parfait glasses; then refreeze until firm.

Fuzzy Coat Goes Back To School

As all the world knows, the young set these days usually takes to fashion ideas which are opposed to the high fashion look for more mature women. So it should be no surprise that while most coats are looking smoother for fall, the back-to-school look will be fuzzy-wuzzy.

The National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry ascribes the fuzzy-wuzzy coat trend to the influence of "fun" furs. These are all the Mongolian lambs, kit foxes and snow lynxes which have been snapped up by the younger women. Lots of girls, however, can't afford even a fun fur, so the man-made imitations come to their rescue.

For pin money a girl can have a man-made pin seal that looks for all the world like the real thing. It comes faced with tweed in a double-breasted, elongated pea jacket coat with a skirt in the tweed to make up the perfect college costume.

Arnel is the fiber from which a soft, seal-like fabric is made. It doubles for day and date occasions, in a full-length double-breasted cut with a cowl collar and armholes wide enough to go over suits. Colors include ice, champagne, black and brown, and at the price a girl could easily own two.

Campus coats are generally short enough to show even an above-knee skirt, and they are the fuzzy-wuzziest of all. Acrylic fiber makes the shaggy fur-look fabric which often bows to no particular fur. It's just a lovely shaggy stuff in gray or brown or olive, and is quilt-lined for that extra warmth needed on cold country campuses.

MRS. MARK EDWARD DOUGHTY

Veronica Sartor, Mark Doughty Wed In Vidalia Church

Miss Veronica Lynn Sartor and Mark Edward Doughty were wed Friday, August 5, in Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic church of Vidalia, with the Rev. M. J. Scanlon oficiating at 6 p.m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ray Sartor of Vidalia, and Mr. Doughty is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Earl Doughty of Jena.

Mass arrangements of white gladioli and greenery decorated the main altar, with smaller bouquets of the same flowers on the side alters. Music was provided by Mrs. Billy Clyde Falkenheiner, organist, and vocalists Mrs. John Martin and Mrs. Clarence Bolin.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a gown of imported silk organza with lace framing the neckline and butterfly sleeves. The straight skirt was topped with a bouffant chapel-length train falling from the waist. Her headdress was a bow of matching material with clusters of seed pearls holding a short veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of phaelonopsis orchids and stephanotis.

Maid of honor and only attendant for the bride was her sister, Miss Gwendolyn Sartor. She wore a floor length gown of blue crepe fashioned on slender lines with bodice of white lace over crepe. Her head piece was a flower of the material with a short veil of illusion. She carried an orchid-toned glamellia.

Ken Clinton was Mr. Doughty's best man, and ushers were Ray Trussell and Kenny Miears, all of Jena.

A reception was held in Our Lady of Lourdes Memorial Center following the ceremony. Miss Kathyrn Mounger of Vidalia presided at the bride's register. The bride's cake, flanked with the bouquets of the wedding party centered a table covered with an imported cut work cloth. Mrs. Henry Jackson served the cake.

The punch table held a large arrangement of white gladioli and blue pompons. Mrs. Luby Carter, Mrs. James Vickery, Mrs. James Ogden, Jr., Mrs. Lonnie Lewis, Mrs. Billy Willard, and Mrs. Warren Fredrick alternated at the two punch bowls. Mrs. Bobby Comer served coffee at the groom's table, which held a traditional brown cake baked by the bride.

For the wedding trip to Florida, the bride changed to a taupe brown ensemble with brown straw hat, white accessories, and an orchid corsage.

SILVER, SILVER EVERYWHERE

In the most glamorous fashions and flattering make-ups, the glint of silver is everywhere this year. Lustrous silver threads light up fabrics, and the lightly silvered look adds a glow to lipstick and eye make-up. It's no wonder, then, that sterling silver flatware is appearing on more tables than ever. Sterling's beauty and long-lasting quality have made it homemakers' first choice in flatware for centuries, but never before has "the silver look" been so fashionable.

SALAD DAYS

Many hostesses ask, "Where do I place the salad fork?" The Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America advises that for salad the left of the place fork. If salad is served with the main course, the salad fork goes inside the place fork, next to the plate, and when salad IS the main course, the regular place fork and knife are used.

MRS. ROBERT FAY JENKINS

Patsy Jean Noble, Robert F. Jenkins Wed In Crossett

Miss Patsy Jean Noble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Noble, became the bride of Lt. Robert Fay Jenkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy L. Jenkins, all of Crossett, at 7:30 p.m., Saturday August 13.

An arch of greenery with love birds and pink satin bows framed the wedding party. Four standing candelabra held pink tapers entwined with pink gladlioli and carnations. Her headdress was a bow of matching material with clusters of seed pearls holding a short veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of phaelonopsis orchids and stephanotis.

Maid of honor and only attendant for the bride was her sister, Miss Gwendolyn Sartor. She wore a floor length gown of blue crepe fashioned on slender lines with bodice of white lace over crepe. Her head piece was a flower of the material with a short veil of illusion. She carried an orchid-toned glamellia.

Ken Clinton was Mr. Doughty's best man, and ushers were Ray Trussell and Kenny Miears, all of Jena.

A reception was held in Our Lady of Lourdes Memorial Center following the ceremony. Miss Kathyrn Mounger of Vidalia presided at the bride's register. The bride's cake, flanked with the bouquets of the wedding party centered a table covered with an imported cut work cloth. Mrs. Henry Jackson served the cake.

The punch table held a large arrangement of white gladioli and blue pompons. Mrs. Luby Carter, Mrs. James Vickery, Mrs. James Ogden, Jr., Mrs. Lonnie Lewis, Mrs. Billy Willard, and Mrs. Warren Fredrick alternated at the two punch bowls. Mrs. Bobby Comer served coffee at the groom's table, which held a traditional brown cake baked by the bride.

For the wedding trip to Florida, the bride changed to a taupe brown ensemble with brown straw hat, white accessories, and an orchid corsage.

SILVER, SILVER EVERYWHERE

In the most glamorous fashions and flattering make-ups, the glint of silver is everywhere this year. Lustrous silver threads light up fabrics, and the lightly silvered look adds a glow to lipstick and eye make-up. It's no wonder, then, that sterling silver flatware is appearing on more tables than ever. Sterling's beauty and long-lasting quality have made it homemakers' first choice in flatware for centuries, but never before has "the silver look" been so fashionable

SALAD DAYS

Many hostesses ask, "Where do I place the salad fork?" The Sterling Silversmiths Guild of America advises that for salad the left of the place fork. If salad is served with the main course, the salad fork goes inside the place fork, next to the plate, and when salad IS the main course, the regular place fork and knife are used.

Shadows of coming events are being noted this week, with several harbingers of next year's calendar already in the news. Opening of school is almost upon us, and, not far behind, the fall acceleration of civic and cultural activity.

Annual tea of MONROE CITY PANHELLENIC is planned for this coming Wednesday afternoon, August 17, from three to five at the home of BARBARA RIVERS, 3800 Forsythe Avenue. Invitations were mailed last weeek to girls who will be entering colleges where National Panhellenic sororities have chapters. Collegiate and alumnae members are also invited to this event each year. JAN BROCKMAN is general chairman.

Plays to be presented during the coming season by LITTLE THEATER OF MONROE, INC., were approved at Wednesday night's meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the home of President JULIUS CAHN. Those selected, subject to availability, are "Camelot", "You Can't Take It With You", "Fantasticks", "A Shot in the Dark", and "Barefoot in the Park."

A coffee tomorrow afternoon is planned to kick off the annual membership drive for Little Theater. Workers have been invited to the home of LOUISE MORGAN, 2801 Pargoud boulevard, between the hours of two and four, to receive instructions and cards. JAN MAHAFFEY, membership chairman, and JANET MORGAN, patron chairman, are hostesses for the party.

It's "ON TO MOBILE" for members of Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, Children of the American Revolution, who are to leave Thursday by chartered bus to attend CAR's Southeastern Regional meeting. The group plans an early departure, with a visit to the Governor's Mansion in Baton Rouge, and a stop at Old Arsenal Museum on the Capitol grounds. They will picnic there before going on to Mobile. Friday and Saturday they will attend convention events: a visit to the USS Alabama; to Oakleigh, ante-bellum mansion; beachcombers' party; reception for national officers; banquet and dance; in addition to workshops, business meetings, etc. They are to return home next Sunday. About thirty CAR's will make up the party.

Pledges of LAMBDA SIGMA CHI high school sorority sponsored a "tasting luncheon" Wednesday in the Paragon ballroom. Girls and mothers prepared the food and typed up receipes for each dish. Those attending served themselves at the long buffet table, selecting from a lavish assortment of extra - delicious specialties. Recipes were sold for individual dishes. Several hundred ladies attended the function.

They were guests here of Maurine's parents, the FORREST LINDQUISTS on Marie Place, and were entertained by old friends at a number of informal parties.

Quail on toast highlighted the menu when JANE HOBGOOD invited a few friends from Maurine's school days hre for luncheon on Tuesday. Jane centered her table with pink zinnias and fresh mint. She served, with the quail, saffron rice, asparagus casserole, pickled peaches, and fresh homemade peach ice cream.

A sherry-coffee at her home was the compliment planned by MARY EMMA WILSON on Wednesday, honoring Maurine. A pink and white theme was noted in appointments, with pink magic lilies, pink gladioli, and tube roses in a silver bowl used as centerpiece. DOROTHY HORNBEAK served sherry, and Izora Lindquist presided at the silver coffee service.

Izora honored her daughter with luncheon in the Rose room at Bayou DeSiard country club. A pink and cranberry color scheme decorated the table where twenty guests were seated. A tri-salad plate was served, including tomato stuffed with shrimp salad; a quartermelon filled with fresh fruit; and spinach molds. Creme de menthe parfaits were dessert.

Hostesses on Saturday morning were JOAN BANCROFT an her daughters, BONNIE, BECKY, and LEIGH, who invited the visiting Alfrey children for swimming and luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club . . .That afternoon, they were invited for horseback riding and refreshments at the country home of the Dick Pipes.

Ann visited her parents, the WESLEY SHAFTOES, while husband John went on to his new assignment there. The Noels plan to be in Spain for three to five years. The boys will attend the American School in Madrid.

Prior to their departure, Ann was honored at a bon voyage luncheon in the home of ALICE ALLEN. Eight old friends were invited to share this farewell visit. Decor carried out the Spanish theme, with a mantilla, figures of toreadors, and Spanish wine used in the centerpiece.

Arriving home from Europe this weekend are CHERIE and ED LONG and their children, VIVIAN and BRUCE. They left the Twin Cities July 9 and went first to Landshut, West Germany, where they visited Ed's brother, LT. COL CARL LONG and his family. Ed attended the World Federation of Mental Health in Prague, Czechoslovakia, and later the International Congress of Child Psychiatry under the royal patronage of Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother in Edinburgh, Scotland. Speakers at this meeting included Anna Freud, Eric Erikson, and Jean Piaget.

Also included on the Long's intenerary was a visit with Cherie's brother-in-law and sister, LT. COMMANDER and MRS. RICHARD GASKILL in Naples, Italy. Stops in Rome, Amsterdam, London, and Paris and a motor trip through southern Germany completed the trip.

Also due home this weekend are CHARLOTTIE and BILL DENT and their sons, BUDDY and MARK, who have been on a three-weeks-circle tour through the Far West. They left July 23 with plans to reach Los Angeles and Disneyland by way of Carlsbad Caverns, Juarez, Mexico, and Grand Canyon. They planned to visit old friends in San Francisco, and make a stop in Stockton, where Buddy was born. Visits to Yosemite, Crater Lake, the Columbia River area, Seattle, Victoria, British Columbia, and Mt. Rainier were to be made before the return trip by way of Yellowston, the Grand Tetons, Denver, Oklahoma City, and Lake Ouachita near Hot Springs.

PAT and BILL RILEY and their children, BILL, PAUL, and PATTY are expected to return today from their trip to Mexico. They have been away two and a half weeks, have visited Mexico City, Acapulco, Cuernevaca, Taxco, and other points of interest South of the Border.

FRAN and HERSCHEL ADCOCK were honored Saturday night when KAROL and JOHNIE PARKERSON entertained at a farewell party. About twenty-five friends were on hand at the Parkerson home, 1600 South Grand, to say good-by to the Adcocks. They will be leaving September 1 for New Orleans, where Herschel will enter the Tulane School of Law.

A first child, LISA FAYE, is being welcomed by the JIMMY MORRISES, JR. The baby, who arrived on Saturday, August 6, is the granddaughter of the GLAY HAMMONS of West Monroe; and of the JIMMY MORRISES of Monroe.

Honoring both his birthday and his service as music director of Cherry Ridge Baptist church in Bastrop, DARRELL WASHAM of Monroe was surprised with a party at the church last week. A bouquet of marigold highlighted with musical notes centered the table. The birthday cake, iced in green and gold, spelled out "Happy Birthday" in musical notes. Approximately 150 guest attended the party. Hostesses were EARLENE JOHNSON, FLOY TISDALE, LOUISE GUNTER, VELMA COTTON, CAROL KILPATRICK, MAVIS LOWERY, and LaRue LOCKWOOD.

For our poem today, these words of wisdom from Dorothy Parker:

My candle burns at both ends
It will not last the night
But ah, my foes, and oh, my friends,
It makes a lovely light!

Designer Pushes Return Of Waist

ROME — Rome fashion designer Antonelli this fall brought back the bust and the waist, in a silhouette which her collection program described as "hurrah for the body."

She even showed belts and waist seams. Other designers seen so far in this year's Rome Winter Couture Collections have skimmed the midriff with only a slight hint of a shape.

Her skirts, like most others, were down to the knee.

Antonelli outdid even the other Rome designers in evening glitter, with coats and dresses made up of thousands of tiny colored flashing mirrors.

The same little mirrors also edged crepe evening shifts and tunics.

GLITTERING NET

The audience's eyes popped as one model appeared in a wide Arabian caftan of glittering net backed with transparent plastic over pajamas of the same material. Decency was preserved by a violet bathing suit under the pajamas.

Regency stripes abounded, in sequins, wools and silks especially for trouser suits.

The House of Balestra confirmed many of the season's emerging trends without launching any sensations. Notably it showed a fondness for mixing purple and orange, a combination which is leaving observers unsettled.

Balkestra also showed plenty of the popular little crepe evening shifts, often long sleeved, richly beaded around the neck, cuffs, and hem, in soft pastel shades.

For cocktails, a number of low-necked shifts were covered with opaque sequins in flower designs and had little sequined headscarves to match.

Balestra's bride's dress looked like elaborate white porcelain, covered completely in white beads in a beautiful rose pattern. Instead of a veil she wore a headscarf in the same beaded material.

The House of Sarli had six brides and none wore a veil. Some had little beaded caps or bonnets, while one had a red riding-hood cloak in white net covered all over in tiny white flowers.

Sarli's beautifully - finished, classic collection confirmed the general trend toward high-fastened, often high - necked coats, with only the slightest dent inwards at the ribs and usually buttoning off-center.

The Fur House of Fendi showed that fur can be right in the front line of fashion — provided one is prepared to pay dear for, say, a bright orange mink which may be way out of fashion next year.

Models in swaggering leather pants wore bear-like parkas. One had a grey fox jacket with a hood covering the whole head except for a slit for the eyes — like a knight's visor.

There was a safari suit in beige sealskin with leather patches at the elbows, knees and seat.

MONROE CITY PANHELLENIC Council members are planning their annual tea, to be held this Wednesday, August 17, at the home of Mrs. James Rivers, 3800 Forsythe avenue. Invitations have been mailed to girls who will be entering colleges where national panhellenic sororities have chapters. Pictured planning the affair are Mrs. Rivers; Mrs. Ralph Brockman, general chairman; and Mrs. Gordon Gates, president of Panhellenic. Other officers of the Council are Mrs. James Hoogland, vice-president; Mrs. D. W. Griffith, secretary; and Mrs. Bob Schwartz, treasurer.

WRAP-AROUND

Christian Dior-New York has introduced a line of sunglasses — wrap arounds designed to prevent a light line from entering around the frame. Cases, done in soft leather, are color coordinated with the eyewear collection.

Shadows of coming events are being noted this week, with several harbingers of next year's calendar already in the news. Opening of school is almost upon us, and, not far behind, the fall acceleration of civic and cultural activity.

Annual tea of MONROE CITY PANHELLENIC is planned for this coming Wednesday afternoon, August 17, from three to five at the home of BARBARA RIVERS, 3800 Forsythe Avenue. Invitations were mailed last weeek to girls who will be entering colleges where National Panhellenic sororities have chapters. Collegiate and alumnae members are also invited to this event each year. JAN BROCKMAN is general chairman.

Plays to be presented during the coming season by LITTLE THEATER OF MONROE, INC., were approved at Wednesday night's meeting of the Board of Directors, held at the home of President JULIUS CAHN. Those selected, subject to availability, are "Camelot", "You Can't Take It With You", "Fantasticks", "A Shot in the Dark", and "Barefoot in the Park."

A coffee tomorrow afternoon is planned to kick off the annual membership drive for Little Theater. Workers have been invited to the home of LOUISE MORGAN, 2801 Pargoud boulevard, between the hours of two and four, to receive instructions and cards. JAN MAHAFFEY, membership chairman, and JANET MORGAN, patron chairman, are hostesses for the party.

It's "ON TO MOBILE" for members of Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, Children of the American Revolution, who are to leave Thursday by chartered bus to attend CAR's Southeastern Regional meeting. The group plans an early departure, with a visit to the Governor's Mansion in Baton Rouge, and a stop at Old Arsenal Muscum on the Capitol grounds. They will picnic there before going on to Mobile. Friday and Saturday they will attend convention events: a visit to the USS Alabama; to Oakleigh, ante-bellum mansion; beachcombers' party; reception for national officers; banquet and dance; in addition to workshops, business meetings, etc. They are to return home next Sunday. About thirty CAR's will make up the party.

Pledges of LAMBDA SIGMA CHI high school sorority sponsored a "tasting luncheon" Wednesday in the Paragon ballroom. Girls and mothers prepared the food and typed up receipes for each dish. Those attending served themselves at the long buffet table, selecting from a lavish assortment of extra - delicious specialties. Recipes were sold for individual dishes. Several hundred ladies attended the function.

Now vacationing in the Ozarks after a week's visit here are MAURINE AND CLARENCE ALFREY, JR., and their children, HEIDI, HOLLY, TAMI, and CURT of Houston, Texas. They were guests here of Maurine's parents, the FORREST LINDQUISTS on Marie Place, and were entertained by old friends at a number of informal parties.

Quail on toast highlighted the menu when JANE HOBGOOD invited a few friends from Maurine's school days hre for luncheon on Tuesday. Jane centered her table with pink zinnias and fresh mint. She served, with the quail, saffron rice, asparagus casserole, pickled peaches, and fresh homemade peach ice cream.

A sherry-coffee at her home was the compliment planned by MARY EMMA WILSON on Wednesday, honoring Maurine. A pink and white theme was noted in appointments, with pink magic lilies, pink gladioli, and tube roses in a silver bowl used as centerpiece. DOROTHY HORNBEAK served sherry, and Izora Lindquist presided at the silver coffee service.

About twenty ladies attended the party, including BEVERLY HATCHELL YANCY of Rayville, and BETTY JO ROACH OGDEN of Mer Rouge.

Thursday morning, VICKY HILL was hostess for a swimming and hamburger party at Bayou DeSiard country club . . . That evening, the grown-ups were entertained at a patio dinner party at the home of CLARA and AYLMER MONTGOMERY on Park Avenue. JOAN and DICK PIPES were co-hosts . . . Izora honored her daughter with luncheon in the Rose room at Bayou DeSiard country club. A pink and cranberry color scheme decorated the table where twenty guests were seated. A tri-salad plate was served, including tomato stuffed with shrimp salad; a quartermelon filled with fresh fruit; and spinach molds. Creme de menthe parfaits were dessert.

Hostesses on Saturday morning were JOAN BANCROFT an her daughters, BONNIE, BECKY, and LEIGH, who invited the visiting Alfrey children for swimming and luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club . . .That afternoon, they were invited for horseback riding and refreshments at the country home of the Dick Pipes.

Concluding a three-week visit, ANN SHAFTO NOEL and her sons, JOHN and BOBBY, left last Wednesday for Madrid, Spain. Ann visited her parents, the WESLEY SHAFTOES, while husband John went on to his new assignment there. The Noels plan to be in Spain for three to five years. Cindy Guilkey Becomes Bride Of Paul M. Ridgway Saturday

Solemnized Saturday, August 13 in Grace Episcopal Church was the wedding of Miss Cindy Guilkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Dale Guilkey, 1712 Lexington Ave., Monroe, to Paul McPherron Ridgway Jr., of Baton Rouge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Ridgway of Wichita, Kansas.

The Rev. W. Bradley Trimble performed the double ring ceremony at 4 p.m. following an organ prelude by Miss Dianne Everett.

White gladioli, asters and agaphantus formed a background for the cross above the altar where vows were exchanged.

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage the bride wore a gown of white silk organza fashioned with low scoop neckline and elbow sleeves, bordered with bands of imported peau de ange lace. The midriff was also overlaid by peau de ange lace, which was repeated in a wide band above the hem line of the semi-belled skirt. A detachable train, also embellished with appliques of the lace, swept to cathedral length from the back waistline. Her veil of French illusion drifted elbow length from a cluster of organza petals. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, stephanotis and lily of the valley with accents of foliage and white maline.

Mrs. J. N. Dimos, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and maid of honor was Miss Ruth Ridgway, sister of the bridegroom. Their identical floor length gowns of pink chiffon featured low scoop necklines and French circular sleeves. Lace empire waists were defined with bias folds of pink satin and watteau panels of the lace fell from flat bows at the back neckline. Their headdresses were shoulder length circlets of pink maline held in place by pink satin bows. They carried cascade bouquets of light pink carnations and pink French maline accented by green carnation foliage curls

Mr. Ridgway served as his son's best man and groomsman was J. N. Dimos. Ushers were E. H. Milburn, Kansas City, Kansas and Joel Cracraft of Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Guilkey chose for her daughter's wedding a turquoise reembroidered lace sheath and jacket ensemble, with matching shoes. Her tiny hat of identical shade was created by rows of tiny turquoise beads on maline. Mrs. Ridgway, mother of the groom, was wearing a yellow lace dress with full length matching coat and white accessories. White cymbidium orchids formed the corsages for both.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at Bayou DeSiard Country Club, where in the entrance hall white magnolia blossoms were arranged in a pewter urn.

The punch table in the center of the ballroom was covered with an organdy ruffled cloth garlanded with boxwood and centered with an antique cupid epergne filled with white stock, agapanathus and pink carnations. Corners of the table were caught up with pink satin ribbon streamers. Presiding at the twin punch bowls were Mrs. Carl R. Guilkey of Independence,, Kansas and Mrs. E. H. Milburn(Kansas City, Kansas.

Dr. Maria Butler of Cleveland, Mississippi, served the tiered wedding cake from a table covered with a matching white organdy cloth. Boxwood garlanded the table and encircled the base of the cake. Guests registered at a table covered with a white organdy and lace cloth and ornamented by a memory candle, adorned with white and pink blossoms. Mrs. Norman H. Smith presided at the guest book. Mrs. Sally B. McNair of Atlanta, Ga., assisted with the reception courtesies.

For their wedding trip to Dallas, Texas the bride changed into a three-piece suit of tangerine knit with white shell, detailed with yarn embroidery in contrasting colors. A white straw hat, banded in tangerine chiffon and white accessories completed her attire. Upon their return the couple will be at home in Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Ridgway, a graduate of Neville High School, received her B.A. degree from Mississippi State College for Women at Columbus, and her M.A. from Louisiana State University. For the past two years she has been on the faculty of Mobile College, Mobile, Alabama. Mr. Ridgway received his B.A. from Southwestern College at Winfield, Kan., and M.S. from Louisaina State University, where he is presently working on his Ph. D.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion - beautifying cold water smooth on a little tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive but your drug store should be able to get you a small supply.

MRS. JAMES WARD RICHARDSON JR.

Tech Students Wed In Ruston Church

The Rev. John Richardson, cousin of the groom, performed the double-ring ceremony which united Miss Wilma Dean Walker, and James Ward Richardson Jr., Saturday, August 13, at Barnett Spring church, Ruston.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Archie Warren Walker and the late Mr. Walker. Mr. Richardson is the son of Mrs. James Ward Richardson, Sr., and the late Mr. Richardson, all of Ruston.

Large bouquets of white summer flowers decorated the church. They were alternated with tiered candelabra entwined with ivy and clusters of green grapes. Music was provided by Steve Lawson at the organ, and the Rev. James H. Moore, soloist.

The bride was escorted to the altar by Mark Randolph Harris, who gave her in marriage. Her wedding gown was a sheath of ivory peau de soie overlaid with matching lace. Clusters of peau de soie roses centered the pearls held her elbow length veil of illusion. She carried a colonial bouquet of white butterfly roses, stephanotis, and phaleanekopsis orchids.

Miss Sandra Pendry, maid of honor, and Miss Helen Richardson, sister of the groom, both of Ruston, attended the bride. They were pastel green peau de soie with long white gloves. On their heads were roses fashioned of mint green peau de soie and covered with illusion. They carried colonial bouquets of miniature pale pink carnations and Happiness roses with green velvet streamers.

Don Richardson, cousin of the groom, of Fort Worth, Texas, was best man. George Haisler of San Antonio, Texas, was groomsman; Ralph Park of Fort Worth, cousin of the groom, usher.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Walker wore a dress of blue Italian silk withh matching jacket and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Richardson, mother of the groom, chose pink silk linen with a corsage of burgundy roses. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. John T. H. Gallman of Ruston, was attired in mauve silk with a purple orchid.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors. Miss Linda Pendry presided at the bride's book.

The bride's table was covered with white silk organza and centered with a silver candelabra. The bridesmaids bouquets were placed on the table. Mrs. Clifford Havron Gallman, aunt of the bride, served punch. Tea girls were Dianna and Carole Sumlin, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sumlin of Ruston.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Ruston High School and are seniors at Louisiana Tech in Ruston, where they will live.

COOL IT

Instead of sweet, sticky soft drinks, take along a thermos full of well-chilled cranberry juice cocktail on your next picnic or outing. The subtle tartness of cranberry juice is a satisfying thirst-quencher on hot summer days.

August Was Named By Augustus Caesar For Self

Although the song says it's June in January, the truth is there's a little bit of February in August.

August, known centuries ago as Sextilis, once was the sixth month of the year. When Julius Caesar revised the calendar, he borrowed one day from February, and added it to the end of Sextilis. Caesar Augustus later added another day and paid tribute to himself by renaming the month August.

Caesar Augustus was born in September, but he chose the preceding month as his namesake in order to be listed on the calendar next to Julius Caesar's month, July. He also considered August his lucky month.

Those who are born in August have two lucky birthstones — the yellowish green peridot and the sardonyx, an onyx marked by colored parallel layers.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion - beautifying cold water smooth on a little tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive but your drug store should be able to get you a small supply.

Princess Bows To Hubby's Edict On Short Skirts

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret has bowed to current fashion and to her husband's wishes and shortened her skirt lengths.

They are not as extravagantly short as the skirts worn by some of the young set around London wears them just now, but are two inches above the knee, which is quite a step for the 35-year-old princess. It has surprised all her friends.

When the shorter skirts first appeared, the princess refused to wear them. She has always been ultra-sensitive about her lack of inches — she is barely five feet — and felt they would make her look even shorter.

Hence the surprise when she first appeared in a honey-colored silk dress and then in a pink one ending well above her knees.

It happened that her husband, Lord Snowdon, liked the short skirt fashion, considered it contemporary, and told his wife frankly that he thought she should follow the current style.

So Princess Margaret changed.

When she goes out in public she conpromises by covering her short dresses with matching coats four inches longer. This satisfies the royal rule that skirts must not reveal the knees when royalty sits on platforms or gets in and out of autos.

Queen Elizabeth II is taller and thinner than her sister and has long, elegant legs. She has shortened her skirts nearly two inches but still makes sure they cover her knees for both private and public wear.

Princess Margaret follows fashions carefully and subscribes to all the leading fashion magazines. But she has aroused mixed opinions, in America anyway, on her taste in clothes.

She has been voted among the best-dressed in that annual U.S. selection, but described by Women's Wear Daily, the trade publication, as "a schizophrenic mixture of chic and sheer disaster."

Margaret is used to following court etiquette so far as fashion is concerned but breaks away from it often.

In 1964 she went to a formal dance displaying an astonishing clevage, and at other parties she has worn her hair with a pink rinse, tinted orange or hidden under a smoky-blue wig.

PLAIDS-CHECKS

Plaids and checks dominate collections for the season ahead. Sample: a wool plaid two-piece dress with its pleated skirt and matching hat. A boldly placid great coat was made of a lush and soft fleece.

CONSISTENCY

Samuel Winston believes consistency is an essential element of true elegance for fall and winter. His new collection points up the consistency of the matched coat and dress.

Princess Bows To Hubby's Edict On Short Skirts

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret has bowed to current fashion and to her husband's wishes and shortened her skirt lengths.

They are not as extravagantly short as the skirts worn by some of the young set around London wears them just now, but are two inches above the knee, which is quite a step for the 35-year-old princess. It has surprised all her friends.

When the shorter skirts first appeared, the princess refused to wear them. She has always been ultra-sensitive about her lack of inches — she is barely five feet — and felt they would make her look even shorter.

Hence the surprise when she first appeared in a honey-colored silk dress and then in a pink one ending well above her knees.

It happened that her husband, Lord Snowdon, liked the short skirt fashion, considered it contemporary, and told his wife frankly that he thought she should follow the current style.

So Princess Margaret changed.

When she goes out in public she conpromises by covering her short dresses with matching coats four inches longer. This satisfies the royal rule that skirts must not reveal the knees when royalty sits on platforms or gets in and out of autos.

Queen Elizabeth II is taller and thinner than her sister and has long, elegant legs. She has shortened her skirts nearly two inches but still makes sure they cover her knees for both private and public wear.

Princess Margaret follows fashions carefully and subscribes to all the leading fashion magazines. But she has aroused mixed opinions, in America anyway, on her taste in clothes.

She has been voted among the best-dressed in that annual U.S. selection, but described by Women's Wear Daily, the trade publication, as "a schizophrenic mixture of chic and sheer disaster."

Margaret is used to following court etiquette so far as fashion is concerned but breaks away from it often.

In 1964 she went to a formal dance displaying an astonishing elevage, and at other parties she has worn her hair with a pink rinse, tinted orange or hidden under a smoky-blue wig.

Mrs. John Roy Endicott, III, of Marshall, Texas; and Mrs. Carpente Guyton, bridesmaids.

They wore idential floor length gowns of white silk organza accented at the empire waistlines with sashes of Copen blue velvet. Their headdresses were matching blue velvet bandeaux, and they carried old fashioned bouquets of mixed summer blossoms.

Mr. Deal attended his son as best man. Groomsmen-ushers were James Thomas Purifey, John Richard Parham, and William Marshall Edwards, all of Camden.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the hall of the chapel. The bride's mother wore for the occasion a dress of pale green peau de soie with matching accessories. The groom's mother chose ice blue lace. Each wore a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

The refreshment table was covered with an embroidered linen cloth, and centered with a silver candelabrum tied with ivy and clusters of stephanotis. At one end was the tiered bride's cake which was crested with small white roses and stephanotis. Punch was served from a silver bowl at the opposite end.

When the newly married couple left on their wedding trip to New Orleans, Mrs. Deal was wearing a deep rose and pink silk tweed suit with pink linen blouse. Her corsage was of tuberoses.

A graduate of Byrd High school and the University of Arkansas, the bride is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. The groom, a graduate of Camden High school, now attends the University of Arkansas, where he is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha. They will live in Fayetteville, Ark.

New Styles Put Color On Campus

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

There is an age and a time when fashion can be almost all fun, and campus is the name for both. Whether it's a college or a high school campus, girls this fall need be bound by no rules at all.

Wear a heathered sweater and skirt if you like, but also have such a fun fashion at Domani's "baseball suit," in purple stripes on gray, with a purple shell and a striped cap to match.

Wear a simple tweed Chesterfield coat if the classics are your love, but do consider a travel coat in black and white plaid, such as Naman's double-breasted water-repellent wool blend with the black collar and buttons in simulated leather.

For every classic campus fashion this fall, there is a kicky, colorful fashion. The only rule is that a girl should have enough fashion sense to handle clothes well. A classic coat and boots, she should know, don't go together, but a poncho and boots do.

MANY LENGTHS

Skirt lengths are as varied as the fashions. Most coats are knee-cap length so as to go over whatever you wear, but if mini-skirts are your pet, be sure to have one shorter coat, perhap an elongated pea jacket, to show a sliver of that skirt.

The conservative short length is just above the knee-cap. Little college separates look great in this length, as in Kelita's costume of a gray bay-jacket, a gray and yellow kilt with the authentic side fringe, a matching plaid tam and fringed scarf. Wear a yellow man-tailored shirt and yellow knee socks to complete the outfit. Knee socks for these above-knee suit skirts are a necessity.

Most dresses also clear the knee-cap, and with the supporter kind, such as College Town's poor-boy dress with the ribbed sweater long-torso bodice and brief, belted skirt, knee socks can also be worn.

With "tea time" jumpers and date-time skimmers, however, patterned tights or hosiery are the right complement.

PEACHY

Orange-glazed fresh peaches make a delicious and beautiful garnish for roasts, chicken, duck or turkey. Peel, halve and pit 3 large fresh peaches. Dip halves into a mixture of ¼ cup of fresh orange juice and 2 tablespoons of dark corn syrup. Place halves, cut side down, in shallow baking dish. Pour in remaining orange mixture. Cover with aluminum foil. Bake 2 0minutes, or until tender, in preheated 400-degree oven. Baste 2or 3 times during baking. Turn cut side up and brown in broiler 2 to 3 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

MISS JOYCE LYNN WILLIAMSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Williamson of Ruston, is engaged to be married to Douglas Wayne Martin, son Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Martin, also of Ruston. The wedding is calendared for 7:30 p.m. Saturday, August 27, at Mineral Springs Baptist church. The couple will live in Monroe.

MISS DENISE GONZALES of New Orleans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Salvadore Gonzales Sr., of 3706 Dick Taylor Street, Monroe, will become the bride of Albert Voorhies Federico, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Federico Sr., of Metairie, La. The wedding is planned for 10 a.m. Tuesday, September 6, in St. Mary's Italian church, Chartres Street, New Orleans.

MISS LINDA GAIL COATES

Plans Announced For September Church Wedding

Wedding plans have been made by Miss Linda Gail Coates and Jimmy Ray Hooper, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Coates of Monroe. The prospective groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Hooper of Logansport.

The Rev. Edgar T. Wiggins will hear the vows at 7:30 p.m. September 2 in Barron Road Baptist Church, Shreveport.

Miss Coates is the granddaughter of Mrs. A. D. Weeks of Shreveport and of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Coates of West Monroe. She is a graduate of Woodlawn High School. She has selected Mrs. Monty Lenard of Luling, La., as her matron of honor and only attendant.

Grandparents of the prospective groom are Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Jooper of Joaquin, Texas. T. O. Hooper of Logansport will attend his son as best man. Ushers are to be Darrell Johnson and Mallory Pace, both of Loganport.

Mr. Hooper is a student at Louisiana Tech in Ruston, where the couple will live.

FDA Report Released On Use Of Oral Contraceptives

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Use of oral contraceptives should continue but various studies should be initiated to gain more knowledge as to their possible harmful effects, an advisory committee of experts has reported to the Food and Drug Administration.

It was recommended that presently required limitations on the length of time a woman takes the pills regularly should be discontinued.

"The committee finds no adequate scientific data, at this time, proving these compounds unsafe for human use," the committee said in the conclusion to its report, based on a study initiated last October which dealt with thousands of case records.

"It has nevertheless taken full cognizance of certain very infrequent but serious side effects and of possible theoretic risks suggested by animal experimental data and by some of the metabolic changes in human beings.

"In the final analysis, each physician must evaluate the advantages and the risks of this method of contraception in comparison with other available methods or with no contraception at all. He can do this wisely only when there is presented to his dispassionate scientific knowledge of the available data."

The committee said the drug industry estimates that 5 million in this country used the pills during 1965. Another estimate was that by late 1965 6,388,000 women had been using or were using the oral contraceptives.

And the committee projected its own estimate that by 1970 there will be 6 million women currently using the drugs, 10 million that used it at some time, and that by 1985 these totals will be 12 million and 19 million.

Dr. Louis M. Hellman was chairman of the committee of medical experts which had 10 medical expert members and three consultants. Hellman is professor and chairman of obstetrics and gynecology at State University of New York, Brooklyn.

The final report was in line with interim determinations last November that the committee found no need for immediate action on reported adverse experiences with oral contraceptives, and that some of the suspected adverse reactions were of types noted as naturally occurring conditions in some women as far back as medical experience extends.

In general, most of the suspected adverse reactions reported involved thromboembolic phenomena including strokes, thrombophlebitis and pulmonary embolism, and various eye and vision manifestations.

The report discussed findings dealing with each category, and other reported possible adverse effects.

Some of the observations:

Thromboembolic Disease: "The present system of reporting deaths and adverse reaction relies on either the cooperation of physicians or the haphazard filtering of rumors to detail men (drug manufacturer representatives). The latter route is patently unreliable, and the former not much better. Physicians are becoming increasingly fearful of reporting deaths or adverse drug reactions because of possible legal reprisal.

"The data derived from mortality statistics are not adequate to conform or refute the role or oral contraceptives in thromboembolic diseases. They do, however, suggest that if oral contraceptives act as a cause, they do so very infrequently relative to the number of users. The committee believes, accordingly, that the only way this important question can be answered is through large, carefully designed epidemiologic studies."

Cancer or Carcinogenic Potential — Regarding uterine cervix cancer — "it is to be emphasized that all known human carcinogens require a latent period of approximately one decade. Hence any valid conclusion must await accurate data on a much larger group of women studied for at least 10 years. Furthermore, there is not sufficient evidence to support the contention that contraceptive pills may protect against the development of carcinoma of the cervix."

Regarding Endometrial Malignancy — "The limited number of women more than 40 years of age, and the short duration, do not permit any conclusions relative to the effect, either adverse or beneficial, of these contraceptive pills on endometrial cancer. While a precise etiologic relationship has not been established, nevertheless, all women receiving estrogen therapy must be followed with care."

Regarding Breast Cancer — "The relationship of the oral contraceptives to breast cancer in the human being is unknown. There are data that give contributory, although not very strong evidence to both sides of the question. There is experimental evidence that estrogens closely related to those used in the oral contraceptives currently marketed will, when continuously given to dogs and other animals, produce breast carcinoma. In many but not all experiments the dosage was large on the basis of human theraphy. Although estrogens have been increasingly employed for a long time and there has been increasing use of oral contraceptives for six years, there has been no increase in mortality from breast carcinoma. The FDA files contain only one case of breast carcinoma occurring in a patient taking oral contraceptives.

Guide To Good Reading

New Books Of Many Types Are Available

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books of many types are being added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library each week. The variety is truly astounding and everyone should be able to find the book he wants or needs. "A Little Love, A Little Learning" by Nina Bawden is a delightful novel with an English setting. It is a pleasure to read a book which is warm, human and pleasant. "The Early Life of Stephen Hind" is a skillfully written novel of manners by Storm Jameson. It will quicken and hold the reader's interest. "Opinion of The Court" by William Woolfolk is a novel of politics based on the Supreme Court. It will interest those who like such books as "Advise and Consent" and "Fail Safe." There are several books for mystery readers, such as "The Crimson Madness of Little Doom" by Mark McShane, "Disposing Mind" by Richard Smithies and "A Business of Bodies" by Stanton Forbes.

Books of non-fiction offer a great variety of reading material. "The Great Philosophers; Vol 2" by Karl Jaspers is a scholarly and well written work. "Book of the Hand" by Fred Gettings is an excellent history of palmistry. Books on this subject are always in demand. Sir Thomas More's "A Dialogue of Comfort Against Tribulation" is a new translation of one of the classics of the Christian faith. "Dag Hammaraskjold, a Spiritual Portrait" by Sven Stolpe is a study of the philosophy of this famous but enigmatic man of our times. "The Invisible Scar" is a very good history of the depression period, written by Caroline Bird. "Folklore in America" by Tristram P. Coffin is a comprehensive survey of this subject.

"Will the Human Race Survive" is a study of the effect of science upon civilization written by Henry Still. A new book in the field of botany is "The Origin of Cultivated Plants" by Franz Schwanitz. There are two interesting books about animals. One is "On Aggression", written by Konrad Lorenz. It deals with the naturally aggressive nature of animals. The other is "The Alien Animals" by George Laycock, who makes a strong plea against the transportation of animals from their native habitat. It will be enjoyed by biologists, naturalists and conservationists.

A perfectly beautiful new book is "The Dawn of European Civilization" written by David Talbot Rice. It is a large, finely illustrated book and is almost a course in medieval history. If you are going to the orient, be sure to see the new edition of "The Pacific Travel Guide" written by John Cope Caldwell. If Europe is your destination, you will want Fielding's "Guide to Europe, 1966 Edition." An interesting history of early Twentieth Century Europe is "The European Powers, 1900-1945" written by Gilbert Martin. "Diary of a Nightmare" by Ursula vo Kardoff paints an unforgettable picture of life in Berlin in the years 1942-1945. "The Black Home of Calcutta" by Noel Barber is another frightening tale of man's inhumanity to man.

"Disinherited" by Dale Van Every is a very penetrating account of the treatment which the American Indians received from the early settlers of our country. "The Early Spanish Main" by Carol O. Sauer is a high tale of adventure in this historic section of our continent. "The Pike's Peak People" by John Fetler is an account of early exploration of America's best known mountain. "The Great North Trail" by Dan Cushman is an enthralling account of the exploration of the West. "Empress Maria Theresa" by Robert Pick gives a good picture of the early years of this famous European monarch. "U Thant" by June Bingham is a well done account of the life of the Secretary of the United Nations.

There are several lovely new reference books available this week. "Modern Ceramics" by Karel Hettes is profusely illustrated and gives an excellent picture of pottery and porcelain of the world. "Oriental Lacquer" by Kurt Herberts is a large beautiful book with exquisite tipped - in illustrations, the author discusses the art and technique of this craft. "The Book of Costume" by Millia Davenport is a complete history of costume through the centuries.

Girl Scouts Swim Seas To England

DOVER, England (AP) — Six Girl Scouts, average ages 15, swam the 20 miles of a choppy English Channel in relay Saturday, the first of their organization ever to do so.

Sally Rose, 16, entered the water at Cap Gris Nez, France, at 3:23 a.m. After an hour she handed over to another girl, and the swim was continued in one-hour intervals from an accompanying boat.

Margaret Greenway, 15, completed the swim, reaching the English shore after 13 hours 11 minutes.

At the same time, an Iranian army lieutenant, Mostafa Etaati, 31, was taken out of the water exhausted seven miles from the English shore after an unsuccessful attempt to swim the channel from Cap Gris Nez. Etaati had been swimming 10 hours 20 minutes.

FDA Report Released On Use Of Oral Contraceptives

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Use of oral contraceptives should continue but various studies should be initiated to gain more knowledge as to their possible harmful effects, an advisory committee of experts has reported to the Food and Drug Administration.

It was recommended that presently required limitations on the length of time a woman takes the pills regularly should be discontinued.

"The committee finds no adequate scientific data, at this time, proving these compounds unsafe for human use," the committee said in the conclusion to its report, based on a study initiated last October which dealt with thousands of case records.

"It has nevertheless taken full cognizance of certain very infrequent but serious side effects and of possible theoretic risks suggested by animal experimental data and by some of the metabolic changes in human beings.

"In the final analysis, each physician must evaluate the advantages and the risks of this method of contraception in comparison with other available methods or with no contraception at all. He can do this wisely only when there is presented to his dispassionate scientific knowledge of the available data."

The committee said the drug industry estimates that 5 million in this country used the pills during 1965. Another estimate was that by late 1965 6,388,000 women had been using or were using the oral contraceptives.

And the committee projected its own estimate that by 1970 there will be 6 million women currently using the drugs, 10 million that used it at some time and that by 1985 these totals will be 12 million and 19 million.

Dr. Louis M. Hellman was chairman of the committee of medical experts which had 10 medical expert members and three consultants. Hellman is professor and chairman of obstetrics and gynecology at State University of New York, Brooklyn.

The final report was in line with interim determinations last November that the committee found no need for immediate action on reported adverse experiences with oral contraceptives, and that some of the suspected adverse reactions were of types noted as naturally occurring conditions in some women as far back as medical experience extends.

In general, most of the suspected adverse reactions reported involved thromboembolic phenomena including strokes, thrombophlebitis and pulmonary embolism, and various eye and vision manifestations.

The report discussed findings dealing with each category, and other reported possible adverse effects.

Some of the observations:

Thromboembolic Disease: "The present system of reporting deaths and adverse reaction relies on either the cooperation of physicians or the haphazard filtering of rumors to detail men or drug manufacturer representatives). The latter route is patently unreliable, and the former not much better. Physicians are becoming increasingly fearful of reporting deaths or adverse drug reactions because of possible legal reprisal.

"The data derived from mortality statistics are not adequate to conform or refute the role or oral contraceptives in thromboembolic diseases. They do, however, suggest that if oral contraceptives act as a cause, they do so very infrequently relative to the number of users. The committee believes, accordingly, that the only way this important question can be answered is through large, carefully designed epidemiologic studies."

Cancer or Carcinogenic Potential. Regarding uterine cervix cancer — "It is to be emphasized that all known human carcinogens require a latent period of approximately one decade. Hence any valid conclusion must await accurate data on a much larger group of women studied for at least 10 years. Furthermore, there is not sufficient evidence to support the contention that contraceptive pills may protect against the development of carcinoma of the cervix."

Regarding Endometrial Malignancy — "The limited number of women more than 40 years of age, and the short duration, do not permit any conclusions relative to the effect, either adverse or beneficial, of these contraceptive pills on endometrial cancer. While a precise etiologic relationship has not been established, nevertheless, all women receiving estrogen therapy must be followed with care."

Regarding Breast Cancer — "The relationship of the oral contraceptives to breast cancer in the human being is unknown. There are data that give contributory, although not very strong evidence to both sides of the question. There is experimental evidence that estrogens closely related to those used in the oral contraceptives currently marketed will, when continuously given to dogs and other animals, produce breast carcinoma. In many but not all experiments the dosage was large on the basis of human theraphy. Although estrogens have been increasingly employed for a long time and there has been increasing use of oral contraceptives for six years, there has been no increase in mortality from breast carcinoma. The FDA files contain only one case of breast carcinoma occurring in a patient taking oral contraceptives.

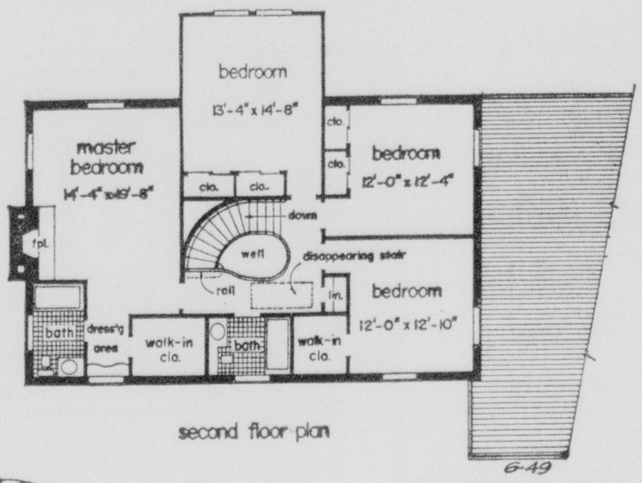
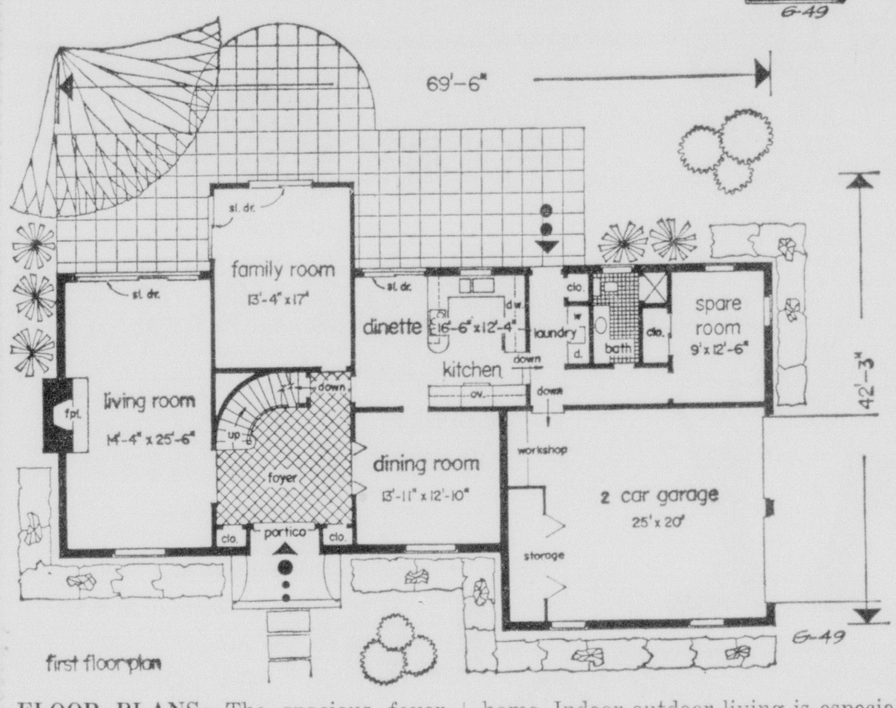
TRIM AND FRENCH: That's nice "clean" look about this French Provincial, five-bedroom house, with its distinctive yet simple lines. Inside, there are nearly 3000 square feet of living space distributed over two floors and effectively utilized.





FLOOR PLANS: The spacious foyer and curved staircase provide an impressive first impression to this roomy home. Indoor-outdoor living is especially convenient, with three rooms having sliding glass doors to the patio.

Modern Living Fun In French Provincial Home

By ANDY LANG

The mail serves as a constant reminder of what we already know: that people are widely divided about the styles of homes they prefer. The two big groups comprise those who like the warmth and elegance of the traditional and those who find the contemporary more desirable.

This two-story, five-bedroom house designed by architect Samuel Paul for House of the Week combines the best of both worlds. While French Provincial in character, the layout provides all the qualities for good modern living. The habitable area of 2967 square feet indicates a comfortable overall size, yet it is modest enough to fit most budgets because it is distributed over two floors. The main outline of the plan is a simple rectangle which helps to keep down construction costs. The second-floor cost, by the way, can be figured at about two-thirds of the first floor, which gives good value to a house of this kind.

The exterior is executed simply and without superficial frills. A tasteful combination of whitewashed brick, symmetrically-placed windows, a high-pitched roof, and black wrought-iron accents, exudes a refined gracefulness and a sophisticated simplicity.

A gracious entrance foyer is enhanced by a majestic, curved staircase to the second floor. Besides providing a pleasant welcome, it acts as a central distribution area from which the main rooms downstairs radiate. To the left is the formal living room 25' 6" long, with a large brick fireplace as its focal point. The dining room is entered to the right through a pair of folding doors. To the rear of the main foyer is the entire informal area, composed of a family room, a kitchen, a dinette, laundry, bath and spare room.

The rear of the house is opened to the expansive patio area through strategically - placed sliding glass doors in the living room, playroom and dinette. The patio can be used for lounging, dining and playing. The work area is spacious, with generous amounts of counter space, and the appliances are efficiently placed to eliminate extra steps and surplus movement. A service section next to the kitchen features an outside entrance mud closet and full laundry space. There is a spare room here as well as a bath and an entrance to the garage. Ceramic tile is used for the floor, walls and stall shower of the bathroom.

There are four bedrooms, with an abundance of closets, on the second floor. The master bedroom, nearly 20' long, features a corner fireplace in brick. The suite has its own full bath, dressing area and huge walk-in closet. The bedrooms are entered from a roomy foyer which serves the luxurious main bath. A traditional storage attic is made possible by the highpitched roof. Access is via a disappearing stair, which is stored unseen in the attic when not in use.

Further storage is provided in the two-car garage, which also has space for a workshop. This handyman area is conveniently located near the entrance to the laundry room and bath, making it possible to clean up before re-entering the main part of the house.

Design G-49, nice to look at, has all the requirements necessary to make it nice to live in.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan G-49.

Advice Flows Freely For Home Buyer

AP NEWSFEATURES

If there is one thing the prospective home buyer isn't lacking it's advice. It comes from anywhere and everywhere.

Two of the more interesting recent statements on the subject come from such widely divergent authorities as a motivational research expert and the president of a savings and loan association. The motivational research authority, Dr. Ernest Dichter, says the shrewd seller "caters to the hidden influences as well as the more obvious ones." And the president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of New York, Wesley J. Bahr, thinks most home buyers don't spend enough time studying the characteristics of the neighborhoods in which they plan to live.

HIDDEN INFLUENCES

What are these hidden influences Dr. Dichter is referring to? For one thing, he says, many builders make a mistake by reducing the sizes of rooms "when in fact it is against the wishes of the future home owner." In conducting a study of home buyers for Weyerhaeuser Company, he discovered that it's not only for space reasons that people these days want larger rooms. "It's because," he asserts, "space means freedom, growth and prosperity, and people resent being denied the full gratification of these basic desires."

Compost Pile Is Necessary

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR
'THE COMPOST'

There are so many uses for a good compost that it seems important for all good gardeners to have one. The product of a good compost is a valuable soil very high in humus contents and rich in plant nutrients. These soils are useful as potting soil for house plants and to use in seed flats. They may also be used as a top dressing for the lawn, especially one that is newly planted or one that is in need of repairs. Hot-beds and cold frames need this type soil and to enrich the flower beds or vegetable gardens, it is envaluable. Many other uses could be listed.

The important thing is to have it on hand when needed — from your own source. Gives you great satisfaction to know you have something valuable made from materials that would be thrown away. Making a compost is a simple matter. Partial shade is better than full sun for the location. Of course the location should be in the rear of the garden or some secluded spot out of view — perhaps near the service area. A good size would be 4 to 6 feet width and 3 to 4 feet in height, any desired length.

The basic foundation could be inverted sods, weed stalks or coarse materials upon which layers of organic refuse and soil should be built up. Animal manure can be included when possible.

Almost any organic material except very woody materials could be used such as grass clippings, sod, weeds, refuse from the vegetable garden or kitchen. Diseased plants should never be placed on the heap. Decomposition of the plant materials is due to the activity of certain organisms, and the rate of decomposition in a compost will be speeded up if these micro-organisms are present in great numbers. A healthy soil contains these in great numbers. Soil should be added to the heap for this reason.

Also, additional well-rotted compost could be added to start off a new heap.

These organisms do not tolerate acid condition in the compost so it is well to add an occasional sprinkling of ground limestone which "sweetens" and gives aid to the decomposition. The time required to convert raw organic materials into a good humus that is ready for use in the garden depends on a number of factors, such as the climatic conditions, moisture content in the compost, types of materials used and whether or not a commercial activator was used. Moisture content is important. When building the pile the middle or top of the pile should be shaped concave so as to catch as much rain as possible. Of course, if dry materials are put into the heap they should be soaked thoroughly. So often hay or dried plant materials are thrown into the compost. The heap should have a spongy, moist consistency at all times. Bacterial action takes place much quicker in warm weather, and green materials decompose quicker than woody materials.

A small compost may be made in an old barrel or oil drum with one end cut off and holes punched in the other end for drainage. Simply pack a layer of leaves about a foot deep, sprinkle with a two inch layer of rich soil, then scatter a cup of 5-10-5, 4-12-4, or similar fertilizer and ½ cup of hydrated lime on top of soil. Repeat until the container is filled. Add just enough water to keep entire contents moist.

After one month turn over the contents with a long fork-two or three times to let the carbon diozide out and to allow plenty of fresh oxygen to enter the pile and hasten decomposition. Simple as that.

One suggestion for freeing the compost of weeds was found in America's Garden Book", by Bush-Brown. It is important to have this type soil for a seed bed or cold frame where seed are to be planted. This method was developed by the University of Rhode Island in which granular calcium cyanamide is used. Not only does this method kill all the weed seeds, but increases the nutritive value of the compost. Calcium Cyanamide, commonly known as Cyanamid, contains 20 per cent nitrogen and the equivalent of 70 per cent hydrated lime. Details for this may be acquired from America's Garden Book, Bush-Brown, located in the Lending Library of The Fifth District Garden Center.

Ecology, the study of the interrelationships of all living things and how they affect one another, has just recently received the attention it deserves. "The Web of Life", by John H. Storer, is excellent reference on this subject dramatizing this important area of conservation.

Boxwood Blight Prevalent Now

BOXWOOD BLIGHT

Perhaps no pest of boxwood is more baffling to gardeners than what is called Volutella Blight. This is the time of year when it gets in its deadly work. Hot humid weather is just to its liking.

Where boxwood bushes are constantly moist near other plants, they are particularly subject to Volutella Blight. Bushes that are not cleaned out annually with a brush are begging for this blight. When the August rains come along, twigs and foliage that have become infested with this unsightly pest suddenly become encrusted with little yellow raised blisters. In the heat and humidity, these blisters erupt. The leaves turn yellow and shed in a light yellow snow onto the ground. Nothing could be more devasting to a boxwood.

First of all, boxwoods must not be allowed to accumulate leaves and trash down inside. Brush them out every year and be sure to collect the dead trash and leaves and burn them at once.

As a preventive against Volutella Blight, spray boxwoods in August with liquid lime sulphur using the summer strength: one to forty recommended on the bottle. The full winter strength is not to be used in hot weather.

If you suspect that Volutella Blight has gotten into your boxwoods, go through them and prune out all the twigs that are infested with the little yellow pustules right now. Then watch the bushes for rupting bumps on twigs and branches when hot humid weather comes along, and spray them with lime sulfur.

BAGWORMS

Every summer, bagworms seem to eat up their quota of Pfitzer junipers, redcedars (Junipers, too) and other conifers before their owners catch on to what is going on. It is hard to see a few bagworms, and we do not seem to notice them till there are hundreds on a juniper.

At this stage of their development, only spraying with something rather powerful seems to do bagworms any harm. Right now, the female is down inside the bag laying her eggs for next years crop. Tozaphene may get her now, but the time to kill these pests is in May and June when the young worms emerge and begin to eat young foliage as they carry their bag around with them. In May and June you can easily kill them by spraying infested shrubs with three tablespoonfuls of lead arsenate to the gallon of water. Remember that lead arsenate is a stomach poison for humans as well as for pests, so it must not be left where children will get it.

Prepare Now For Spring

By AUDREY H. DAWSON
Home Demonstration Agent

In late August and early September is the time for you, Mrs. Gardener, to start your perennials and annuals in flats for next spring blooming. Some suggestions include: early sweet pea, sweet alyssum, snapdragon pansy, calendula, cockscomb, phlox, drummond and periwinkle.

Continue to feed your chrysanthemums with a complete fertilizer as 8-8-8. Chrysanthemums require plenty of water. The ground around them should be thoroughly soaked every week. To keep down leaf diseases, keep the water off the leaves. For large flower heads, disbud all buds that appear except the center bud of each cluster.

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have not lifted and replanted your Easter Lily beds do so as soon as possible. Select the bulbs that are free from insects and diseases.

There are two fallacies about watering the lawn, the first that grass should never be watered when the sun is shining and the other that a little water every day is best. Watering when the sun is shining will not harm the grass, however, if there is any best time to water it probably would be early morning. Watering in early evening may encourage diseases, since the grass will be wet all night. Most turf grass research workers agree that when lawns are watered they should be thoroughly soaked at infrequent intervals, and not watered a little each day.

FLAVORING AGENT

Mrs. Homemaker, have you noticed the words Monosodium glutamate listed in the ingredients of prepared foods? Do you know the purpose of using this ingredient in food? Monosodium glutamate (MSG) is a flavoring agent made from the protein in soybeans, wheat and corn. It may, also, be made from yeast. Contrary to a rather widespread belief among homemakers, MSG is not a preservative or a tenderizer. It is used to impart meat flavor to foods and to enhance other natural food flavors. It may be used in mayonnaise, French dressing and salad dressing without label declaration. Monosodium glutamate can be bought in most food stores for use in home prepared meals.

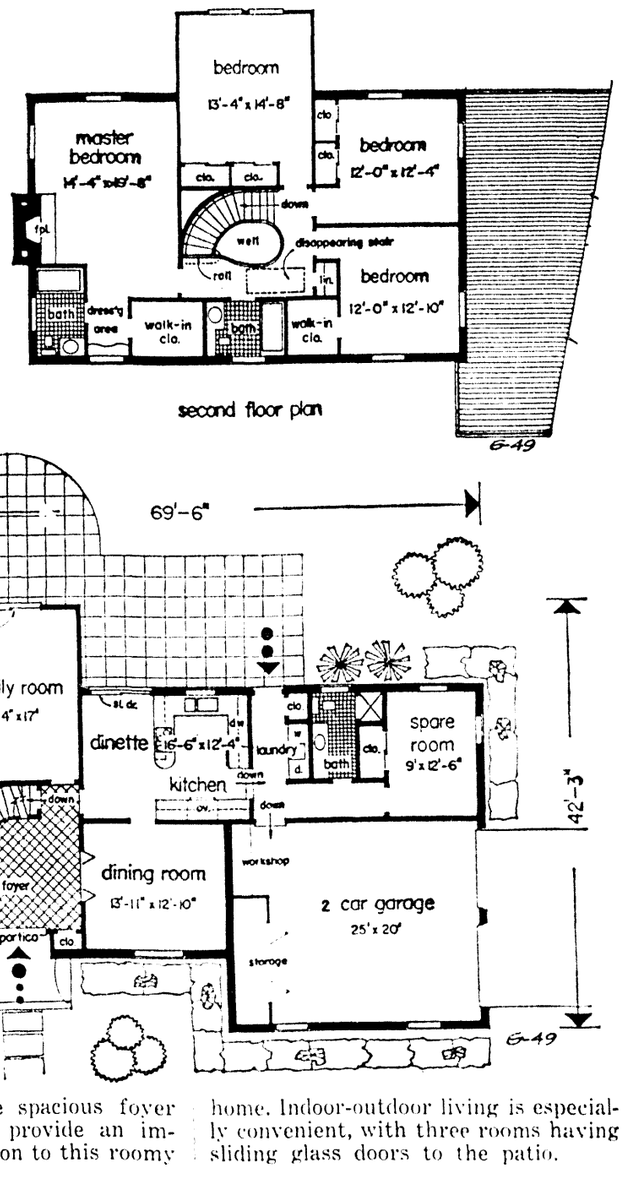
TRIM AND FRENCH: That's nice "clean" look about this French Provincial, five-bedroom house, with its distinctive yet simple lines. Inside, there are nearly 3000 square feet of living space distributed over two floors and effectively utilized.



FLOOR PLANS: The spacious foyer and curved staircase provide an impressive first impression to this roomy home. Indoor-outdoor living is especially convenient, with three rooms having sliding glass doors to the patio.

Modern Living Fun In French Provincial Home

By ANDY LANG

The mail serves as a constant reminder of what we already know: that people are widely divided about the styles of homes they prefer. The two big groups comprise those who like the warmth and elegance of the traditional and those who find the contemporary more desirable.

This two-story, five-bedroom house designed by architect Samuel Paul for House of the Week combines the best of both worlds. While French Provincial in character, the layout provides all the qualities for good modern living. The habitable area of 2967 square feet indicates a comfortable overall size, yet it is modest enough to fit most budgets because it is distributed over two floors. The main outline of the plan is a simple rectangle which helps to keep down construction costs. The second-floor cost, by the way, can be figured at about two-thirds of the first floor, which gives good value to a house of this kind.

The exterior is executed simply and without superficial frills. A tasteful combination of whitewashed brick, symmetrically-placed windows, a high-pitched roof, and black wrought-iron accents, exudes a refined gracefulness and a sophisticated simplicity.

A gracious entrance foyer is enhanced by a majestic, curved staircase to the second floor. Besides providing a pleasant welcome, it acts as a central distribution area from which the main rooms downstairs radiate. To the left is the formal living room 25' 6" long, with a large brick fireplace as its focal point. The dining room is entered to the right through a pair of folding doors. To the rear of the main foyer is the entire informal area, composed of a family room, a kitchen, a dinette, laundry, bath and spare room.

The rear of the house is opened to the expansive patio area through strategically - placed sliding glass doors in the living room, playroom and dinette. The patio can be used for lounging, dining and playing. The work area is spacious, with generous amounts of counter space, and the appliances are efficiently placed to eliminate extra steps and surplus movement. A service section next to the kitchen features an outside entrance mud closet and full laundry space. There is a spare room here as well as a bath and an entrance to the garage. Ceramic tile is used for the floor, walls and stall shower of the bathroom.

There are four bedrooms, with an abundance of closets, on the second floor. The master bedroom, nearly 20' long, features a corner fireplace in brick. The suite has its own full bath, dressing area and huge walk-in closet. The bedrooms are entered from a roomy foyer which serves the luxurious main bath. A traditional storage attic is made possible by the highpitched roof. Access is via a disappearing stair, which is stored unseen in the attic when not in use.

Further storage is provided in the two-car garage, which also has space for a workshop. This handyman area is conveniently located near the entrance to the laundry room and bath, making it possible to clean up before re-entering the main part of the house.

Design G-49, nice to look at, has all the requirements necessary to make it nice to live in.

AP NEWSFEATURES

If there is one thing the prospective home buyer isn't lacking it's advice. It comes from anywhere and everywhere.

Two of the more interesting recent statements on the subject come from such widely divergent authorities as a motivational research expert and the president of a savings and loan association. The motivational research authority, Dr. Ernest Dichter, says the shrewd seller "caters to the hidden influences as well as the more obvious ones." And the president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of New York, Wesley J. Bahr, thinks most home buyers don't spend enough time studying the characteristics of the neighborhoods in which they plan to live.

HIDDEN INFLUENCES

What are these hidden influences Dr. Dichter is referring to? For one thing, he says, many builders make a mistake by reducing the sizes of rooms "when in fact it is against the wishes of the future home owner." In conducting a study of home buyers for Weyerhaeuser Company, he discovered that it's not only for space reasons that people these days want larger rooms. "It's because," he asserts, "space means freedom, growth and prosperity, and people resent being denied the full gratification of these basic desires."

Add up all the victims of blindness, paralytic polio, cerebral palsy, rheumatic heart disease.

What are you going to do about it?

Garden Center Notes

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR
'THE COMPOST'

There are so many uses for a good compost that it seems important for all good gardeners to have one. The product of a good compost is a valuable soil very high in humus contents and rich in plant nutrients. These soils are useful as potting soil for house plants and to use in seed flats. They may also be used as a top dressing for the lawn, especially one that is newly planted or one that is in need of repairs. Hot-beds and cold frames need this type soil and to enrich the flower beds or vegetable gardens, it is envaluable. Many other uses could be listed.

The important thing is to have it on hand when needed — from your own source. Gives you great satisfaction to know you have something valuable made from materials that would be thrown away. Making a compost is a simple matter. Partial shade is better than full sun for the location. Of course the location should be in the rear of the garden or some secluded spot out of view — perhaps near the service area. A good size would be 4 to 6 feet width and 3 to 4 feet in height, any desired length.

The basic foundation could be inverted sods, weed stalks or coarse materials upon which layers of organic refuse and soil should be built up. Animal manure can be included when possible.

Almost any organic material except very woody materials could be used such as grass clippings, sod, weeds, refuse from the vegetable garden or kitchen. Diseased plants should never be placed on the heap. Decomposition of the plant materials is due to the activity of certain organisms, and the rate of decomposition in a compost will be speeded up if these micro-organisms are present in great numbers. A healthy soil contains these in great numbers. Soil should be added to the heap for this reason.

Also, additional well-rotted compost could be added to start off a new heap.

These organisms do not tolerate acid condition in the compost so it is well to add an occasional sprinkling of ground limestone which "sweetens" and gives aid to the decomposition. The time required to convert raw organic materials into a good humus that is ready for use in the garden depends on a number of factors, such as the climatic conditions, moisture content in the compost, types of materials used and whether or not a commercial activator was used. Moisture content is important. When building the pile the middle or top of the pile should be shaped concave so as to catch as much rain as possible. Of course, if dry materials are put into the heap they should be soaked thoroughly. So often hay or dried plant materials are thrown into the compost. The heap should have a spongy, moist consistency at all times. Bacterial action takes place much quicker in warm weather, and green materials decompose quicker than woody materials.

A small compost may be made in an old barrel or oil drum with one end cut off and holes punched in the other end for drainage. Simply pack a layer of leaves about a foot deep, sprinkle with a two inch layer of rich soil, then scatter a cup of 5-10-5, 4-12-4, or similar fertilizer and ½ cup of hydrated lime on top of soil. Repeat until the container is filled. Add just enough water to keep entire contents moist.

After one month turn over the contents with a long fork-two or three times to let the carbon diozide out and to allow plenty of fresh oxygen to enter the pile and hasten decomposition. Simple as that.

One suggestion for freeing the compost of weeds was found in America's Garden Book", by Bush-Brown. It is important to have this type soil for a seed bed or cold frame where seed are to be planted. This method was developed by the University of Rhode Island in which granular calcium cyanamide is used. Not only does this method kill all the weed seeds, but increases the nutritive value of the compost. Calcium Cyanamide, commonly known as Cyanamid, contains 20 per cent nitrogen and the equivalent of 70 per cent hydrated lime. Details for this may be acquired from America's Garden Book, Bush-Brown, located in the Lending Library of The Fifth District Garden Center.

Ecology, the study of the interrelationships of all living things and how they affect one another, has just recently received the attention it deserves. "The Web of Life", by John H. Storer, is excellent reference on this subject dramatizing this important area of conservation.

BOXWOOD BLIGHT

Perhaps no pest of boxwood is more baffling to gardeners than what is called Volutella Blight. This is the time of year when it gets in its deadly work. Hot humid weather is just to its liking.

Where boxwood bushes are constantly moist near other plants, they are particularly subject to Volutella Blight. Bushes that are not cleaned out annually with a brush are begging for this blight. When the August rains come along, twigs and foliage that have become infested with this unsightly pest suddenly become encrusted with little yellow raised blisters. In the heat and humidity, these blisters erupt. The leaves turn yellow and shed in a light yellow snow onto the ground. Nothing could be more devasting to a boxwood.

First of all, boxwoods must not be allowed to accumulate leaves and trash down inside. Brush them out every year and be sure to collect the dead trash and leaves and burn them at once.

As a preventive against Volutella Blight, spray boxwoods in August with liquid lime sulphur using the summer strength: one to forty recommended on the bottle. The full winter strength is not to be used in hot weather.

Exhausting Roles End For Londoner

EDITOR'S NOTE — "Marat-Sade," the play that stunned New York and London, is now on film, and Patrick Magee, for one, is glad it's over. He played the Marquis de Sade in all productions.

By RAYMOND PALMER

LONDON (AP) — British actor Patrick Magee, who has been playing one of the most exhausting stage roles of his career for the last two years, has now put it on film.

"And I hope that's going to be the end of it," he said. "That's not, perhaps, the best way of putting it, but that's how I feel."

The role is that of the Marquis de Sade in the Royal Shakespeare Theater Company's production which has become known as "Marat-Sade." The full title is: "The Persecution and Assassination of Marat as Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis de Sade." The play stunned audiences in London and New York with its power.

The company completed the movie version in 15 shooting days — or little more than it takes to learn to say the play's title. This, said the producer, Lord Birkett, was because it was done on a very limited budget, less than $500,000.

"It's not exactly a shoestring," he said. "You might call it a bootlace budget."

"Because of the time factor, the movie was shot on one set at Pinewood Studios. This was similar to the stage setting of the asylum bath-house used in the London and New York theater productions.

"Of course," said Lord Birkett, "we had the advantage that every member of the cast knows every word and movement of the production from having done it so long on the stage. In fact, we had to be careful to say 'cut!' after each shot, otherwise they would just go or until they reached the end of the play."

Another factor which helped the rapid production was that a continuous form of lighting was devised for the set. Peter Brook, who also directed the stage productions, moved his actors into and out of the pools of light rather than stopping production usually takes considerable time. while a scene was relit, which usually takes considerable time.

The makeup and costumes of the characters who played the asylum inmates were so bizarre that after the first day a special dining room was provided for them at the studio, "so they didn't put the rest of us off our food," explained one studio hand.

Magee, who has played De Sade since the first stage production in London in 1964, said he found the New York production with its eight performances a week the most exhausting.

The fact that one was on the stage all the time, and sitting still a great deal, was demanding — physically demanding," said Magee. "Then the play carries a very curious atmosphere, a very clastrophobic atmosphere. And the fact that you're surrounded by the demented — even if you know they are actors — is very demanding. I found it a very tiring part to play. Perhaps exhausting would be a better word."

Exhausting Roles End For Londoner

EDITOR'S NOTE — "Marat-Sade," the play that stunned New York and London, is now on film, and Patrick Magee, for one, is glad it's over. He played the Marquis de Sade in all productions.

By RAYMOND PALMER

LONDON (AP) — British actor Patrick Magee, who has been playing one of the most exhausting stage roles of his career for the last two years, has now put it on film.

"And I hope that's going to be the end of it," he said. "That's not, perhaps, the best way of putting it, but that's how I feel."

The role is that of the Marquis de Sade in the Royal Shakespeare Theater Company's production which has become known as "Marat-Sade." The full title is: "The Persecution and Assassination of Marat as Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis de Sade." The play stunned audiences in London and New York with its power.

The company completed the movie version in 15 shooting days — or little more time than it takes to learn to say the play's title. This, said the producer, Lord Birkett, was because it was done on a very limited budget, less than $500,000.

"It's not exactly a shoestring," he said. "You might call it a bootlace budget."

"Because of the time factor, the movie was shot on one set at Pinewood Studios. This was similar to the stage setting of the asylum bath-house used in the London and New York theater productions.

"Of course," said Lord Birkett, "we had the advantage that every member of the cast knows every word and movement of the production from having done it so long on the stage. In fact, we had to be careful to say 'cut' after each shot, otherwise they would just go or until they reached the end of the play."

Another factor which helped the rapid production was that a continuous form of lighting was devised for the set. Peter Brook, who also directed the stage productions, moved his actors into and out of the pools of light rather than stopping production usually takes considerable time, while a scene was relit, which usually takes considerable time.

The makeup and costumes of the characters who played the asylum inmates were so bizarre that after the first day a special dining room was provided for them at the studio, "so they didn't put the rest of us off our food," explained one studio hand.

Magee, who has played De Sade since the first stage production in London in 1964, said he found the New York production with its eight performances a week the most exhausting.

The fact that one was on the stage all the time, and sitting still a great deal, was demanding — physically demanding," said Magee. "Then the play carries a very curious atmosphere, a very claustrophobic atmosphere. And the fact that you're surrounded by the demented — even if you know they are actors — is very demanding. I found it a very tiring part to play. Perhaps exhausting would be a better word."

There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities...

Place your faith in God.

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, 323-3660, 323-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

THE NEW FORSYTHE Avenue Church Church of Christ, being used by its congregation for the fourth Sunday today, is termed one of the South's most unusual architectural exhibits. The sleek curving roof line rises steeply, offering a striking view amid the rustic setting of the building. Featured in the vertical section above the church's front entrance are amber colored glass panels. (Staff photo by Ronnie Heflin)

KENNETH STATON, new Minister of Education for First Baptist Church of West Monroe, arrived last weekend with his family from Oklahoma City, Okla., where he had served Putman City Baptist Church for ten and a half years. With him are, left to right, his wife, Katherine; Lou Ann, 11; Jim, 16; and Bill, 13. The Oklahomans said people in West Monroe are "just as friendly as they were back home." Oklahomans Find Local People 'Very Friendly'

By DIANE TAYLOR
Staff Writer

A wise man once said you've only to look at how a newcomer felt about the people where he came from, to learn how he will like the people he meets in his new town.

Kenneth Staton, new minister of education for First Baptist Church of West Monroe, said during his first week in West Monroe that "people here are just as friendly as back home."

Staton moved with his family from Oklahoma City, Okla., over the weekend and assumed his duties at his new church last Sunday.

He was minister of education at Putnam City Baptist Church in Oklahoma City for the past ten and a half years.

He came to West Monroe "'because I felt the Lord's call."

As minister of education, the tall Oklahomn will be responsible for the enlistment and training of workers in the church's Sunday School and Baptist Training Union classes and will direct the church's visitation program. He will edit the church publication. "Baptist Visitor," handling the printing of the paper on the church's offset press. Not the least of his duties in the administration and promotion of the church's educational program will be the advisement in matters of church literature.

He replaced the church's former minister of education who assumed a post in December at a Houston, Tex., church. The church had been without a minister of education until this week.

Staton said he met in June with the church's pastor, Dr. Clifton Tennison, to discuss the move to West Monroe, then last month was the subject of study by the church committee responsible for hiring a man for his post. The committee recommended to the church that he be hired to fill the position.

The Statons were officially presented to the church Sunday, July 24, at the close of the morning worship service, and he assumed his duties last Sunday, after the family moved here on the preceding Friday.

The Staton children — Jim, 16; Bill, 13; and Lou Ann, 11 — will enter the parish schools this fall.

The family resides, at the present, at a home secured for them by the church, at 211 Anderson St., but will move in October to the new home in White Columns Subdivision which the church is having built for them.

A native of Durant, Okla., Staton attended Southeastern State College at Durant, Georgia Tech at Atlanta and was graduated from the University of Oklahoma at Norman in 1950. He received his master's degree in religious education from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, Tex., in January, 1953.

His first church post was at White Settlement Baptist Church at Fort Worth, where he served from 1953-55, before accepting the Oklahoma City position.

CHURCH BELIEF

It is the Baptist Church's belief that every Christian who is saved first has a personal experience with God. Staton said his experience came while he was attending the University of Oklahoma in the spring of 1950.

"It was during a revival," he said. "I just made the decision to surrender my life to do what the Lord wanted me to do. I counseled with the church pastor. I attended Student Week at Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly near Asheville, N. C., and decided while there that my life's work would be in religious education."

Staton said the new church year will begin the first of October, and until then he foresees no major changes in the church educational program.

"The church recently voted to change literature," he said, "and beginning with the new church year, we will use the 'Life and Work Curriculum' series for our classroom material, in both adult and young people's Sunday School and BTU classes."

Beatle Fan Of Undying Devotion

DETROIT (UPI) — They screamed, and they cried. Their devotion for the Beatles, it seems, is undying, and all is forgiven in Detroit.

Close to 32,000 screaming, flashbulb-popping, banner-waving, Beatle-loving teenagers and a few parents, showed the mop-haired foursome Saturday that they can forgive and forget.

The only noticeable dissenter in front of Olympia Stadium where the Beatles appeared was a picketer with a sign saying, "I'm a fool for Jesus. Whose fool are you?"

Guitar-toting John Lennnon recently said the Beatles were more popular than Jesus. However, Friday in Chicago he explained he was using the Beatles only as comparison to illustrate the problems of Christianity.

Nearly 450 policemen, including 12 nonuniformed policewomen, kept the crowd from mobbing the stage and mauling the Beatles.

Policemen stood three-abreast in front of the stage platform and most had cotton in their ears because of the deafening roar of the music amplifiers and the continuous screaming.

Enthusiastic Beatle-lovers just couldn't get close enough or scream loud enough.

STILL SMOKING, a cannon of the 9th Artillery Battery, 25th Division, is already being reloaded during action in Viet Nam. Thousands of artillery rounds support the about 10,000 U.S. and Korean infantrymen that search for several North Vietnamese troops that have slipped under cover of bad weather across the Cambodian border into the central Vietnamese highlands. Strikers Torpedo Airline Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz disclosed Saturday night that agreement apparently was reached Friday in the 36-day-old airline strike, but the striking Machinists Union later torpedoed it.

Wirtz said the airlines and the union at first apparently agreed on a package that would have cost the airlines an estimated $84 million over three years, but the union later backed out of it.

Wirtz's statement followed within hours a report that union negotiators stormed out of a meeting Saturday with the labor secretary.

Wirtz said a joint meeting Saturday "'was abruptly terminated, shortly after it started, when Mr. (Roy) Siemiller (union president) withdrew from it, taking his bargaining committee with him, on the ground—which has no basis in fact—that one of the carrier representatives had reflected on his integrity."

Wirtz' statement gave this account of the events:

"There has been an intensive series of meetings with the parties during the past three days."

"Yesterday agreement was apparently reached."

"The union had presented its revised demands in the form of a 'package' covering wage, fringe, and cost-of-living escalator issues with a value of approximately $94 million over a three-year period for the five companies."

Wirtz said Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, in a series of meetings with both parties, "obtained what appeared to be the agreement of both of them to a package covering all of these same items, but with some modifications in their terms.

"This package would have a value of about $84 million over the three-year period. The airline companies agreed to this on the understanding communicated through Secretary Reynolds on the basis of IAM (International Association of Machinists) President Siemiller's statements to him — that the union had also accepted it."

But Wirtz said that when Reynolds brought representatives of both sides together later to complete the details "the union rejected the terms and reverted to its $94-million position." Siemiller was not at the meeting.

Wirtz said, however, that "every effort will still be made to resolve this case by mutual agreement," and he called a meeting of both sides for today at 10 a.m.

A Labor Department spokesma nsai dthere was no consultation with the White House prior to the issuance of Wirtz's statement.

Wirtz said, "There is the basis here for a settlement which is fair to both parties."

It was learned through other sources that Siemiller stormed out of the meeting when an airlines representative accused him of lying. "You are trying to make a liar out of me," Siemiller yelled back.

Some of the conversation could be heard in the corridor outside the meeting room.

According to these accounts, when the meeting began with Wirtz the union negotiators said they had not agreed to the new settlement proposal and didn't even know what was in it.

Wirtz reportedly told Siemiller when he got up to leave that, "You leave at your own risk."

Siemiller retorted, "'I have been walking out at my own risk all my life.'"

Informed sources described the argument as apparently the result of a misunderstanding between negotiators on both sides and was not a fight with Wirtz and other government officials who have been trying to bring the two sides together in order to avert legislation.

Word of the flareup at the Labor Department came shortly after Siemiller had released a statement accusing the airlines of hiding behind White House wage-price guidelines to protect what he called exorbitant profits.

The developments appeared to dim still further the already faint hope for reaching a voluntary agreement before Congress acts on pending legislation which would force the 35,000 strikers back to their jobs.

Rep. Garrett Runs Ahead In Claiborne

HOMER (Special) — Rep. John S. Garrett carried his home parish of Claiborne Saturday in a bid for the 3rd District Public Service Commission seat.

Complete but unofficial returns from the 25 voting precincts gave Garrett 2,410 votes. His closest opponent John S. Hunt II of Monroe drew 1,298 votes. Hunt is the incumbent.

Of the other candidates, Rep. Parey Branton of Shongaloo picked up 172 votes; Wellborn Jack of Shreveport, 156 votes; Perry Coleman of Pollock, 84 votes, and John McKinley of Monroe, 66 votes.

In the U. S. Senate race from Claiborne Parish, the incumbent Sen. Allen J. Ellender won easily with 2,749 votes. State Sen. J. B. DeBlieux of Baton Rouge got 804 votes while Troyce Guice of Ferriday picked up 408 votes.

Exports Of Cotton May Show Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — U. S. cotton exports this season are expected to be nearly double what they were the past year but they are off to a slow start, the New York Cotton Exchange reported today.

Exports for the season ended July 31 were 3,020,000 bales. This year they are expected to be up 2.5 million. But with only 10,000 bales exported during the week ended last Tuesday, they totaled only 18,000 vs. 44,000 a year ago for the new season.

Cotton future contracts dropped this week, $1.25 to $2.05. They were up 25 cents to $1.50 last week. There was an influx of orders at the end of the week, and some indication of short selling.

The first official forecast of the current crop was released this week by the U. S. Department of Agriculture: about 10,820,000 bales.

Police Seek Mental Aid For Rapist

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Police enlisted the aid of psychiatrists Saturday to try and catch a young masked man who has raped 26 women in two suburban Maryland counties in the past year.

States Atty. Arthur A. Marshall of Prince Georges County, where most of the assaults occurred, said he hoped that by studying police reports of the rapes, psychiatrists could put together a portrait of the rapist that would help them identify him.

A massive search has been under way for months, but that fact was not made public until Friday because officers believed it would hamper efforts to capture the man. After months of failures, however, they decided to call on the public for help.

Police in both counties asked citizens to report any suspicious persons immediately and take precautions against forced entry of their homes.

Twenty of the rapes took place in Prince Georges County and six in neighboring Montgomery County. Most were in or near the community of Langley Park, just north of the District of Columbia line.

Beatle Fan Of Undying Devotion

DETROIT (UPI) — They screamed, and they cried. Their devotion for the Beatles, it seems, is undying, and all is forgiven in Detroit.

Close to 32,000 screaming, flashbulb-popping, banner-waving, Beatle-loving teenagers and a few parents, showed the mop-haired foursome Saturday that they can forgive and forget.

The only noticeable dissenter in front of Olympia Stadium where the Beatles appeared was a picketer with a sign saying, "I'm a fool for Jesus. Whose fool are you?"

Guitar-toting John Lennnon recently said the Beatles were more popular than Jesus. However, Friday in Chicago he explained he was using the Beatles only as comparison to illustrate the problems of Christianity.

Nearly 450 policemen, including 12 nonuniformed policewomen, kept the crowd from mobbing the stage and mauling the Beatles.

Policemen stood three-abreast in front of the stage platform and most had cotton in their cars because of the deafening roar of the music amplifiers and the continuous screaming.

Enthusiastic Beatle-lovers just couldn't get close enough or scream loud enough.

STILL SMOKING, a cannon of the 9th Artillery Battery, 25th Division, is already being reloaded during action in Viet Nam. Thousands of artillery rounds support the about 10,000 U.S. and Korean infantrymen that search for several North Vietnamese troops that have slipped under cover of bad weather across the Cambodian border into the central Vietnamese highlands. Strikers Torpedo Airline Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz disclosed Saturday night that agreement apparently was reached Friday in the 36-day-old airline strike, but the striking Machinists Union later torpedoed it.

Wirtz said the airlines and the union at first apparently agreed on a package that would have cost the airlines an estimated $84 million over three years, but the union later backed out of it.

Wirtz's statement followed within hours a report that union negotiators stormed out of a meeting Saturday with the labor secretary.

Wirtz said a joint meeting Saturday "was abruptly terminated, shortly after it started, when Mr. (Roy) Siemiller (union president) withdrew from it, taking his bargaining committee with him, on the ground—which has no basis in fact—that one of the carrier representatives had reflected on his integrity."

Wirtz' statement gave this account of the events:

"There has been an intensive series of meetings with the parties during the past three days."

"Yesterday agreement was apparently reached."

"The union had presented its revised demands in the form of a 'package' covering wage, fringe, and cost-of-living escalator issues with a value of approximately $94 million over a three-year period for the five companies."

Wirtz said Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, in a series of meetings with both parties, "obtained what appeared to be the agreement of both of them to a package covering all of these same items, but with some modifications in their terms.

"This package would have a value of about $84 million over the three-year period. The airline companies agreed to this on the understanding communicated through Secretary Reynolds on the basis of IAM (International Association of Machinists) President Siemiller's statements to him — that the union had also accepted it."

But Wirtz said that when Reynolds brought representatives of both sides together later to complete the details "the union rejected the terms and reverted to its $94-million position." Siemiller was not at the meeting.

Wirtz said, however, that "every effort will still be made to resolve this case by mutual agreement," and he called a meeting of both sides for today at 10 a.m.

A Labor Department spokesman said there was no consultation with the White House prior to the issuance of Wirtz's statement.

Wirtz said, "There is the basis here for a settlement which is fair to both parties."

It was learned through other sources that Siemiller stormed out of the meeting when an airlines representative accused him of lying. "You are trying to make a liar out of me," Siemiller yelled back.

Some of the conversation could be heard in the corridor outside the meeting room.

According to these accounts, when the meeting began with Wirtz the union negotiators said they had not agreed to the new settlement proposal and didn't even know what was in it.

Wirtz reportedly told Siemiller when he got up to leave that, "You leave at your own risk."

Siemiller retorted, "'I have been walking out at my own risk all my life.'"

Informed sources described the argument as apparently the result of a misunderstanding between negotiators on both sides and was not a fight with Wirtz and other government officials who have been trying to bring the two sides together in order to avert legislation.

Word of the flareup at the Labor Department came shortly after Siemiller had released a statement accusing the airlines of hiding behind White House wage-price guidelines to protect what he called exorbitant profits.

The developments appeared to dim still further the already faint hope for reaching a voluntary agreement before Congress acts on pending legislation which would force the 35,000 strikers back to their jobs.

Rep. Garrett Runs Ahead In Claiborne

HOMER (Special) — Rep. John S. Garrett carried his home parish of Claiborne Saturday in a bid for the 3rd District Public Service Commission seat.

Complete but unofficial returns from the 25 voting precincts gave Garrett 2,410 votes. His closest opponent John S. Hunt II of Monroe drew 1,298 votes. Hunt is the incumbent.

Of the other candidates, Rep. Parey Branton of Shongaloo picked up 172 votes; Wellborn Jack of Shreveport, 156 votes; Perry Coleman of Pollock, 84 votes, and John McKinley of Monroe, 66 votes.

In the U. S. Senate race from Claiborne Parish, the incumbent Sen. Allen J. Ellender won easily with 2,749 votes. State Sen. J. B. DeBlieux of Baton Rouge got 804 votes while Troyce Guice of Ferriday picked up 408 votes.

Exports Of Cotton May Show Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — U. S. cotton exports this season are expected to be nearly double what they were the past year but they are off to a slow start, the New York Cotton Exchange reported today.

Exports for the season ended July 31 were 3,020,000 bales. This year they are expected to be up 2.5 million. But with only 10,000 bales exported during the week ended last Tuesday, they totaled only 18,000 vs. 44,000 a year ago for the new season.

Cotton future contracts dropped this week, $1.25 to $2.05. They were up 25 cents to $1.50 last week. There was an influx of orders at the end of the week, and some indication of short selling.

The first official forecast of the current crop was released this week by the U. S. Department of Agriculture: about 10,820,000 bales.

Police Seek Mental Aid For Rapist

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Police enlisted the aid of psychiatrists Saturday to try and catch a young masked man who has raped 26 women in two suburban Maryland counties in the past year.

States Atty. Arthur A. Marshall of Prince Georges County, where most of the assaults occurred, said he hoped that by studying police reports of the rapes, psychiatrists could put together a portrait of the rapist that would help them identify him.

A massive search has been under way for months, but that fact was not made public until Friday because officers believed it would hamper efforts to capture the man. After months of failures, however, they decided to call on the public for help.

Police in both counties asked citizens to report any suspicious persons immediately and take precautions against forced entry of their homes.

Twenty of the rapes took place in Prince Georges County and six in neighboring Montgomery County. Most were in or near the community of Langley Park, just north of the District of Columbia line.

FDA Report Released On Use Of Oral Contraceptives

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Use of oral contraceptives should continue but various studies should be initiated to gain more knowledge as to their possible harmful effects, an advisory committee of experts has reported to the Food and Drug Administration.

It was recommended that presently required limitations on the length of time a woman takes the pills regularly should be discontinued.

"The committee finds no adequate scientific data, at this time, proving these compounds unsafe for human use," the committee said in the conclusion to its report, based on a study initiated last October which dealt with thousands of case records.

"It has nevertheless taken full cognizance of certain very infrequent but serious side effects and of possible theoretic risks suggested by animal experimental data and by some of the metabolic changes in human beings.

"In the final analysis, each physician must evaluate the advantages and the risks of this method of contraception in comparison with other available methods or with no contraception at all. He can do this wisely only when there is presented to his dispassionate scientific knowledge of the available data."

The committee said the drug industry estimates that 5 million in this country used the pills during 1965. Another estimate was that by late 1965 6,388,000 women had been using or were using the oral contraceptives.

And the committee projected its own estimate that by 1970 there will be 6 million women currently using the drugs, 10 million that used it at some time, and that by 1985 these totals will be 12 million and 19 million.

Dr. Louis M. Hellman was chairman of the committee of medical experts which had 10 medical expert members and three consultants. Hellman is professor and chairman of obstetrics and gynecology at State University of New York, Brooklyn.

The final report was in line with interim determinations last November that the committee found no need for immediate action on reported adverse experiences with oral contraceptives, and that some of the suspected adverse reactions were of types noted as naturally occurring conditions in some women as far back as medical experience extends.

In general, most of the suspected adverse reactions reported involved thromboembolic phenomena including strokes, thrombophlebitis and pulmonary embolism, and various eye and vision manifestations.

The report discussed findings dealing with each category, and other reported possible adverse effects.

Some of the observations:

Thromboembolic Disease: "The present system of reporting deaths and adverse reaction relies on either the cooperation of physicians or the haphazard filtering of rumors to detail men (drug manufacturer representatives). The latter route is patently unreliable, and the former not much better. Physicians are becoming increasingly fearful of reporting deaths or adverse drug reactions because of possible legal reprisal.

"The data derived from mortality statistics are not adequate to conform or refute the role or oral contraceptives in thromboembolic diseases. They do, however, suggest that if oral contraceptives act as a cause, they do so very infrequently relative to the number of users. The committee believes, accordingly, that the only way this important question can be answered is through large, carefully designed epidemiologic studies."

Cancer or Carcinogenic Potential — Regarding uterine cervix cancer — "it is to be emphasized that all known human carcniogens require a latent period of approximately one decade. Hence any valid conclusion must await accurate data on a much larger group of women studied for at least 10 years. Furthermore, there is not sufficient evidence to support the contention that contraceptive pills may protect against the development of carcinoma of the cervix."

Regarding Endometrial Malignancy — "The limited number of women more than 40 years of age, and the short duration, do not permit any conclusions relative to the effect, either adverse or beneficial, of these contraceptive pills on endometrial cancer. While a precise etiologic relationship has not been established, nevertheless, all women receiving estrogen therapy must be followed with care."

Regarding Breast Cancer — "The relationship of the oral contraceptives to breast cancer in the human being is unknown. There are data that give contributory, although not very strong evidence to both sides of the question. There is experimental evidence that estrogens closely related to those used in the oral contraceptives currently marketed will, when continuously given to dogs and other animals, produce breast carcinoma. In many but not all experiments the dosage was large on the basis of human theraphy. Although estrogens have been increasingly employed for a long time and there has been increasing use of oral contraceptives for six years, there has been no increase in mortality from breast carcinoma. The FDA files contain only one case of breast carcinoma occurring in a patient taking oral contraceptives.

Guide To Good Reading

New Books Of Many Types Are Available

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books of many types are being added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library each week. The variety is truly astounding and everyone should be able to find the book he wants or needs. "A Little Love, A Little Learning" by Nina Bawden is a delightful novel with an English setting. It is a pleasure to read a book which is warm, human and pleasant. "The Early Life of Stephen Hind" is a skillfully written novel of manners by Storm Jameson. It will quicken and hold the reader's interest. "Opinion of The Court" by William Woolfolk is a novel of politics based on the Supreme Court. It will interest those who like such books as "Advise and Consent" and "Fail Safe." There are several books for mystery readers, such as "The Crimson Madness of Little Doom" by Mark McShane, "Disposing Mind" by Richard Smithies and "A Business of Bodies" by Stanton Forbes.

Books of non-fiction offer a great variety of reading material. "The Great Philosophers; Vol 2" by Karl Jaspers is a scholarly and well written work. "Book of the Hand" by Fred Gettings is an excellent history of palmistry. Books on this subject are always in demand. Sir Thomas More's "A Dialogue of Comfort Against Tribulation" is a new translation of one of the classics of the Christian faith. "Dag Hammaraskjold, a Spiritual Portrait" by Sven Stolpe is a study of the philosophy of this famous but enigmatic man of our times. "The Invisible Scar" is a very good history of the depression period, written by Caroline Bird. "Folklore in America" by Tristram P. Coffin is a comprehensive survey of this subject.

"Will the Human Race Survive" is a study of the effect of science upon civilization written by Henry Still. A new book in the field of botany is "The Origin of Cultivated Plants" by Franz Schwanitz. There are two interesting books about animals. One is "On Aggression", written by Konrad Lorenz. It deals with the naturally aggressive nature of animals. The other is "The Alien Animals" by George Laycock, who makes a strong plea against the transportation of animals from their native habitat. It will be enjoyed by biologists, naturalists and conservationists.

A perfectly beautiful new book is "The Dawn of European Civilization" written by David Talbot Rice. It is a large, finely illustrated book and is almost a course in medieval history. If you are going to the orient, be sure to see the new edition of "The Pacific Travel Guide" written by John Cope Caldwell. If Europe is your destination, you will want Fielding's "Guide to Europe, 1966 Edition." An interesting history of early Twentieth Century Europe is "The European Powers, 1900-1945" written by Gilbert Martin. "Diary of a Nightmare" by Ursula vo Kardoff paints an unforgettable picture of life in Berlin in the years 1942-1945. "The Black Home of Calcutta" by Noel Barber is another frightening tale of man's inhumanity to man.

"Disinherited" by Dale Van Every is a very penetrating account of the treatment which the American Indians received from the early settlers of our country. "The Early Spanish Main" by Carol O. Sauer is a high tale of adventure in this historic section of our continent. "The Pike's Peak People" by John Fetler is an account of early exploration of America's best known mountain. "The Great North Trail" by Dan Cushman is an enthralling account of the exploration of the West. "Empress Maria Theresa" by Robert Pick gives a good picture of the early years of this famous European monarch. "U Thant" by June Bingham is a well done account of the life of the Secretary of the United Nations.

There are several lovely new reference books available this week. "Modern Ceramics" by Karel Hettes is profusely illustrated and gives an excellent picture of pottery and porcelain of the world. "Oriental Lacquer" by Kurt Herberts is a large beautiful book with exquisite tipped - in illustrations, the author discusses the art and technique of this craft. "The Book of Costume" by Millia Davenport is a complete history of costume through the centuries

Girl Scouts Swim Seas To England

DOVER, England (AP) — Six Girl Scouts, average ages 15, swam the 20 miles of a choppy English Channel in relay Saturday, the first of their organization ever to do so.

Sally Rose, 16, entered the water at Cap Gris Nez, France, at 3:23 a.m. After an hour she handed over to another girl, and the swim was continued in one-hour intervals from an accompanying boat.

Margaret Greenway, 15, completed the swim, reaching the English shore after 13 hours 11 minutes.

At the same time, an Iranian army lieutenant, Mostafa Etaati, 31, was taken out of the water exhausted seven miles from the English shore after an unsuccessful attempt to swim the channel from Cap Gris Nez. Etaati had been swimming 10 hours 20 minutes.

Physicians are becoming increasingly fearful of reporting deaths or adverse drug reactions because of possible legal reprisal.

"The data derived from mortality statistics are not adequate to conform or refute the role of oral contraceptives in thromboembolic diseases. They do, however, suggest that if oral contraceptives act as a cause, they do so very infrequently relative to the number of users. The committee believes, accordingly, that the only way this important question can be answered is through large, carefully designed epidemiologic studies.

Cancer or Carcinogenic Potential: Regarding uterine cervix cancer: "It is to be emphasized that all known human carcinogens require a latent period of approximately one decade. Hence any valid conclusion must await accurate data on a much larger group of women studied for at least 10 years. Furthermore, there is not sufficient evidence to support the contention that contraceptive pills may protect against the development of carcinoma of the cervix."

Regarding Endometrial Malignancy: "The limited number of women more than 40 years of age, and the short duration, do not permit any conclusions relative to the effect, either adverse or beneficial, of these contraceptive pills on endometrial cancer. While a precise etiologic relationship has not been established, nevertheless, all women receiving estrogen therapy must be followed with care."

Regarding Breast Cancer: "The relationship of the oral contraceptives to breast cancer in the human being is unknown. There are data that give contributory, although not very strong evidence to both sides of the question. There is experimental evidence that estrogens closely related to those used in the oral contraceptives currently marketed will, when continuously given to dogs and other animals, produce breast carcinoma. In many but not all experiments the dosage was large on the basis of human theraphy. Although estrogens have been increasingly employed for a long time and there has been increasing use of oral contraceptives for six years, there has been no increase in mortality from breast carcinoma. The FDA files contain only one case of breast carcinoma occurring in a patient taking oral contraceptives.

Guide To Good Reading

New Books Of Many Types Are Available

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books of many types are being added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library each week. The variety is truly astounding and everyone should be able to find the book he wants or needs. "A Little Love, A Little Learning" by Nina Bawden is a delightful novel with an English setting. It is a pleasure to read a book which is warm, human and pleasant. "The Early Life of Stephen Hind" is a skillfully written novel of manners by Storm Jameson. It will quicken and hold the reader's interest. "Opinion of The Court" by William Woolfolk is a novel of politics based on the Supreme Court. It will interest those who like such books as "Advise and Consent" and "Fail Safe." There are several books for mystery readers, such as "The Crimson Madness of Little Doom" by Mark McShane, "Disposing Mind" by Richard Smithies and "A Business of Bodies" by Stanton Forbes.

Books of non-fiction offer a great variety of reading material. "The Great Philosophers; Vol 2" by Karl Jaspers is a scholarly and well written work. "Book of the Hand" by Fred Gettings is an excellent history of palmistry. Books on this subject are always in demand. Sir Thomas More's "A Dialogue of Comfort Against Tribulation" is a new translation of one of the classics of the Christian faith. "Dag Hammaraskjold, a Spiritual Portrait" by Sven Stolpe is a study of the philosophy of this famous but enigmatic man of our times. "The Invisible Scar" is a very good history of the depression period, written by Caroline Bird. "Folklore in America" by Tristram P. Coffin is a comprehensive survey of this subject.

"Will the Human Race Survive" is a study of the effect of science upon civilization written by Henry Still. A new book in the field of botany is "The Origin of Cultivated Plants" by Franz Schwanitz. There are two interesting books about animals. One is "On Aggression", written by Konrad Lorenz. It deals with the naturally aggressive nature of animals. The other is "The Alien Animals" by George Laycock, who makes a strong plea against the transportation of animals from their native habitat. It will be enjoyed by biologists, naturalists and conservationists.

A perfectly beautiful new book is "The Dawn of European Civilization" written by David Talbot Rice. It is a large, finely illustrated book and is almost a course in medieval history. If you are going to the orient, be sure to see the new edition of "The Pacific Travel Guide" written by John Cope Caldwell. If Europe is your destination, you will want Fielding's "Guide to Europe, 1966 Edition." An interesting history of early Twentieth Century Europe is "The European Powers, 1900-1945" written by Gilbert Martin. "Diary of a Nightmare" by Ursula vo Kardoff paints an unforgettable picture of life in Berlin in the years 1942-1945. "The Black Home of Calcutta" by Noel Barber is another frightening tale of man's inhumanity to man.

"Disinherited" by Dale Van Every is a very penetrating account of the treatment which the American Indians received from the early settlers of our country. "The Early Spanish Main" by Carol O. Sauer is a high tale of adventure in this historic section of our continent. "The Pike's Peak People" by John Fetler is an account of early exploration of America's best known mountain. "The Great North Trail" by Dan Cushman is an enthralling account of the exploration of the West. "Empress Maria Theresa" by Robert Pick gives a good picture of the early years of this famous European monarch. "U Thant" by June Bingham is a well done account of the life of the Secretary of the United Nations.

There are several lovely new reference books available this week. "Modern Ceramics" by Karel Hettes is profusely illustrated and gives an excellent picture of pottery and porcelain of the world. "Oriental Lacquer" by Kurt Herberts is a large beautiful book with exquisite tipped - in illustrations, the author discusses the art and technique of this craft. "The Book of Costume" by Millia Davenport is a complete history of costume through the centuries.

Girl Scouts Swim Seas To England

DOVER, England (AP) — Six Girl Scouts, average ages 15, swam the 20 miles of a choppy English Channel in relay Saturday, the first of their organization ever to do so.

Sally Rose, 16, entered the water at Cap Gris Nez, France, at 3:25 a.m. After an hour she handed over to another girl, and the swim was continued in one-hour intervals from an accompanying boat.

Margaret Greenway, 15, completed the swim, reaching the English shore after 13 hours 11 minutes.

At the same time, an Iranian army lieutenant, Mostafa Etaati, 31, was taken out of the water exhausted seven miles from the English shore after an unsuccessful attempt to swim the channel from Cap Gris Nez. Etaati had been swimming 10 hours 20 minutes.

TRIM AND FRENCH: That's nice "clean" look about this French Provincial, five-bedroom house, with its distinctive yet simple lines. Inside, there are nearly 3000 square feet of living space distributed over two floors and effectively utilized.

Modern Living Fun In French Provincial Home

By ANDY LANG

The mail serves as a constant reminder of what we already know: that people are widely divided about the styles of homes they prefer. The two big groups comprise those who like the warmth and elegance of the traditional and those who find the contemporary more desirable.

This two-story, five-bedroom house designed by architect Samuel Paul for House of the Week combines the best of both worlds. While French Provincial in character, the layout provides all the qualities for good modern living. The habitable area of 2967 square feet indicates a comfortable overall size, yet it is modest enough to fit most budgets because it is distributed over two floors. The main outline of the plan is a simple rectangle which helps to keep down construction costs. The second-floor cost, by the way, can be figured at about two-thirds of the first floor, which gives good value to a house of this kind.

The exterior is executed simply and without superficial frills. A tasteful combination of whitewashed brick, symmetrically-placed windows, a high-pitched roof, and black wrought-iron accents, exudes a refined gracefulness and a sophisticated simplicity.

A gracious entrance foyer is enhanced by a majestic, curved staircase to the second floor. Besides providing a pleasant welcome, it acts as a central distribution area from which the main rooms downstairs radiate. To the left is the formal living room 25' 6" long, with a large brick fireplace as its focal point. The dining room is entered to the right through a pair of folding doors. To the rear of the main foyer is the entire informal area, composed of a family room, a kitchen, a dinette, laundry, bath and spare room.

The rear of the house is opened to the expansive patio area through strategically - placed sliding glass doors in the living room, playroom and dinette. The patio can be used for lounging, dining and playing. The work area is spacious, with generous amounts of counter space, and the appliances are efficiently placed to eliminate extra steps and surplus movement. A service section next to the kitchen features an outside entrance mud closet and full laundry space. There is a spare room here as well as a bath and an entrance to the garage. Ceramic tile is used for the floor, walls and stall shower of the bathroom.

There are four bedrooms, with an abundance of closets, on the second floor. The master bedroom, nearly 20' long, features a corner fireplace in brick. The suite has its own full bath, dressing area and huge walk-in closet. The bedrooms are entered from a roomy foyer which serves the luxurious main bath. A traditional storage attic is made possible by the highpitched roof. Access is via a disappearing stair, which is stored unseen in the attic when not in use.

Further storage is provided in the two-car garage, which also has space for a workshop. This handyman area is conveniently located near the entrance to the laundry room and bath, making it possible to clean up before re-entering the main part of the house.

Design G-49, nice to look at, has all the requirements necessary to make it nice to live in.

Advice Flows Freely For Home Buyer

AP NEWSFEATURES

If there is one thing the prospective home buyer isn't lacking it's advice. It comes from anywhere and everywhere.

Two of the more interesting recent statements on the subject come from such widely divergent authorities as a motivational research expert and the president of a savings and loan association. The motivational research authority, Dr. Ernest Dichter, says the shrewd seller "caters to the hidden influences as well as the more obvious ones." And the president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of New York, Wesley J. Bahr, thinks most home buyers don't spend enough time studying the characteristics of the neighborhoods in which they plan to live.

HIDDEN INFLUENCES

What are these hidden influences Dr. Dichter is referring to? For one thing, he says, many builders make a mistake by reducing the sizes of rooms "when in fact it is against the wishes of the future home owner." In conducting a study of home buyers for Weyerhaeuser Company, he discovered that it's not only for space reasons that people these days want larger rooms. "It's because," he asserts, "space means freedom, growth and prosperity, and people resent being denied the full gratification of these basic desires."

Garden Center Notes

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR
'THE COMPOST'

There are so many uses for a good compost that it seems important for all good gardeners to have one. The product of a good compost is a valuable soil very high in humus contents and rich in plant nutrients. These soils are useful as potting soil for house plants and to use in seed flats. They may also be used as a top dressing for the lawn, especially one that is newly planted or one that is in need of repairs. Hot-beds and cold frames need this type soil and to enrich the flower beds or vegetable gardens, it is envaluable. Many other uses could be listed.

The important thing is to have it on hand when needed — from your own source. Gives you great satisfaction to know you have something valuable made from materials that would be thrown away. Making a compost is a simple matter. Partial shade is better than full sun for the location. Of course the location should be in the rear of the garden or some secluded spot out of view — perhaps near the service area. A good size would be 4 to 6 feet width and 3 to 4 feet in height, any desired length.

The basic foundation could be inverted sods, weed stalks or coarse materials upon which layers of organic refuse and soil should be built up. Animal manure can be included when possible.

Almost any organic material except very woody materials could be used such as grass clippings, sod, weeds, refuse from the vegetable garden or kitchen. Diseased plants should never be placed on the heap. Decomposition of the plant materials is due to the activity of certain organisms, and the rate of decomposition in a compost will be speeded up if these micro-organisms are present in great numbers. A healthy soil contains these in great numbers. Soil should be added to the heap for this reason.

Also, additional well-rotted compost could be added to start off a new heap.

These organisms do not tolerate acid condition in the compost so it is well to add an occasional sprinkling of ground limestone which "sweetens" and gives aid to the decomposition. The time required to convert raw organic materials into a good humus that is ready for use in the garden depends on a number of factors, such as the climatic conditions, moisture content in the compost, types of materials used and whether or not a commercial activator was used. Moisture content is important. When building the pile the middle or top of the pile should be shaped concave so as to catch as much rain as possible. Of course, if dry materials are put into the heap they should be soaked thoroughly. So often hay or dried plant materials are thrown into the compost. The heap should have a spongy, moist consistency at all times. Bacterial action takes place much quicker in warm weather, and green materials decompose quicker than woody materials.

A small compost may be made in an old barrel or oil drum with one end cut off and holes punched in the other end for drainage. Simply pack a layer of leaves about a foot deep, sprinkle with a two inch layer of rich soil, then scatter a cup of 5-10-5, 4-12-4, or similar fertilizer and ½ cup of hydrated lime on top of soil. Repeat until the container is filled. Add just enough water to keep entire contents moist.

After one month turn over the contents with a long fork-two or three times to let the carbon diozide out and to allow plenty of fresh oxygen to enter the pile and hasten decomposition. Simple as that.

One suggestion for freeing the compost of weeds was found in America's Garden Book", by Bush-Brown. It is important to have this type soil for a seed bed or cold frame where seed are to be planted. This method was developed by the University of Rhode Island in which granular calcium cyanamide is used. Not only does this method kill all the weed seeds, but increases the nutritive value of the compost. Calcium Cyanamide, commonly known as Cyanamid, contains 20 per cent nitrogen and the equivalent of 70 per cent hydrated lime. Details for this may be acquired from America's Garden Book, Bush-Brown, located in the Lending Library of The Fifth District Garden Center.

Ecology, the study of the interrelationships of all living things and how they affect one another, has just recently received the attention it deserves. "The Web of Life", by John H. Storer, is excellent reference on this subject dramatizing this important area of conservation.

Boxwood Blight Prevalent Now

BOXWOOD BLIGHT

Perhaps no pest of boxwood is more baffling to gardeners than what is called Volutella Blight. This is the time of year when it gets in its deadly work. Hot humid weather is just to its liking.

Where boxwood bushes are constantly moist near other plants, they are particularly subject to Volutella Blight. Bushes that are not cleaned out annually with a brush are begging for this blight. When the August rains come along, twigs and foliage that have become infested with this unsightly pest suddenly become encrusted with little yellow raised blisters. In the heat and humidity, these blisters erupt. The leaves turn yellow and shed in a light yellow snow onto the ground. Nothing could be more devasting to a boxwood.

First of all, boxwoods must not be allowed to accumulate leaves and trash down inside. Brush them out every year and be sure to collect the dead trash and leaves and burn them at once.

As a preventive against Volutella Blight, spray boxwoods in August with liquid lime sulphur using the summer strength: one to forty recommended on the bottle. The full winter strength is not to be used in hot weather.

If you suspect that Volutella Blight has gotten into your boxwoods, go through them and prune out all the twigs that are infested with the little yellow pustules right now. Then watch the bushes for rupting bumps on twigs and branches when hot humid weather comes along, and spray them with lime sulfur.

BAGWORMS

Every summer, bagworms seem to eat up their quota of Pfitzer junipers, redcedars (Junipers, too) and other conifers before their owners catch on to what is going on. It is hard to see a few bagworms, and we do not seem to notice them till there are hundreds on a juniper.

At this stage of their development, only spraying with something rather powerful seems to do bagworms any harm. Right now, the female is down inside the bag laying her eggs for next years crop. Tozaphene may get her now, but the time to kill these pests is in May and June when the young worms emerge and begin to eat young foliage as they carry their bag around with them. In May and June you can easily kill them by spraying infested shrubs with three tablespoonfuls of lead arsenate to the gallon of water. Remember that lead arsenate is a stomach poison for humans as well as for pests, so it must not be left where children will get it.

Prepare Now For Spring

By AUDREY H. DAWSON
Home Demonstration Agent

In late August and early September is the time for you, Mrs. Gardener, to start your perennials and annuals in flats for next spring blooming. Some suggestions include: early sweet pea, sweet alyssum, snapdragon pansy, calendula, cockscomb, phlox, drummond and periwinkle.

Continue to feed your chrysanthemums with a complete fertilizer as 8-8-8. Chrysanthemums require plenty of water. The ground around them should be thoroughly soaked every week. To keep down leaf diseases, keep the water off the leaves. For large flower heads, disbud all buds that appear except the center bud of each cluster.

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have not lifted and replanted your Easter Lily beds do so as soon as possible. Select the bulbs that are free from insects and diseases.

There are two fallacies about watering the lawn, the first that grass should never be watered when the sun is shining and the other that a little water every day is best. Watering when the sun is shining will not harm the grass, however, if there is any best time to water it probably would be early morning. Watering in early evening may encourage diseases, since the grass will be wet all night. Most turf grass research workers agree that when lawns are watered they should be thoroughly soaked at infrequent intervals, and not watered a little each day.

FLAVORING AGENT

Mrs. Homemaker, have you noticed the words Monosodium glutamate listed in the ingredients of prepared foods? Do you know the purpose of using this ingredient in food? Monosodium glutamate (MSG) is a flavoring agent made from the protein in soybeans, wheat and corn. It may, also, be made from yeast. Contrary to a rather widespread belief among homemakers, MSG is not a preservative or a tenderizer. It is used to impart meat flavor to foods and to enhance other natural food flavors. It may be used in mayonnaise, French dressing and salad dressing without label declaration. Monosodium glutamate can be bought in most food stores for use in home prepared meals.

Compost Pile Is Necessary

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR
'THE COMPOST'

There are so many uses for a good compost that it seems important for all good gardeners to have one. The product of a good compost is a valuable soil very high in humus contents and rich in plant nutrients. These soils are useful as potting soil for house plants and to use in seed flats. They may also be used as a top dressing for the lawn, especially one that is newly planted or one that is in need of repairs. Hot-beds and cold frames need this type soil and to enrich the flower beds or vegetable gardens, it is envaluable. Many other uses could be listed.

The important thing is to have it on hand when needed — from your own source. Gives you great satisfaction to know you have something valuable made from materials that would be thrown away. Making a compost is a simple matter. Partial shade is better than full sun for the location. Of course the location should be in the rear of the garden or some secluded spot out of view — perhaps near the service area. A good size would be 4 to 6 feet width and 3 to 4 feet in height, any desired length.

The basic foundation could be inverted sods, weed stalks or coarse materials upon which layers of organic refuse and soil should be built up. Animal manure can be included when possible.

Almost any organic material except very woody materials could be used such as grass clippings, sod, weeds, refuse from the vegetable garden or kitchen. Diseased plants should never be placed on the heap. Decomposition of the plant materials is due to the activity of certain organisms, and the rate of decomposition in a compost will be speeded up if these micro-organisms are present in great numbers. A healthy soil contains these in great numbers. Soil should be added to the heap for this reason.

Also, additional well-rotted compost could be added to start off a new heap.

These organisms do not tolerate acid condition in the compost so it is well to add an occasional sprinkling of ground limestone which "sweetens" and gives aid to the decomposition. The time required to convert raw organic materials into a good humus that is ready for use in the garden depends on a number of factors, such as the climatic conditions, moisture content in the compost, types of materials used and whether or not a commercial activator was used. Moisture content is important. When building the pile the middle or top of the pile should be shaped concave so as to catch as much rain as possible. Of course, if dry materials are put into the heap they should be soaked thoroughly. So often hay or dried plant materials are thrown into the compost. The heap should have a spongy, moist consistency at all times. Bacterial action takes place much quicker in warm weather, and green materials decompose quicker than woody materials.

A small compost may be made in an old barrel or oil drum with one end cut off and holes punched in the other end for drainage. Simply pack a layer of leaves about a foot deep, sprinkle with a two inch layer of rich soil, then scatter a cup of 5-10-5, 4-12-4, or similar fertilizer and ½ cup of hydrated lime on top of soil. Repeat until the container is filled. Add just enough water to keep entire contents moist.

After one month turn over the contents with a long fork-two or three times to let the carbon diozide out and to allow plenty of fresh oxygen to enter the pile and hasten decomposition. Simple as that.

One suggestion for freeing the compost of weeds was found in America's Garden Book", by Bush-Brown. It is important to have this type soil for a seed bed or cold frame where seed are to be planted. This method was developed by the University of Rhode Island in which granular calcium cyanamide is used. Not only does this method kill all the weed seeds, but increases the nutritive value of the compost. Calcium Cyanamide, commonly known as Cyanamid, contains 20 per cent nitrogen and the equivalent of 70 per cent hydrated lime. Details for this may be acquired from America's Garden Book, Bush-Brown, located in the Lending Library of The Fifth District Garden Center.

Ecology, the study of the interrelationships of all living things and how they affect one another, has just recently received the attention it deserves. "The Web of Life", by John H. Storer, is excellent reference on this subject dramatizing this important area of conservation.

Boxwood Blight Prevalent Now

BOXWOOD BLIGHT

Perhaps no pest of boxwood is more baffling to gardeners than what is called Volutella Blight. This is the time of year when it gets in its deadly work. Hot humid weather is just to its liking.

Where boxwood bushes are constantly moist near other plants, they are particularly subject to Volutella Blight. Bushes that are not cleaned out annually with a brush are begging for this blight. When the August rains come along, twigs and foliage that have become infested with this unsightly pest suddenly become encrusted with little yellow raised blisters. In the heat and humidity, these blisters erupt. The leaves turn yellow and shed in a light yellow snow onto the ground. Nothing could be more devasting to a boxwood.

First of all, boxwoods must not be allowed to accumulate leaves and trash down inside. Brush them out every year and be sure to collect the dead trash and leaves and burn them at once.

As a preventive against Volutella Blight, spray boxwoods in August with liquid lime sulphur using the summer strength: one to forty recommended on the bottle. The full winter strength is not to be used in hot weather.

If you suspect that Volutella Blight has gotten into your boxwoods, go through them and prune out all the twigs that are infested with the little yellow pustules right now. Then watch the bushes for rupting bumps on twigs and branches when hot humid weather comes along, and spray them with lime sulfur.

BAGWORMS

Every summer, bagworms seem to eat up their quota of Pfitzer junipers, redcedars (Junipers, too) and other conifers before their owners catch on to what is going on. It is hard to see a few bagworms, and we do not seem to notice them till there are hundreds on a juniper.

At this stage of their development, only spraying with something rather powerful seems to do bagworms any harm. Right now, the female is down inside the bag laying her eggs for next years crop. Tozaphene may get her now, but the time to kill these pests is in May and June when the young worms emerge and begin to eat young foliage as they carry their bag around with them. In May and June you can easily kill them by spraying infested shrubs with three tablespoonfuls of lead arsenate to the gallon of water. Remember that lead arsenate is a stomach poison for humans as well as for pests, so it must not be left where children will get it.

Prepare Now For Spring

By AUDREY H. DAWSON
Home Demonstration Agent

In late August and early September is the time for you, Mrs. Gardener, to start your perennials and annuals in flats for next spring blooming. Some suggestions include: early sweet pea, sweet alyssum, snapdragon pansy, calendula, cockscomb, phlox, drummond and periwinkle.

Continue to feed your chrysanthemums with a complete fertilizer as 8-8-8. Chrysanthemums require plenty of water. The ground around them should be thoroughly soaked every week. To keep down leaf diseases, keep the water off the leaves. For large flower heads, disbud all buds that appear except the center bud of each cluster.

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have not lifted and replanted your Easter Lily beds do so as soon as possible. Select the bulbs that are free from insects and diseases.

There are two fallacies about watering the lawn, the first that grass should never be watered when the sun is shining and the other that a little water every day is best. Watering when the sun is shining will not harm the grass, however, if there is any best time to water it probably would be early morning. Watering in early evening may encourage diseases, since the grass will be wet all night. Most turf grass research workers agree that when lawns are watered they should be thoroughly soaked at infrequent intervals, and not watered a little each day.

FLAVORING AGENT

Mrs. Homemaker, have you noticed the words Monosodium glutamate listed in the ingredients of prepared foods? Do you know the purpose of using this ingredient in food? Monosodium glutamate (MSG) is a flavoring agent made from the protein in soybeans, wheat and corn. It may, also, be made from yeast. Contrary to a rather widespread belief among homemakers, MSG is not a preservative or a tenderizer. It is used to impart meat flavor to foods and to enhance other natural food flavors. It may be used in mayonnaise, French dressing and salad dressing without label declaration. Monosodium glutamate can be bought in most food stores for use in home prepared meals.

Exhausting Roles End For Londoner

EDITOR'S NOTE — "Marat-Sade," the play that stunned New York and London, is now on film, and Patrick Magee, for one, is glad it's over. He played the Marquis de Sade in all productions.

By RAYMOND PALMER

LONDON (AP) — British actor Patrick Magee, who has been playing one of the most exhausting stage roles of his career for the last two years, has now put it on film.

"And I hope that's going to be the end of it," he said. "That's not, perhaps, the best way of putting it, but that's how I feel."

The role is that of the Marquis de Sade in the Royal Shakespeare Theater Company's production which has become known as "Marat-Sade." The full title is: "The Persecution and Assassination of Marat as Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis de Sade." The play stunned audiences in London and New York with its power.

The company completed the movie version in 15 shooting days — or little more time than it takes to learn to say the play's title. This, said the producer, Lord Birkett, was because it was done on a very limited budget, less than $500,000.

"It's not exactly a shoestring," he said. "You might call it a bootlace budget."

"Because of the time factor, the movie was shot on one set at Pinewood Studios. This was similar to the stage setting of the asylum bath-house used in the London and New York theater productions.

"Of course," said Lord Birkett, "we had the advantage that every member of the cast knows every word and movement of the production from having done it so long on the stage. In fact, we had to be careful to say 'cut!' after each shot, otherwise they would just go or until they reached the end of the play."

Another factor which helped the rapid production was that a continuous form of lighting was devised for the set. Peter Brook, who also directed the stage productions, moved his actors into and out of the pools of light rather than stopping production usually takes considerable time. while a scene was relit, which usually takes considerable time.

The makeup and costumes of the characters who played the asylum inmates were so bizarre that after the first day a special dining room was provided for them at the studio, "so they didn't put the rest of us off our food," explained one studio hand.

Magee, who has played De Sade since the first stage production in London in 1964, said he found the New York production with its eight performances a week the most exhausting.

The fact that one was on the stage all the time, and sitting still a great deal, was demanding — physically demanding," said Magee. "Then the play carries a very curious atmosphere, a very clastrophcbic atmosphere. And the fact that you're surrounded by the demented — even if you know they are actors — is very demanding. I found it a very tiring part to play. Perhaps exhausting would be a better word."

Exhausting Roles End For Londoner

EDITOR'S NOTE — "Marat-Sade," the play that stunned New York and London, is now on film, and Patrick Magee, for one, is glad it's over. He played the Marquis de Sade in all productions.

By RAYMOND PALMER

LONDON (AP) — British actor Patrick Magee, who has been playing one of the most exhausting stage roles of his career for the last two years, has now put it on film.

"And I hope that's going to be the end of it," he said. "That's not, perhaps, the best way of putting it, but that's how I feel."

The role is that of the Marquis de Sade in the Royal Shakespeare Theater Company's production which has become known as "Marat-Sade." The full title is: "The Persecution and Assassination of Marat as Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis de Sade." The play stunned audiences in London and New York with its power.

The company completed the movie version in 15 shooting days — or little more time than it takes to learn to say the play's title. This, said the producer, Lord Birkett, was because it was done on a very limited budget, less than $500,000.

"It's not exactly a shoestring," he said. "You might call it a bootlace budget."

"Because of the time factor, the movie was shot on one set at Pinewood Studios. This was similar to the stage setting of the asylum bath-house used in the London and New York theater productions.

"Of course," said Lord Birkett, "we had the advantage that every member of the cast knows every word and movement of the production from having done it so long on the stage. In fact, we had to be careful to say 'cut!' after each shot, otherwise they would just go or until they reached the end of the play."

Another factor which helped the rapid production was that a continuous form of lighting was devised for the set. Peter Brook, who also directed the stage productions, moved his actors into and out of the pools of light rather than stopping production usually takes considerable time, while a scene was relit, which usually takes considerable time.

The makeup and costumes of the characters who played the asylum inmates were so bizarre that after the first day a special dining room was provided for them at the studio, "so they didn't put the rest of us off our food," explained one studio hand.

Magee, who has played De Sade since the first stage production in London in 1964, said he found the New York production with its eight performances a week the most exhausting.

The fact that one was on the stage all the time, and sitting still a great deal, was demanding — physically demanding," said Magee. "Then the play carries a very curious atmosphere, a very clastrophobic atmosphere. And the fact that you're surrounded by the demented — even if you know they are actors — is very demanding. I found it a very tiring part to play. Perhaps exhausting would be a better word."

Oklahomans Find Local People 'Very Friendly'

By DIANE TAYLOR
Staff Writer

A wise man once said you've only to look at how a newcomer felt about the people where he came from, to learn how he will like the people he meets in his new town.

Kenneth Staton, new minister of education for First Baptist Church of West Monroe, said during his first week in West Monroe that "people here are just as friendly as back home."

Staton moved with his family from Oklahoma City, Okla., over the weekend and assumed his duties at his new church last Sunday.

He was minister of education at Putnam City Baptist Church in Oklahoma City for the past ten and a half years.

He came to West Monroe "'because I felt the Lord's call."

As minister of education, the tall Oklahomn will be responsible for the enlistment and training of workers in the church's Sunday School and Baptist Training Union classes and will direct the church's visitation program. He will edit the church publication. "Baptist Visitor," handling the printing of the paper on the church's offset press. Not the least of his duties in the administration and promotion of the church's educational program will be the advisement in matters of church literature.

He replaced the church's former minister of education who assumed a post in December at a Houston, Tex., church. The church had been without a minister of education until this week.

Staton said he met in June with the church's pastor, Dr. Clifton Tennison, to discuss the move to West Monroe, then last month was the subject of study by the church committee responsible for hiring a man for his post. The committee recommended to the church that he be hired to fill the position.

The Statons were officially presented to the church Sunday, July 24, at the close of the morning worship service, and he assumed his duties last Sunday, after the family moved here on the preceding Friday.

The Staton children — Jim, 16; Bill, 13; and Lou Ann, 11 — will enter the parish schools this fall.

The family resides, at the present, at a home secured for them by the church, at 211 Anderson St., but will move in October to the new home in White Columns Subdivision which the church is having built for them.

A native of Durant, Okla., Staton attended Southeastern State College at Durant, Georgia Tech at Atlanta and was graduated from the University of Oklahoma at Norman in 1950. He received his master's degree in religious education from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, Tex., in January, 1953.

His first church post was at White Settlement Baptist Church at Fort Worth, where he served from 1953-55, before accepting the Oklahoma City position.

CHURCH BELIEF

It is the Baptist Church's belief that every Christian who is saved first has a personal experience with God. Staton said his experience came while he was attending the University of Oklahoma in the spring of 1950.

"It was during a revival," he said. "I just made the decision to surrender my life to do what the Lord wanted me to do. I counseled with the church pastor. I attended Student Week at Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly near Asheville, N. C., and decided while there that my life's work would be in religious education."

Staton said the new church year will begin the first of October, and until then he foresees no major changes in the church educational program.

"The church recently voted to change literature," he said, "and beginning with the new church year, we will use the 'Life and Work Curriculum' series for our classroom material, in both adult and young people's Sunday School and BTU classes."

Oklahomans Find Local People 'Very Friendly'

By DIANE TAYLOR
Staff Writer

A wise man once said you've only to look at how a newcomer felt about the people where he came from, to learn how he will like the people he meets in his new town.

Kenneth Staton, new minister of education for First Baptist Church of West Monroe, said during his first week in West Monroe that "people here are just as friendly as back home."

Staton moved with his family from Oklahoma City, Okla., over the weekend and assumed his duties at his new church last Sunday.

He was minister of education at Putnam City Baptist Church in Oklahoma City for the past ten and a half years.

He came to West Monroe "because I felt the Lord's call."

As minister of education, the tall Oklahomn will be responsible for the enlistment and training of workers in the church's Sunday School and Baptist Training Union classes and will direct the church's visitation program. He will edit the church publication "Baptist Visitor," handling the printing of the paper on the church's offset press. Not the least of his duties in the administration and promotion of the church's educational program will be the advisement in matters of church literature.

He replaced the church's former minister of education who assumed a post in December at a Houston, Tex., church. The church had been without a minister of education until this week.

Staton said he met in June with the church's pastor, Dr. Clifton Tennison, to discuss the move to West Monroe, then last month was the subject of study by the church committee responsible for hiring a man for his post. The committee recommended to the church that he be hired to fill the position.

The Statons were officially presented to the church Sunday, July 24, at the close of the morning worship service, and he assumed his duties last Sunday, after the family moved here on the preceding Friday.

The Staton children — Jim, 16; Bill, 13; and Lou Ann, 11 — will enter the parish schools this fall.

The family resides, at the present, at a home secured for them by the church, at 211 Anderson St., but will move in October to the new home in White Columns Subdivision which the church is having built for them.

A native of Durant, Okla., Staton attended Southeastern State College at Durant, Georgia Tech at Atlanta and was graduated from the University of Oklahoma at Norman in 1950. He received his master's degree in religious education from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth, Tex., in January, 1953.

His first church post was at White Settlement Baptist Church at Fort Worth, where he served from 1953-55, before accepting the Oklahoma City position.

CHURCH BELIEF

It is the Baptist Church's belief that every Christian who is saved first has a personal experience with God. Staton said his experience came while he was attending the University of Oklahoma in the spring of 1950.

"It was during a revival," he said. "I just made the decision to surrender my life to do what the Lord wanted me to do. I counseled with the church pastor. I attended Student Week at Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly near Asheville, N. C., and decided while there that my life's work would be in religious education."

Staton said the new church year will begin the first of October, and until then he foresees no major changes in the church educational program.

"The church recently voted to change literature," he said, "and beginning with the new church year, we will use the 'Life and Work Curriculum' series for our classroom material, in both adult and young people's Sunday School and BTU classes."

Beatle Fan Of Undying Devotion

DETROIT (UPI) — They screamed, and they cried. Their devotion for the Beatles, it seems, is undying, and all is forgiven in Detroit.

Close to 32,000 screaming, flashbulb-popping, banner-waving, Beatle-loving teenagers and a few parents, showed the mop-haired foursome Saturday that they can forgive and forget.

The only noticeable dissenter in front of Olympia Stadium where the Beatles appeared was a picketer with a sign saying, "I'm a fool for Jesus. Whose fool are you?"

Guitar-toting John Lennnon recently said the Beatles were more popular than Jesus. However, Friday in Chicago he explained he was using the Beatles only as comparison to illustrate the problems of Christianity.

Nearly 450 policemen, including 12 nonuniformed policewomen, kept the crowd from mobbing the stage and mauling the Beatles.

Policemen stood three-abreast in front of the stage platform and most had cotton in their ears because of the deafening roar of the music amplifiers and the continuous screaming.

Enthusiastic Beatle-lovers just couldn't get close enough or scream loud enough.

Strikers Torpedo Airline Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz disclosed Saturday night that agreement apparently was reached Friday in the 36-day-old airline strike, but the striking Machinists Union later torpedoed it.

Wirtz said the airlines and the union at first apparently agreed on a package that would have cost the airlines an estimated $84 million over three years, but the union later backed out of it.

Wirtz's statement followed within hours a report that union negotiators stormed out of a meeting Saturday with the labor secretary.

Wirtz said a joint meeting Saturday "'was abruptly terminated, shortly after it started, when Mr. (Roy) Siemiller (union president) withdrew from it, taking his bargaining committee with him, on the ground—which has no basis in fact—that one of the carrier representatives had reflected on his integrity."

Wirtz' statement gave this account of the events:

"There has been an intensive series of meetings with the parties during the past three days."

"Yesterday agreement was apparently reached."

"The union had presented its revised demands in the form of a 'package' covering wage, fringe, and cost-of-living escalator issues with a value of approximately $94 million over a three-year period for the five companies."

Wirtz said Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, in a series of meetings with both parties, "obtained what appeared to be the agreement of both of them to a package covering all of these same items, but with some modifications in their terms.

"This package would have a value of about $84 million over the three-year period. The airline companies agreed to this on the understanding communicated through Secretary Reynolds on the basis of IAM (International Association of Machinists) President Siemiller's statements to him — that the union had also accepted it."

But Wirtz said that when Reynolds brought representatives of both sides together later to complete the details "the union rejected the terms and reverted to its $94-million position." Siemiller was not at the meeting.

Wirtz said, however, that "every effort will still be made to resolve this case by mutual agreement," and he called a meeting of both sides for today at 10 a.m.

A Labor Department spokesma nsai dthere was no consultation with the White House prior to the issuance of Wirtz's statement.

Wirtz said, "There is the basis here for a settlement which is fair to both parties."

It was learned through other sources that Siemiller stormed out of the meeting when an airlines representative accused him of lying. "You are trying to make a liar out of me," Siemiller yelled back.

Some of the conversation could be heard in the corridor outside the meeting room.

According to these accounts, when the meeting began with Wirtz the union negotiators said they had not agreed to the new settlement proposal and didn't even know what was in it.

Wirtz reportedly told Siemiller when he got up to leave that, "You leave at your own risk."

Siemiller retorted, "'I have been walking out at my own risk all my life.'"

Informed sources described the argument as apparently the result of a misunderstanding between negotiators on both sides and was not a fight with Wirtz and other government officials who have been trying to bring the two sides together in order to avert legislation.

Word of the flareup at the Labor Department came shortly after Siemiller had released a statement accusing the airlines of hiding behind White House wage-price guidelines to protect what he called exorbitant profits.

The developments appeared to dim still further the already faint hope for reaching a voluntary agreement before Congress acts on pending legislation which would force the 35,000 strikers back to their jobs.

Rep. Garrett Runs Ahead In Claiborne

HOMER (Special) — Rep. John S. Garrett carried his home parish of Claiborne Saturday in a bid for the 3rd District Public Service Commission seat.

Complete but unofficial returns from the 25 voting precincts gave Garrett 2,410 votes. His closest opponent John S. Hunt II of Monroe drew 1,298 votes. Hunt is the incumbent.

Of the other candidates, Rep. Parey Branton of Shongaloo picked up 172 votes; Wellborn Jack of Shreveport, 156 votes; Perry Coleman of Pollock, 84 votes, and John McKinley of Monroe, 66 votes.

In the U. S. Senate race from Claiborne Parish, the incumbent Sen. Allen J. Ellender won easily with 2,749 votes. State Sen. J. B. DeBlieux of Baton Rouge got 804 votes while Troyce Guice of Ferriday picked up 408 votes.

Exports Of Cotton May Show Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — U. S. cotton exports this season are expected to be nearly double what they were the past year but they are off to a slow start, the New York Cotton Exchange reported today.

Exports for the season ended July 31 were 3,020,000 bales. This year they are expected to be up 2.5 million. But with only 10,000 bales exported during the week ended last Tuesday, they totaled only 18,000 vs. 44,000 a year ago for the new season.

Cotton future contracts dropped this week, $1.25 to $2.05. They were up 25 cents to $1.50 last week. There was an influx of orders at the end of the week, and some indication of short selling.

The first official forecast of the current crop was released this week by the U. S. Department of Agriculture: about 10,820,000 bales.

Police Seek Mental Aid For Rapist

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Police enlisted the aid of psychiatrists Saturday to try and catch a young masked man who has raped 26 women in two suburban Maryland counties in the past year.

States Atty. Arthur A. Marshall of Prince Georges County, where most of the assaults occurred, said he hoped that by studying police reports of the rapes, psychiatrists could put together a portrait of the rapist that would help them identify him.

A massive search has been under way for months, but that fact was not made public until Friday because officers believed it would hamper efforts to capture the man. After months of failures, however, they decided to call on the public for help.

Police in both counties asked citizens to report any suspicious persons immediately and take precautions against forced entry of their homes.

Twenty of the rapes took place in Prince Georges County and six in neighboring Montgomery County. Most were in or near the community of Langley Park, just north of the District of Columbia line.

Beatle Fan Of Undying Devotion

DETROIT (UPI) — They screamed, and they cried. Their devotion for the Beatles, it seems, is undying, and all is forgiven in Detroit.

Close to 32,000 screaming, flashbulb-popping, banner-waving, Beatle-loving teenagers and a few parents, showed the mop-haired foursome Saturday that they can forgive and forget.

The only noticeable dissenter in front of Olympia Stadium where the Beatles appeared was a picketer with a sign saying, "I'm a fool for Jesus. Whose fool are you?"

Guitar-toting John Lennnon recently said the Beatles were more popular than Jesus. However, Friday in Chicago he explained he was using the Beatles only as comparison to illustrate the problems of Christianity.

Nearly 450 policemen, including 12 nonuniformed policewomen, kept the crowd from mobbing the stage and mauling the Beatles.

Policemen stood three-abreast in front of the stage platform and most had cotton in their ears because of the deafening roar of the music amplifiers and the continuous screaming.

Enthusiastic Beatle-lovers just couldn't get close enough or scream loud enough.

STILL SMOKING, a cannon of the 9th Artillery Battery, 25th Division, is already being reloaded during action in Viet Nam. Thousands of artillery rounds support the about 10,000 U.S. and Korean infantrymen that search for several North Vietnamese troops that have slipped under cover of bad weather across the Cambodian border into the central Vietnamese highlands. Strikers Torpedo Airline Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz disclosed Saturday night that agreement apparently was reached Friday in the 36-day-old airline strike, but the striking Machinists Union later torpedoed it.

Wirtz said the airlines and the union at first apparently agreed on a package that would have cost the airlines an estimated $84 million over three years, but the union later backed out of it.

Wirtz's statement followed within hours a report that union negotiators stormed out of a meeting Saturday with the labor secretary.

Wirtz said a joint meeting Saturday "was abruptly terminated, shortly after it started, when Mr. (Roy) Siemiller (union president) withdrew from it, taking his bargaining committee with him, on the ground—which has no basis in fact—that one of the carrier representatives had reflected on his integrity."

Wirtz' statement gave this account of the events:

"There has been an intensive series of meetings with the parties during the past three days."

"Yesterday agreement was apparently reached."

"The union had presented its revised demands in the form of a 'package' covering wage, fringe, and cost-of-living escalator issues with a value of approximately $94 million over a three-year period for the five companies."

Wirtz said Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, in a series of meetings with both parties, "obtained what appeared to be the agreement of both of them to a package covering all of these same items, but with some modifications in their terms.

"This package would have a value of about $84 million over the three-year period. The airline companies agreed to this on the understanding communicated through Secretary Reynolds on the basis of IAM (International Association of Machinists) President Siemiller's statements to him — that the union had also accepted it."

But Wirtz said that when Reynolds brought representatives of both sides together later to complete the details "the union rejected the terms and reverted to its $94-million position." Siemiller was not at the meeting.

Wirtz said, however, that "every effort will still be made to resolve this case by mutual agreement," and he called a meeting of both sides for today at 10 a.m.

A Labor Department spokesman said there was no consultation with the White House prior to the issuance of Wirtz's statement.

Wirtz said, "There is the basis here for a settlement which is fair to both parties."

It was learned through other sources that Siemiller stormed out of the meeting when an airlines representative accused him of lying. "You are trying to make a liar out of me," Siemiller yelled back.

Some of the conversation could be heard in the corridor outside the meeting room.

According to these accounts, when the meeting began with Wirtz the union negotiators said they had not agreed to the new settlement proposal and didn't even know what was in it.

Wirtz reportedly told Siemiller when he got up to leave that, "You leave at your own risk."

Siemiller retorted, "I have been walking out at my own risk all my life."

Informed sources described the argument as apparently the result of a misunderstanding between negotiators on both sides and was not a fight with Wirtz and other government officials who have been trying to bring the two sides together in order to avert legislation.

Word of the flareup at the Labor Department came shortly after Siemiller had released a statement accusing the airlines of hiding behind White House wage-price guidelines to protect what he called exorbitant profits.

The developments appeared to dim still further the already faint hope for reaching a voluntary agreement before Congress acts on pending legislation which would force the 35,000 strikers back to their jobs.

Rep. Garrett Runs Ahead In Claiborne

HOMER (Special) — Rep. John S. Garrett carried his home parish of Claiborne Saturday in a bid for the 3rd District Public Service Commission seat.

Complete but unofficial returns from the 25 voting precincts gave Garrett 2,410 votes. His closest opponent John S. Hunt II of Monroe drew 1,298 votes. Hunt is the incumbent.

Of the other candidates, Rep. Parey Branton of Shongaloo picked up 172 votes; Wellborn Jack of Shreveport, 156 votes; Perry Coleman of Pollock, 84 votes, and John McKinley of Monroe, 66 votes.

In the U. S. Senate race from Claiborne Parish, the incumbent Sen. Allen J. Ellender won easily with 2,749 votes. State Sen. J. B. DeBlieux of Baton Rouge got 804 votes while Troyce Guice of Ferriday picked up 408 votes.

Exports Of Cotton May Show Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — U. S. cotton exports this season are expected to be nearly double what they were the past year but they are off to a slow start, the New York Cotton Exchange reported today.

Exports for the season ended July 31 were 3,020,000 bales. This year they are expected to be up 2.5 million. But with only 10,000 bales exported during the week ended last Tuesday, they totaled only 18,000 vs. 44,000 a year ago for the new season.

Cotton future contracts dropped this week, $1.25 to $2.05. They were up 25 cents to $1.50 last week. There was an influx of orders at the end of the week, and some indication of short selling.

The first official forecast of the current crop was released this week by the U. S. Department of Agriculture: about 10,820,000 bales.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

After all these years, I have finally learned how to keep myself cool in the summer and warm in the winter. I find nothing worse than crawling between cold sheets in the winter or gasping for breath (on the same sheets) in the summer.

You know those plastic detergent bottles, rubbing-alcohol bottles and all the other plastic bottles that our household products come in? I save 'em!

When it's cold, I fill these bottles with hot water from the faucet. I screw the caps on tightly, and put a few of the bottles in bed about 30 minutes before I crawl in.

Ohhhhh . . . the comfort of having your tootsies warm!

During hot weather, I just fill the bottles about nine-tenths full of cool water, and put them in the freezer compartment. An hour before I go to bed, I put these iced bottles between the sheets. Not only are the sheets cool, but portions of the mattress are also. What price comfort?

Also, did you know that you could empty a box of salt into an iron skillet, heat the salt, pour it into a cloth bag, tie a knot in the end, and use it as a foot warmer?

I also found out that during the hot weather you could put a cloth bag full of salt in an ice tray, and let it get cold during the day. This makes a wonderful ice-bag!

If you don't want it real cold, cold, cold, then just put the bag of salt in the bottom of your refrigerator during the day.

PINK MILK—PINK CHEEKS

DEAR HELOISE:

My three children suddenly seemed to tire of milk.

I took three quarts of milk, and added a few drops of different food coloring to each one—pink, green, and blue.

Now, at mealtime, they enjoy drinking their pretty milk, and it also looks nice on their cereal.

P. G. Brown

NYLON NET AGAIN!

DEAR HELOISE:

Just made a darling cover for that extra roll of tissue in the bathroom. Here's how:

Cut off a large plastic bleach bottle about five inches up from the bottom of the bottle. When it is cut, turn it upside down (solid side up).

Measure nylon net to fit around the container and glue it on. Then take a piece of velvet ribbon long enough to go around the container, gather a net ruffle onto the ribbon, and glue the ribbon around the bottom of the container. Add a small flower.

Now you have an attractive decoration to cover the tissue.

Mrs. Jim Gerth

BUTTONS IN BOWS

DEAR HELOISE:

This clever gift-wrapping hint was suggested to me by my sister-in-law:

She selected some small gold buttons with rhinestone centers and put florist's wire through the shank of each, twisting the wire ends to make a stem. These were then inserted in bows on packages to add sparkle and beauty.

The buttons may be used later by the persons receiving the gifts.

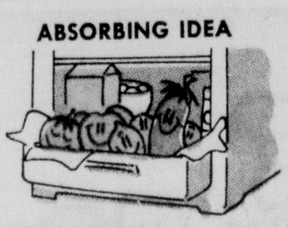
ABSORBING IDEA



DEAR HELOISE:

I live in an apartment hotel and I have always lined the hydrator in the refrigerator with foil. I had trouble with cucumbers, peppers, tomatoes, lemons and oranges mildewing, so I pointed this out to the maintenance man.

He told me that if I would line the hydrator with paper towels, they would absorb the moisture and keep the fruit from getting fungus on it. I have done this, and it works! Please pass this on to your other readers.

Mrs. D. V. E.

* * *

You are exactly right.

And, another little thing I would like to point out . . . are you aware that you can put newspapers in the bottom (they absorb lots of moisture), then lay one layer of paper towels on top, thus saving paper towels?

I have done this for six months, and it works beautifully.

EQUIPPED FOR ACTION

DEAR HELOISE:

To save steps while housecleaning I have a heavy imitation-leather shopping bag hanging from the hook where I wind my vacuum cleaner cord. In this bag I keep clean rags, whisk broom, furniture polish, etc.

Now I always know where everything is when I'm cleaning, and I can move all the cleaning paraphernalia from room to room in one trip.

Mrs. Thomas O. Malley

IT'S IN THE BAG

DEAR HELOISE:

When all my family were still at home, we had a problem of where to keep each one's comb and brush.

I finally bought a child's shoe bag (color to go with my bathroom) and over the pockets I printed the names and hung the bag on the wall.

No more trouble after that.

Paula Slattery

HERE'S THE POINT!

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a hint for seamstresses:

To make sharp points in sewing (such as on a collar or pocket), always make one stitch across the point or corner.

When the seam is trimmed and turned inside out, the point will be nice and sharp, and not bulky.

Grateful Home Economist

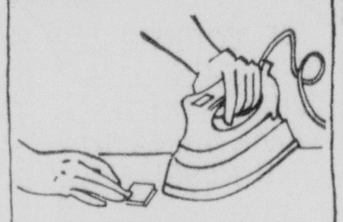
FRINGE BENEFITS

DEAR HELOISE:

To untangle fringe on curtains, bedspreads, etc., after washing, hang the article on a line and use a clean nylon hairbrush on the fringe. Brush it hard and all the tangles will come out. It will look as good as new.

Mrs. J. Block

THOSE STICKY STAMPS



DEAR HELOISE:

I wonder if those who have stamps or name labels that stick together during damp weather know that they can be loosened and separted with a hot iron.

It really works!
